Drastic Cut To Be Asked In Work Day By Johnson

Industry Must Shorten Labor Time to Aid Idle, He Asserts.

32-Hour Week For Nation Hinted

Only 2,750,000 Regain Jobs, Employment Census Indicates.

Because working-hour provisions in present codes can not take up all unemployment, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, said yesterday that he is planning to ask all industries to make a further drastic cut in working hours.

"Eventually the whole country has got to come to a shorter working week, if the unemployed are to be absorbed," Johnson said.

"If business picks up, this can be done. You might add that I think business will pick up."

The question of shorter working hours for industry will be one of the major topics of consideration at a joint meeting of code authorities here February 15.

Johnson said he did not care to say how many hours should constitute a working week. The average at present, he said, is about 40 hours.

Small Employer Is Problem.

Johnson added that experience had shown that most industries must work in multiples of eight-hour days. This would indicate that the Government is considering asking industry generally to go on a 32-hour week.

The question of just how far the Government can go in pushing industries into shorter weeks is being taken into consideration, Johnson said. He pointed out that the financial condition of individual employers must be considered and that if they are pushed too far they "might wind up in bankruptcy."

Johnson indicated that he expects improved business conditions to obviate this difficulty.

Another question to be be considered by the code authorities when they meet next month will be coordination of codes. Johnson pointed out that under the present arrangement some industries find themselves operating under as many as eight or ten codes.

Avoids "Drifters" for Detroit.

The announcement that NRA will ask for revision of present codes to provide for much shorter working weeks came immediately following an announcement that the auto-

Thalia Massie Arrives in Reno

Will File Divorce Action on Grounds of Cruelty in February.

Reno, Jan. 10 (AP).—Eager to "forget the past and start all over again," Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie arrived here today prepared to commence divorce proceedings against Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, one of the defendants in the sensational Honolulu murder trial of 1932.

Mrs. Massie said her divorce complaint, which will charge extreme mental cruelty, will be filed in February.

She expects to reside in a private home here.

If she follows customary procedure, she will file her suit alleging only a general charge of cruelty and then may obtain the divorce decree at a private trial.

She does not expect to ask for alimony. Lieut. Massie is stationed aboard the U. S. S. Oklahoma, at San Pedro, Calif.

Syracuse Guards Banks From Dillinger Mobsters

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP). Every bank and branch bank in Syracuse was placed under police guard today upon receipt of a report that "five or six tough-looking birds," possibly members of the Dillinger gang of Illinois, had entered the city.

Driving an automobile with Illinois license plates, the men were pursued from Homer to the suburban village of Nedrow by State Police.

Explorer Fails to Find Fawcett in Jungle Hunt

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Jan. 10 (U.P.) — Albert Winton, Hollywood explorer, returned today after nine months in the Matto Grosso jungles, searching for Col. P. H. Fawcett, lost British explorer.

He said investigations were inconclusive, although Indians indicated Fawcett may still be alive.

Bomb Wrecks Cuban Press.

Camaguey, Cuba, Jan. 10 (AP).—A huge bomb exploded in the building of the magazine Justicia today, destroying the printing plant and damaging the municipal Lyceum and four nearby stores.

Reich Chief Scolds Bishop

Von Hindenberg Is Irked by Mueller's Broad Pronouncements.

Berlin, Jan. 10 (AP).—A good old-fashioned scolding to Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller was reported today to be President Von Hindenburg's attempt to settle a controversy that for more than three months has rent the German Evangelical Church.

The devout and aged President expressed grave concern over Bishop Mueller's dictatorial actions, especially in attempting to dissolve Protestant youth groups and subordinating them to the nonsectarian Hitler youth organization.

The dissolution of the Protestant youth also means the disbanding of German Y. W. C. A.'s and Y. M. C. A.'s, it was learned.

In this connection representations will be made tomorrow to Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, on the grounds that such dissolution would react unfavorably on world Protestant opinion.

President Von Hindenburg's criticism of Dr. Mueller was considered extremely important especially in view of the "hands off" policy generally pursued by him and Chancellor Hitler in the church fight over dogma, Semitism, scripture, leadership and political affiliations.

6 Navy Planes Off for Hawaii; Facing Sea Fog

'Breakfast in Honolulu,' Is McGennis' Farewell at Golden Gate.

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP).—The massed flight of six huge Navy planes to Honolulu began at 2:22 p. m. today, the ships heading out the Golden Gate on their 2,400-mile nonstop journey, after the start had been delayed more than two hours by lack of wind.

Although the first ship took the air shortly after noon, the five other planes were forced to make numerous attempts to get in the air, the last one finally going aloft at 2:13 p. m.

McGinnis Optimistic.

"We expect to go through on schedule and eat pineapples in Honolulu tomorrow," declared Lieut. Comdr. Kneller McGinnis, commander of the flight, as he boarded his flagship.

Among those aboard the Navy planes are the following crew members: Radioman G. C. Eddy, Huntington, W. Va., on the 10-P-1, flagship; Lieut. F. A. Davis, Norfolk, Va., 10-P-2; Assistant Pilot H. N. Westerhaver, Martinsburg, W. Va., 10-P-4; Lieut. J. Perry, Greenville, S. C., 10-P-5; Radioman M. A. Wilhelm, York, Pa., 10-P-5, and Radioman A. E. Pottage, Sutherlin, Va., 10-P-6.

In beautiful three-plane formation, the six ships pointed their noses westward in the longest massed nonstop flight ever attempted. The sun shone on their glistening wings.

Strung along the wide expanse of ocean were six Navy guard ships in case the planes should be forced down.

Fog in Offing.

General weather conditions along the route indicated average to good flying conditions, although the planes were expected to encounter a fog bank some distance off the coast.

The squadron leader said he planned to fly only about 500 feet above the ocean unless the fog was thick.

The planes passed through the Golden Gate at 2:29 p. m.

Grace Roosevelt Troth Announced

Granddaughter of "Teddy" to Wed Marylander.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The engagement of Miss Grace Roosevelt, only daughter of Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., and William McMillan, of Baltimore, was announced tonight.

The wedding will take place March 3 in Christ Protestant Episcopal Church at Oyster Bay. A reception will follow at Sagamore Hill, estate of Miss Roosevelt's grandfather, the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Miss Roosevelt, whose father was Governor General of the Philippine Islands under President Hoover, was born in San Francisco and educated at Foxcroft School and the Sorbonne in Paris. At the Sorbonne she took the "diplome superieure." She made her debut two years ago, and has been a member of the Junior League.

Princess Elizabeth Wed To Baron in Bavaria

Munich, Bavaria, Jan. 10 (AP). Princess Elizabeth of Greece, 29, was married today to Karl Theodore Baron zu Toerring Yettenbach, 32, by Roman Catholic rites in the chapel of Toerring Castle.

The parents of both the bride and groom attended the ceremony as did Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, former King George of Greece, former Crown Princess Cecelie of Germany, Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, and other nobles.

Senate Votes Debt Penalty In Liquor Tax

$2-a-Gallon Levy Also Approved; Advertising Ban Repealed.

Tariff to Defaulters Held an Embargo; Ballot 40 to 39.

Adopting an amendment imposing penalties on governments defaulting on their war debts, by the close vote of 40 to 39, the Senate yesterday passed the liquor revenue bill designed to bring tax revenue into the Federal Treasury up to $600,000,000 annually as a result of the repeal of prohibition.

The Senate approved the rates of the House bill, which would levy $2 a gallon on distilled spirits, repealed the Reed amendment which forbid the use of the mails to advertise liquors in dry territory, and made the effective date of the act from 30 to 60 days after its enactment, instead of the next day.

Imposes An Embargo.

But the outstanding feature of the debate had to do with war debts, which inspired a majority to vote to place on wines and whiskies of defaulting nations a tariff which, for all practical purposes, amounts to an embargo. This provision was adopted over the warm opposition of the Democratic leadership, but they could not keep their following in line. Feeling over war debts was too keen.

Should the House accept this amendment, sponsored by Senator Bennett C. Clark (Democrat), Missouri, it would be a set-back to President Roosevelt's program for "Yankee bargaining" and the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements. Moreover, it would be certain, in the view of Democratic leaders, to inspire retaliation on the part of France and other countries subject to the penalty.

The belief existed that the House would reject the Clark amendment, since last week it voted down a similar proposal, which, however, was not specifically connected up with the war debt question. As soon as the House receives the amended bill from the Senate today, a move will be made to bring about a vote on the Clark proposal.

Britten Takes Initiative.

Representative Fred Britten (Republican), Illinois, announced he would move that the House concur in the Clark amendment. It is contended this is a preferential motion and will bring a vote on the question. Britten will have the support of Republican Floor Leader Bertram Snell in this endeavor.

Should the House adopt the Britten motion, the Clark amendment would be in the bill to stay. If his motion is rejected, the House and Senate conferees would strike it out without further ado. In all events, it appears the conferees will

Man Votes Wet, Loses His Job

Mount Rainier Electric Inspector Writes Warm Letter.

Mount Rainier's town council has dismissed Earl Wightman, electrical inspector, because he voted wet in the recent municipal referendum on the sale of liquor there.

Wightman, in a letter yesterday to the town council, charged "outstanding drys" of Mount Rainier with being "hypocrites" and said he had seen several of them buying liquor in adjoining towns.

He predicted in his letter that there would be a "reaction" at the next election, charging many drys were of that stand purely for "political purposes."

"You forgot to tell me at the time of my appointment as electrical inspector," wrote Wightman, "that I forfeited the right to think and act according to the dictates of my conscience, and that I had no personal liberties as a citizen of the United States."

Mount Rainier voted last Saturday to inform the Prince Georges County Liquor Control Board that the town was against licensing of liquor sale in its boundaries.

Admiral Grayson Shows Improvement

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 10 (AP).—Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, recuperating from an operation for kidney tumor performed Monday, had a fairly good night and his condition was improved today, Bernard M. Baruch, New York, who accompanied him, said today.

"The outlook is much better," the New Yorker said. "He's in a very good mood today. He had a fairly good night and we feel that his condition is improved. He told several stories this morning to a small group which included Mrs. Grayson, his operating physician and myself."

Princess Operated Upon.

London, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Princess Arthur of Connaught, cousin by marriage of King George, underwent an operation today. Her condition was pronounced satisfactory.

50 Hit by Ptomaine In District Hospital

Doctor, Nurses and Patients Are Victims After Lunch in Tuberculosis Institution; Food Samples to Be Analyzed to Solve Mystery.

Illness from ptomaine poison broke out in the District Tuberculosis Hospital yesterday, affecting 50 patients, doctors and nurses, a few hours after the noonday meal, according to an official statement issued last night. All are expected to recover.

Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, superintendent of the hospital, said he had ordered samples of the food, which had been on the luncheon menu, sent to the District Health Department for analysis.

"A few hours after lunch," Dr. Peabody said, "the patients began to be attacked with cramps and their stomachs were upset."

"Only 50 of the 220 patients were stricken," he asserted.

"One doctor and two nurses also were taken slightly ill," he added.

The staff of 18 nurses, two doctors and three internes were overtaxed in their efforts to care for the stricken patients, but it was not necessary to call in outside aid. After two hours of work, all the victims were reported by Dr. Peabody to be resting comfortably.

"It was a very strange incident," he said. "Many of the patients ate everything on the menu and were not affected. Others who ate only selected food became ill. I personally believe it was the ice cream which caused the illness."

The menu consisted of fried rabbit, vegetable and ice cream.

The hospital is at Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest. It is supported by private endowments and also received aid from the District government.

Gov. Pollard Urges State Liquor Sales

Message Calls for Slash in Budget, 8-Month School Term.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Richmond, Jan. 10.—New sources of revenue should be tapped to bolster State finances, Gov. Pollard told the General Assembly today.

Arresting recommendations in the Governor's message, delivered to a joint session, called for a State-operated liquor dispensary system, a minimum school term of eight months and consideration of counties in the interest of economy. He also advanced a reduced budget of $82,119,548 for the next two years.

New income will be needed, Gov. Pollard predicted, to absorb a deficit of more than $2,000,000 expected at the end of the fiscal year, July 1. He said liquor revenue should provide $1,675,000 annually and suggested an increase of from 1½ to 3 per cent in a tax on receipts of light, heat, power, water and gas companies.

Objects to Board of 3.

Passage of a bill sponsored by a majority of the State liquor control commission was asked by Gov. Pollard. He objected, however, to a control board of three full-time members, insisting only the chairman should be regularly employed.

"The plan suggested by me," Gov. Pollard said, "has been dubbed as a 'czar' plan. If this be true, the head of every department of the State government is a czar, with the exception of the corporation commission and the industrial commission, both of which are semijudicial bodies."

Poet Markham Reported Better After Poisoning

Oklahoma City, Jan. 10 (AP).—Edwin Markham, poet, was reported much improved today following his near collapse during an address here last night.

Dog Runs Himself To Death, His Tail One Jump Ahead

Swampscott, Mass., Jan. 10 (U.P.).—A dog chased his tail here until he dropped dead from exhaustion.

Patrolman Frank Bailey saw an English setter, whirling in circles after the elusive tail. He said the dog continued the "chase" for an hour, and was still circling when he left.

Later the dog was found dead.

Drastic Rule For Economy Before House

Votes Today on Proposal Paving Way for Reductions.

Paving the way for only 5 per cent Federal pay restoration in the next fiscal year, and extension of virtually all rigid economy provisions enacted last session, the House today will vote on a far-reaching rule making economy legislation in order on all appropriation bills, and denying right of amendment.

Only committee amendments to the economy sections will be in order under the rule reported by the House Rules Committee yesterday. A few hours earlier the $566,435,693 independent offices bill was reported to the House, cut $7,144,200 under budget estimates.

The rule, one of the most sweeping recommended in the history of the chamber, would smooth the way for approval of Presidential authority to cut pay within 10 per cent limits, attached as a rider to the independent offices bill.

Employes Marshal Forces.

Organized Federal employes last night were marshaling their forces in opposition. The Republican leadership and a few scattered Democrats will come to their aid today, in an effort to defeat the provision.

Individual letters were addressed to every member of Congress last night by six organizations comprising the National Legislative Council of Federal Employes, protesting the stringency of the rule and "injustices and discriminations" contained in the pending economy legislation.

At the same time, the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor, at a conference on the pay cut, decided to move for defeat of the rule. The conference condemned the Labor Department's method of compiling cost-of-living data, and charged employes selected in the department's survey were "chosen by lot."

Sharp Debate on Bill.

The Independent Offices bill, on which the rule limitation would first apply, was reported out of the full House Appropriations committ-

Capital Pair Stay In Bridge Tourney

Stockvis, Thurtell Fourth in Field of 20.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Twenty pairs, sixteen from New York and four from other cities, headed down the home-stretch tonight in the first annual contract bridge championship of the United States Bridge Association.

Four surviving pairs from out of town represented Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis. Ely Culbertson and his partner, Theodore A. Lightner, led, and the Washington pair, A. P. Stockvis and Leroy Thurtell, were fourth.

N. Y. Realtors Sue Rockefeller For 10 Million on 'Unfair' Acts

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., and associates in the Rockefeller Center development were charged with unfair competition in soliciting tenants, in a $10,000,000 damage suit filed today by real estate interests controlled by August Heckscher, multimillionair philanthropist.

Use of coercion to force businesses in which they have an interest to vacate leases and move to Rockefeller Center was alleged in the complaint. The defendants include Winthrop W. Aldrich, banker and brother-in-law of Rockefeller, and Nelson A. Rockefeller, a son.

The plaintiffs are the Anahma Realty Corporation and the Broadway Exchange Corporation. Heckscher, recovered from a collapse on his recent eighty-fifth birthday, is president of the former. Three years ago he was reckoned as the largest owner of income-producing real estate in New York.

Rockefeller Center was characterized as a "modern Frankenstein" stepping "through the door of special privilege into the realm of destructive competition" in one section of the suit, which alleged violation of an act of Congress allowing the Center to operate as a bonded warehouse for the display of foreign goods free of duty.

"As plaintiffs are informed and believe," the complaint sets forth,

River Treaty Fight Forced By Roosevelt

Special Message Asking Passage Given Senate.

Wagner Presents Report Opposing Lake Pact Adoption.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Stepping for the first time into a sharp Senate fight, President Roosevelt in a special message yesterday urged prompt ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada for "broad National reasons."

The President accompanied his message with a 7,500-word report to him from Frank N. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, dealing with the technical details of the project and contending that "the navigation project is comparable in economic value and importance to the Panama Canal."

It is the navigation aspect of the waterway project which has stirred up bitter hostility in the Senate, and it will be over it that the Senate will battle, when within a few days, perhaps today, the St. Lawrence treaty is brought up for debate. Although it may be started today, the debate is expected to last a long time, sandwiched between the transaction of legislative business.

Even before the President's message reached the Capitol, one of his most loyal and hard-hitting "New Deal" lieutenants, Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, laid before the Senate a minority report from the Foreign Relations Committee controverting virtually every point made by Mr. Roosevelt in favor of ratification.

The New Yorker, in his attack on the St. Lawrence treaty, ironically enough, cited the philosophy and principles underlying the "New Deal" in his effort to show that the proposed waterway was unnecessary, far more costly than estimated, and "diametrically opposed" to the present farm relief program.

Treaty Warmly Opposed.

This clash of views between the President and one of his Senate leaders illustrated the feeling which exists over the St. Lawrence treaty, which will require a two-third vote for ratification. The latest reliable polls of the Senate indicate that it is doubtful whether at this time a majority of that body could be mustered in favor of the pact.

Consequently it appears that if President Roosevelt wins this fight, the first real one he has entered with Congress, he will have to turn on what is termed the "heat" under recalcitrant members of his party. By resorting to the use of patronage—and other cracking of the party whip, Mr. Roosevelt may bring some of the treaty opponents into line.

Whether he is ready to do this has not been revealed. But it is significant that he has pressed the treaty fight, making it an Administration issue, whereas he has carefully backed away from other impending fights in Congress, notably over power to negotiate reciprocal tariffs last spring and the World Court issue.

Unless the President, however, is ready to use every device within his power to whip opponents of the treaty into line, it is clear to everyone on Capitol Hill that the fight is lost, even if it gets to a vote. The latter is doubtful, since the militant bloc opposing the treaty intends to discuss its provisions for days and weeks.

Rail Interests Aroused.

Every Senator from an Atlantic seaboard State north of Virginia, except the two from Vermont, now stand opposed to the treaty, including the two Senators from New York, which stands to gain the most from a St. Lawrence power development. The Illinois Senators and those from States in the Mississippi Valley are opposed to it.

In addition a number of other Senators are opposed to it. The railroads of the country have fought the waterway proposal for years and they are loyally supported by the railway brotherhoods, regarded as the most effective lobby organization in Washington. The latter fear that building of the waterway would increase the ranks of unemployed railroad men.

Holds Fear "Imaginary."

Campbell Elected Chase Bank Head

Succeeds Aldrich, Named Board Chairman.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—H. Donald Campbell today was elected president of the Chase National Bank, succeeding Winthrop W. Aldrich, who becomes chairman of the board. Besides serving as president, Aldrich also had acted as chairman of the governing board.

Campbell was promoted from a vice president in the bank. Charles S. McCain retired as chairman of the board, while John McHugh withdrew as chairman of the bank's executive committee.

Brown Conducted 'Spoils Conference,' Senate Witness Says.

Claim He Dictated Awards to Lines

Letters Show Flier Given T.A.T. Stock and Then Advised to Sell.

By Martha Dalrymple.

Flowers for Postoffice officials during the Hoover Administration and $250,000 worth of air line stock for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in consideration of his "extremely valuable services" were among the gift items revealed at yesterday's Senate investigation into the award of air mail contracts.

Further involving former Postmaster General Brown in the "spoils conferences" at which it is said he dictated that contracts should be awarded to members of the "aviation trust," Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, committee chairman, called witnesses to testify about what he terms "irregularities" in air mail contract awards.

Another Postoffice employe was called to substantiate previous testimony that Brown had ordered the files of his department burned a few days before he left office last March 4. Black revealed he has not decided yet whether to call Brown as a witness, but said his committee would be "very happy" to hear anything the former Cabinet member might have to say in answer to the charges, if Brown asked to appear.

Pennsy Official on Stand.

D. M. Sheaffer, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and chairman of the executive committee of the Transcontinental Air Transport, which is affiliated with the Aviation Corporation of Delaware, a holding company, was the day's chief witness.

He related that Brown had suggested to officials of the company that they merge with the Western Airways Express. Otherwise, he said, it was plainly indicated they would not obtain the coveted air mail contract. Black read into the record a letter written by Sheaffer, in which he said:

Execution Comes in Sudden Move as Holland Appeals Verdict.

Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—The swift flash of a beheading knife ended the life today of Marinus Van Der Lubbe, only one of five Communists convicted, following burning of the Reichstag building in Berlin last February.

The execution of the 24-year-old Dutch stonemason was unexpected. The Dutch government had asked for commutation of the death sentence, but the only result was an order that he be beheaded instead of hanged.

Van Der Lubbe, from his solitary cell, moved stolidly up the steps to the block where the headsman, in top hat and frock coat, awaited. The block had been erected in the inner court of the Saxon State Prison.

Van Der Lubbe, who confessed, stood silently as the headsman prepared the knife and block. His head bowed. The verdict was read and Van Der Lubbe was asked whether he had any last words to say. He mumbled a reply and shook his head.

The knife in the chill, semidarkness creaked as it was raised. An instant it later crashed with a heavy thud and the Dutchman's head toppled into the basket.

Amsterdam, Jan. 10 (AP).—Popular indignation flared in various sections today at news of the execution of Marinus Van Der Lubbe in Leipzig for burning of the German Reichstag Building.

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 10 (AP). Rudolf Lindau, who shot and killed Police Inspector Perske from ambush August 27, 1931, was beheaded today.

Maj. L. W. Fagg Dies When Train Hits Auto

Union City, Pa., Jan. 10 (AP).—Maj. L. W. Fagg, United States Army, was killed when his car was struck by an Erie Railroad passenger train at a grade crossing one mile west of Union City this afternoon.

Maj. Fagg was en route from Corry to Meadville on his annual Federal inspection tour of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Emma Goldman Plans N. Y. Trip in February

Toronto, Jan. 10 (AP).—Miss Emma Goldman, 64-year-old radical, barred 14 years ago from the United States, intimated today she would go to New York about February 1.

The State Department at Washington said yesterday she could return to the United States for 90 days, providing she engages in no political activity.

Federal Threat Ends Milk War

Chicago Children in Need as Truce Is Signed; 9 Trains Stopped.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Chicago milk blockade was ended today as the Federal Government moved toward intervention against interference with interstate shipments and with the United States mails.

Settlement of the strike was in the form of a truce signed by representatives of the farmers, the big Chicago dairies, and even the independent dairies which in the past have refused to guarantee any minimum price to producers.

Under terms of the truce, a mediation board of three members, one from the distributors, one from the farmers and a third to be selected by the first two, will be named to agree on a fair price to be paid farmers.

The settlement came as violence and sabotage in Chicago and the territory for 100 miles around reached the point of virtual civil war. Thousands of gallons of milk had been spilled on highways, trucks and dairies wrecked, nine trains stopped and searched for milk, and dairymen slugged.

When the embargo ended there was not a drop of milk for sale in Chicago stores. Even families with small children could obtain none and deliveries to hospitals were thrcatened.

2 Die as Anti-Nazi Riots Grip Austria

Police Fire Into Throng of Discharged Printers.

Vienna, Austria, Jan. 10 (U.P.). Violence sweeping Austria during the government's anti-Nazi campaign broke out afresh today. One person was killed and scores wounded.

The death was reported from Klagenfurt, where newly armed guards and emergency police fired into a mob of discharged Nazi printers. Little hope was held out for two who were wounded.

Police had ordered the printers to disperse. The mob grew unruly, instead, and the guards were called out to aid the regular policemen in the ensuing battle. In Vienna, eight bombs exploded during a hectic day.

House to Vote On Sharp Rule For Economies

Move Would Add Reductio Authority to All Fiscal Bills.

tee only after a sharp debate. Republican members manifested opposition to extending the pay cut by voting "no" on hte motion to report the bill.

Later, an assault on the "dictatorial" attitude taken by the Rules Committee in attempting to change the normal procedure of the House, was loosed on the House floor by Representative Benjamin K. Focht (Republican), Pennsylvania.

One slight advantage was gained by employes in the appropriation bill reported yesterday. The committee decided not to continue impounding provision, "as the estimated amounts due to the savings have been eliminated in the submission of the budget estimates." Elimination of the impounding provision, however, may operate to reduce the amount of administrative furlough, where funds were turned back to a bureau from "nonfilling of vacanies."

The ban upon automatic promotions in the Government service was continued for another fiscal year with one modification—Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers promoted to fill vacancies in rank would receive increased compensation commensurate with that rank.

$160,000,000 Saving.

Chairman Clifton A. Woodrum, of the Independent Offices Appropriations subcommittee, estimated the economy provisions, allowing for modifications, will save the Government $160,000,000 a year.

Appropriations for independent establishments carried in the bill were cut $59,206,593 under current allowances, with the Veterans Administration absorbing $56,206,593 of the reduction. The Veterans Administration received the largest single appropriation from the $566,435,093 measure—$544,210,000.

The committee cut veterans' appropriations $7,000,000 under budget estimates, largely through reducing allotments for Civil War and private bill pensions, which may have to be made up in a deficiency measure.

Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of the Veterans' Bureau, told the committee his bureau dropped 100,000 veterans from the presumptive rolls because of the economy act.

Only in two instances were budget estimates increased—an appropriation of $50,000 to repair the White House and $10,000 to pay Smithsonian Institution's printing expenses.

In several cases, however, appropriations were increased over current allotments—the Civil Service Commission receiving $426,000 more; the Federal Power Commission, $67,303 additional; the Federal Trade Commission, $57,730 additional, and the Interstate Commerce Commission, $240,970 more.

Estimates Compared.

Estimates carried in the bill for the various independent agencies were as follows:

White House, $442,050, compared with $369,483 appropriated last year; Board of Mediation, $125,564, compared with $120,000 last year; Board of Tax Appeals, $502,116, compared with $490,000 last year; Civil Service Commission, $1,476,000, compared with $1,050,000 last year; Employes Compensation Commission, $4,353,410, compared with $4,169,000 last year; Federal Power Commission, $277,303, compared with $210,000 last year; Federal Radio Commission, $666,885, compared with $640,000 last year; Federal Trade Commission, $1,242,730, compared with $1,185,000 last year; General Accounting Office, $3,461,920, compared with $3,280,000 last year; Interstate Commerce Commission, $5,430,970, compared with $5,190,000 last year; Naval Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, $726,492, compared with $695,000 last year; Smithsonian Institution, $874,024, compared with $820,000 last year; Tariff Commission, $840,898, compared with $800,000 last year; United States Geographic Board, $9,440, compared with $9,000 last year; and the Veterans' Administration, $546,005,891, compared with $581,988,000 last year.

The $426,000 increase for the Civil Service Commission was attributed to increased retirements and examinations, while more money was allotted the Federal Power Commission to allow that agency to take on help to meet a personnel shortage. Additional funds were allotted the Smithsonian to allow for publication of scientific reports.

Chairman James R. Buchanan of the House Appropriations Gommittee may open the fight for support of the President's pay-cut recommendations today by reading a letter from Mr. Roosevelt himself, setting forth cost of living data on which the recommended continuation of the slash was based.

Virginia Assembly Speeds Up Session

Senate Immediately Starts Work on 3 Major Bills.

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—The General Assembly of Virginia was opened and organized with unusual speed today.

In the Senate, the preliminaries were scarcely over when three bills of major importance, two of them dealing with liquor traffic after repeal of the Layman prohibition law and one with redistricting the State for Congressional purposes, went into the hopper.

The liquor control bill, brought in by a committee created by the special session of the Assembly in August, called for a State monopoly dispensary system, to be directed by a three-man board, enjoying equal authority.

The only dissenting member of the Senate members of the commission, Senator Henry T. Wickham, of Hanover, introduced a bill of his own. It carried also the name of Senator Fuller, of Richmond. It provided for the handling of liquor by private licensees.

sires of the Postoffice Department, we must form the combination."

In relating details of the gift of the T. A. T. stock to Lindbergh, Sheaffer said it had been given in consideration of Lindbergh's experience and "his invaluable services" to the company. The gift was of 25,000 shares of stock at $10 a share.

Cautioned on Use of Name.

In a letter from C. M. Keys, president of the company, to Lindbergh, it was suggested that very little of the stock be put in the name of the famous aviator.

"Because when you sell it," explained the Keys letter, "and I hope you will sell part of it on the first favorable opportunity, either the delivery of the stock in your own name or the transfer of it on the books would excite a lot of attention which is quite unnecessary. Col. Breckinridge will no doubt agree to this advice."

It was suggested also that Col. Breckinridge, who was identified as Lindbergh's attorney, be consulted, "in order that all the records shall be clear for income tax purposes," and to see if the following procedure met with his approval:

"1. I will deliver to you the check for $250,000 cash, together with a brief memorandum showing exactly what it is for.

"2. I will deliver to you certificates for 25,000 shares of stock and receive back either the Transcontinental Air Transport check indorsed or your personal check, as Col. Breckinridge may advise.

"3. This will complete the first part of our trade and leave you with the stock in your possession."

Stock Soars on Deal.

Sheaffer said the par value of the stock was $10, but when Black suggested that it "suddenly went up on the market, when it was announced that Lindbergh had joined the company," the witness said he knew nothing of the stock's market fluctuations.

Black did not pursue interrogation on the Lindbergh feature, but introduced in the record another letter from Keys, dated May 23, 1928, two weeks earlier than the first letter, in which the same stock gift was mentioned, but in addition Lindbergh was presented with an option on an additional 25,000 shares at $10 a share. The only condition was that the flying colonel should still be engaged in business for the company at the time the option began.

Furthermore, the company agreed to pay Lindbergh $10,000 a year to be chairman of its technical committee, the evidence showed. He was allowed to make any other business connection he wished, provided only it was not in competition with the T. A. T.

Hainer Hinshaw, at one time secretary to former Secretary of War James W. Good and later an official of Aviation Corporation, told the Senators that in his latter connection he had frequently given Christmas presents of cigars and flowers to Postoffice officials, including Brown.

Says Several Got Gifts.

At first he said he thought the flowers were sent to Assistant Postmaster General Wadsworth, who was in charge of air mail, on the occasion of the birth of twins. But when Black put into the record a florist's bill, Hinshaw remembered that his floral donations had included several other officials and had usually been sent on Christmas.

Hinshaw further revealed that, at Brown's request, his company had given assurance that it would not bid for a contract on the Atlanta-Memphis-Tulsa air route, in the event that the Robertson Line made a bid. It was the plan, he said, to "take care" of such lines as the Robertson. Hinshaw said the line was never established, despite his company's forebearance.

Relating details of a meeting that Brown called to "revamp" the air mail map, Hinshaw said that the Postmaster General wanted three competitive transcontinental routes set up. Brown said he wanted to do it by extension of existing contracts, not by additional advertised bids.

Contracts Used as Club.

His company wanted the south transcontinental route, said Hinshaw, and was informed it would have to buy out the three passenger lines operating on the proposed route.

"We understood that we could get no contract until we had taken care of these lines," he said.

The meetings held in the Postoffice Department at this time are the ones that Black referred to as "spoils conferences."

When the chairman asked him if he and other air-line officials knew beforehand who would get the contracts, Hinshaw replied:

"Well we didn't think anybody else would get ours. It was just the way Brown worked it out."

During these conferences, the Comptroller General laid down a ruling that no extensions should be granted without competitive bids.

"Brown almost had a stroke of apoplexy when that ruling came out," Hinshaw said.

In his attempt to prove that Brown had usurped undue dictatorial powers over air mail contract awards, Black brought out that the former Postoffice head had arbitrated a dispute over property value between T. A. T. and Western Airways Express.

Royally Entertained.

Correspondence was introduced showing that when Brown journeyed to California to settle the question, air line officials had given him a "brand-new Lincoln automobile" for his use and had made elaborate preparations for his entertainment.

Seeking further information about the records missing from the Postoffice Department, Black questioned Hinshaw closely about several letters he had written Brown.

"You dictated those letters for mailing, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"As far as you know they were mailed and received by Brown?"

"Yes."

"And yet we can't find them," concluded the chairman.

Sheaffer probably will be recalled to finish his testimony today, in addition to Fred G. Coburn, former head of American Airways, and officials of the Delta Air Lines of Texas.

Richmond Bankers Vote Stock Issue

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—Stockholders of the State Planters Bank & Trust Co. at a special meeting today ratified the recommendation of the directors that $2,000,000 in preferred stock be issued.

Stockholders will be given opportunity to subscribe prorata to the offering, which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has offered to purchase.

With the preferred stock issuance, the institution will have a capital structure of $4,000,000, President Julien Hill said.

Text of Waterway Message

President Urges Senate to Adopt Treaty, Warning Canada Otherwise Will Rule Great Lakes-to-Sea Channel; Cites Benefits to All U. S.

To the Senate:

I request the consideration of ratification by the Senate of the so-called St. Lawrence Treaty with Canada. Broad National reasons lead me, without hestitation, to advocate the treaty. There are two main considerations—navigation and power.

Canada and the United States are possessed of a natural flow of water from the center of the continent to the ocean—a flow which throughout the greater part of its length is today available for navigation by large-size vessels. A system of locks at the eastern end of Lake Superior, a dredged channel between Lake Huron and Lake Erie, and another series of great locks between Lake Erie and and Lake Ontario provide free and adequate navigation to a point well down the St. Lawrence River.

From there a series of three rapids, all of them within a distance of 120 miles, now impede navigation by ocean-going vessels, but a Canadian canal already provides facilities for smaller ships. This Canadian canal now is used substantially up to its capacity.

Cites Advantage to U. S.

Two of the three rapids are wholly in Canadian territory; the other is in the so-called international section. A great power development at the Beauharnois Rapids in Canada is already nearing completion and locks for ocean-going ships have been planned for and could readily be built at a low cost as part of the plan. This means that only two additional series of locks are required for a complete and continuous seaway from Duluth to salt water.

I call your attention to the simple fact that Canada alone can, if desired, build locks at the Lachine Rapids and at the international sector and thus provide a seaway wholly within Canadian control without treaty participation by the United States. This, however, would be a reversal of the policy of cooperation which the United State and Canada have continuously maintained for generations.

I want to make it very clear that this great international highway for shipping is without any question going to be completed in the near future and that this completion should be carried out by both nations instead of one.

I am sending you herewith a summary of data prepared at my request by governmental agencies. This summary, in its relation to the economic aspects of the seaway, shows from the broad national point of view, first, that commerce and transportation will be greatly benefited and, secondly, local fears of economic harm to special localities or to special interests are grossly exaggerated.

It is, I believe, a historic fact that every great improvement directed to better commercial communications, whether in the case of railroads into new territory, or the deepening of great rivers, or the building of canals, or even the cutting of the Isthmus of Panama, have all been subjected to opposition on the part of local interests which conjure up imaginary fears and fail to realize that improved transportation results in increased commerce benefiting directly or indirectly all sections.

Denies Harm to Rails.

For example, I am convinced that the building of the St. Lawrence Seaway will not injure the railroads or throw their employes out of work; that it will not in any way interfere with the proper use of the Mississippi River or the Missouri River for navigation.

Let us be wholly frank in saying that it is better economics to send grain or other raw materials from our Northwest to Europe via the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence than it is to send them around three sides of a square—via Texas ports or the Mississippi, thence, through the Gulf of Mexico and thence, from the southern end of the North Atlantic to its northern end. In this illustration, it is well to remember that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

I am satisfied that the treaty contains adequate provision for the needs of the Chicago drainage district and for navigation between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi River. A special report from the Chief of Engineers of the War Department covers this subject.

On the affirmative side, I subscribe to the definite belief that the completion of the seaway will greatly serve the economic and transportation needs of a vast area of the United States and should, therefore, be considered solely from the National point of view.

The other great objective provided for in the treaty relates to the development of electric power. As you know, I have advocated the development of four great power areas in the United States, each to serve as a yardstick and each to be controlled by Government or Governmental agencies. The Tennessee Valley plants and projects in the Southeast, the Boulder Dam on the Colorado River in the Southwest, the Columbia River projects in the Northwest are already under construction.

The St. Lawrence development in the Northeast calls for action.

This river is a source of incomparably cheap power located in proximity to a great industrial and rural market and within transmission distance of millions of domestic consumers.

N. Y. Bill Already Passed.

The Legislature of the State of New York by unanimous vote set up the necessary State machinery during my term as Governor of New York and the State stands ready to cooperate with the Federal Government in the distribution of power in accordance with what I believe is today a definite National policy.

Power in the international sector of the St. Lawrence can not be developed without a treaty between the United States and Canada. On the other hand, Canada can develop a huge block of new power at the two other rapids which lie wholly within Canadian territory. Here again, as in the case of navigation, it is better in every way that we should maintain the historic principle of accord with Canada in the mutual development of the two nations.

I have not stressed the fact that the starting of this great work will put thousands of unemployed to work. I have preferred to stress the great future advantages to our country and especially the fact that all of us should view this treaty in the light of the benefits which it confers on the people of the United States as a whole.

Rockefeller Sued For $10,000,000

"the Congress of the United States was induced to pass said act upon a representation by defendants that they would thus be enabled to import articles from foreign countries solely for purposes of public exhibition, but that after the enactment of said act, defendant (Rockefeller Center) publicly advertised that by virtue thereof, this defendant was empowered to import, and permit its tenants to import, goods, wares and merchandise to be used not as samples only but for far-flung merchandising, and thus carry on the practices of trade without the requirements of capital with which to pay duty."

Sell Goods in Bond.

By virtue of the Congressional Act, the complaint alleged, tenants of Rockefeller Center risplay and sell goods in bond for a term of as much as two years from date of importation.

This provision was used as an inducement, it was alleged, to draw tenants from other buildings, including some from buildings owned by the Anahma Corporation.

Two of the buildings in the center, in which foreign firms with American offices are located, are the British Empire Building and the Maison Francaise. An Italian building is under construction. Some of the practices alleged are:

Paying tenants in other buildings to ignore present leases.

Rent Below Cost.

Taking tenants at prices less than required by the center to meet taxes and actual cost of operation, assuming at large costs the leases of tenants of other buildings, thus inducing them to purchase space.

The plaintiffs charged the Rockefeller associates with seeking to create a monopoly on rentals in the area about the Center.

There was no comment on the suit forthcoming from officials at Rockefeller Center.

Heckscher has given many millions to his foundation for children. His Anahma Corporation has extensive holdings in the midtown Manhattan area.

Shot in Brain

But Boy's Mind Is Clear; to Leave Hospital.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Mysteriously shot through the brain with a .22 caliber bullet when going home from school early in December, Luther Lamb, 14, is expected to leave a hospital here this week.

Although the bullet passed through the rear lobe of the brain and remains lodged in the inner part of his skull, the boy's mind now is clear. At first it was thought he could not survive.

Johnson to Ask Drastic Cuts In Work Hours

Industry Must Shorten Labor's Day to Absorb Idle, He Asserts.

mobile code had been changed to provide for a 40-hour week instead of a 35-hour week.

Johnson explained that the original automobile code, written to run for three months, had been agreed upon with the understanding that the working-hour provision could be changed at the end of the initial period. He said NRA was under obligations to make the change.

The NRA administrator added that, although an effort was being made not to encourage drifters to go to Detroit and other automobile centers to obtain temporary employment, business generally was not being discouraged from employing floating labor.

Labor Census Unsatisfactory.

The conference on decreasing the working hours of labor will be faced with the fact that 4,000,000 persons will be thrown out of employment when the CWA employment arrangement ends in May. This number will be added to the number that must be absorbed by industry if unemployment is to end.

Johnson indicated that he did not consider the recent reemployment census had obtained satisfactory results. He said only 861,000 employers answered questionnaires asking them how many persons they had employed up to October 14. He said their replies indicated only 2,750,000 persons had been reemployed, as compared with the Department of Labor's estimate of 4,000,000.

The American Federation of Labor recently estimated that 10,702,000 persons still are unemployed in the United States. It is estimated that 6,400,000 persons had been given employment since recovery activities started.

This was accomplished, it was pointed out, by a 10 per cent upturn in business and an average reduction of 4½ hours in weekly working time.

Weirton Case "Not His Baby."

In speaking of charges that code provisions are being made a basis for deliberate price fixing, Johnson said that NRA officials will hear any complaints of this kind and that persons who have been criticized will be called in and given an opportunity to explain.

Johnson refused to comment on delays in bringing promised prosecution against the Weirton Steel Co. for alleged violation of a Labor Board order in holding company union election.

"That isn't my baby," Johnson said. "It's between the Labor Board and the Department of Justice."

He aded, however, that he had attended a conference at the Department of Labor Tuesday in which the Weirton case was discussed.

Airport to Be Built Near New Market

Endless Caverns Donates Land to City.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). The necessary land being donated by the Endless Caverns, Inc., to the town of New Market, an airport will be constructed in Rockingham County, near New Market, and will be used as an intermediate landing field by the American Airways, Inc., it was announced today.

Clark M. Kee, airport engineer of the American Airways, has approved the site. Necessary construction at the airport would be done with $20,000 in CWA money.

Mr. Kee says the airport will be an intermediate landing field on the 400-mile American Aiways route from Cincinnati to Washington. He also stated that the Shendandoah Valley offers an ideal air lane between the Blue Ridge and Allegheny Mountains. This airport will be the third in the valley, the other two being at Winchester and at Waynesboro.

Road Bonds Issue Before W.Va. Court

Violation of Constitution Is Censured by Bennett.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Arguments were heard by the State Supreme Court today on the petition by Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, for a rehearing of the act permitting the State to assume road and school bonds of subdivisions.

"Necessity can not justify violation of the constitution," Herman Bennett, of Charleston, declared. "The Legislature must provide for existing obligations and take care of other things afterward," he said. "The question today is whether we shall continue functions of local government or continue constitutional provisions."

Fox said that 33 of the 55 counties will be unable to function because most of their taxes will be required to meet debts. "Holding to strict construction of the constitution is no way of making this constitutional amendment workable," he declared.

Fight on Waterway Treaty Adoption Faces Roosevelt

nomic harm" were "imaginary" and grossly exaggerated" and should be laid aside in favor of a realization of what an improved transportation system would mean to al sections and groups.

He expressed conviction that building the waterway "will not injure the railroads or throw their employes out of work, that it will not in any way interefere with the proper use of the Mississippi River or the Missouri River for navigation." Moreover, he argued all the needs of the Chicago drainage district have been safeguarded.

Twice during the message he referred to the fact thta Canada may, and probably would, build the waterway if the United States refuses to be a party to the project. He predicted the project would give works to thousands of unemployed. The President cited at length the advantages of the proposed electric power development.

Senator Wagner, on the other hand, declared he favored "the public development of cheap and abundant water power" and that he did not oppose the treaty on that score. He would have the power development aspect of the project undertaken, freeing it from "a wasteful and unneeded navigation program." "Even on the power side of the question, he asserted, "the benefits are equally clearly on the Canadian side."

Conditions Have Changed.

The New Yorker argued that changes in our economic life since 1929 have been far-reaching and have converted the factual basis of society, dealing with the distribution of population, employment, the character of domestic industry and foreign trade. Superimposed on these, he added, have come "profound alterations in our characteristic methods of remedying economic stress."

In view of "this recognized realignment it is astounding that so many people are willnng to go forward" with the St. Laurance waterway on the basis of "outworn economic studies" made a decade ago.

"In doing so," he added, "they are paying service to a theory of farm aid that has been completely exploded and that has been supplanted by a totally different type of agricultural relief. They are pursuing a philosophy of foreign trade that was disastrous in its consequences and that this country has evinced its intent to relinquish by every legislative and administrative act of the New Deal.

"They are striving to improve our transportation facilities by the infusion of a new competitive element at a time when we know that competition has played havoc with transportation and when we are committed to the commencement of a great program to unify and coordinate our transportation facilities. Seldom has any movement persisted so stubbornly in the face of the discrediting of every doctrine which gave it birth."

U. S. Being Burdened.

Senator Wagner denounced efforts to raise "charges of sectionalism and provincialism," asserting he would not base his opposition on the issue "whether the whole United States is being saddled with inordinate burdens to confer primary benefits upon the areas tributory to the Great Lakes." nor would he argue that New York was paying too large a share of the cost nor would he "decry a subsidy to the farmers."

He said the only proper issue is: "Will the cost of the St. Lawrence project to the people of the United States as a whole be more than the forseeable return to these people?" For himself, he added, he was convinced that "the project is demonstrably unsound."

The New Yorker contended that the cost of the project to the United States would be $573,136,000 instead of the $272,453,000 claimed in the McNinch report.

Senate Votes Debt Embargo In Liquor Tax

reach agreement today on the bill sending it to the White House before the week ends.

Senator Clark's amendment read as follows:

"There shall be levied, collected and paid upon all wines and distilled spirits when imported into the United States or into any of its possessions (except the Philippine Islands, Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the Island of Guam), or when withdrawn from bond for consumption or use, of such wines or distilled spirits are exported directly or indirectly from any foreign country which is in default on its national indebtedness to the United States incurred in connection with the World War, the following duties, respectively:

"On wines, $3 per gallon; on distilled spirits, $5 per gallon. Such duties shall be in addition to the duties prescribed under existing law; and the provisions of existing law (including penalties) shall apply to the assessment and collection of such duties."

Doubles Present Rates.

These duties would double the Hawley-Smoot rates, already regarded as high.

None objected to the merits of the Clark proposal, an indication of how strongly the Senate feels about the nonpayment of the war debts. The Democratic leaders—Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, and Leader Joseph T. Robinson attacked it on the ground that it was the wrong procedure to arrive at a good end.

Senator Harrison urged that all proposals relating to tariffs and war debts retaliation be held in abeyance until the President submits his message on the question, causing surprise with the suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt would use the powers to negotiate reciprocal tariff treaties he soon would seek from Congress to induce payment of the debts.

The Finance Committee chairman pleaded with the Senate "not to clog the wheels," but to let the President and his diplomatic agents handle the tariff and war debt question in their own way without restrictions.

Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, contended that there was no reason why the defaulting nations should not be punished and that the question was germane to the bill before the Senate. Moreover, he contended that since the country apparently would get nothing from war debts, the American grape growers and wine manufacturers might as well get more protection from foreign competition.

Norris on Bandwagon.

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, joined the parade of advocates for the amendment, asking "why is it we propose an amendment that everybody wants and none is for?" He said the time to express an attitude on the war debts had come.

The roll call on the Clark amendment follows:

Harrison Strategy Fails.

The result of the vote so surprised Democratic leaders that Senator Harrison sprang to his feet, demanding a rereading of the roll call. He apparently hoped that by making this play for time, another negative vote might be rounded up. But his strategy failed, and the result of 40 to 39 stood.

Senator Harrison opened debate on the bill by contending that he wanted it passed before adjournment and without change. He said the bill should be "a word of optimism and encouragement to those fussing about a balanced budget." He said that taxes imposed by the bill, along with levies already in effect, would produce $627,000,000 for the Treasury, including the beer tax.

Actually, the bill imposes taxes which would produce only about $150,000,000 above revenues expected from existing laws. President Roosevelt estimated the figure for increased liquor revenue at only $50,000,000. The Treasury, also, does not agree with the estimates of the experts on Capitol Hill.

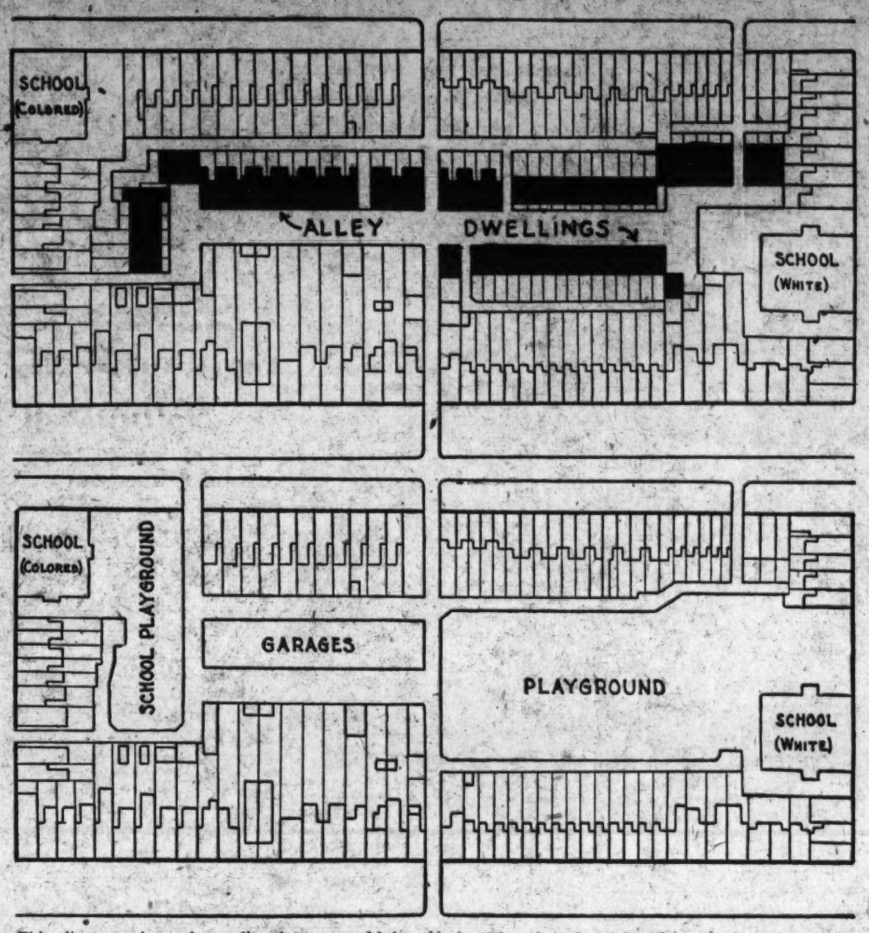

Senator Harrison contended that the Hill's estimate that distilled spirits would reach 140,000,000 gallons a year was correct, and the Treasury figure of 85,000,000 gallons was too low. Recalling that over a period of years prior to prohibition, the country consumed from 1.2 to 1.5 gallons of spirits per capita, he said that would indicate, with the present population, an annual consumption of 175,000,000 gallons.

Freed From Curse.

"But since our people have had prohibition and have been freed," Senator Harrison said, his face breaking into a broad grin, "from the curse of drink, it was thought fair to use 140,000,000 gallons as the estimated consumption."

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, made a plea for reducing the tax on still wines below the 10 cents a gallon imposed by the bill, but he did not press his proposal with an amendment. A lower wine tax, the New Yorker argued, would promote temperance and agricultural welfare.

Alleys Must Be Removed at Once; Have Bred Crime for 4 Decades

Cost of Minor Import, Homes Commission Report Says.

(This is the fifth of a series of ten articles on the hidden slums of Washington.)

By Felix Bruner.

Attempts to solve the problem of Washington's alleys have for many years taken the form of improving the alleys themselves. Along with this improvement has for years gone the insistence of some persons interested in ridding the city of the alley menace that the only possible solution is the complete elimination of alleys. This has now become the accepted plan.

With the delinquency and crime rate of the alleys three and a half times that of the streets and with the death rate more than four and a half times that of the streets, it is evident that Washington can no longer afford to compromise with the situation. A major operation is indicated.

That the alleys are breeders of crime was recognized as far back as 1894 when the Department of Labor made a study of 191 dwellings in 35 alleys.

Criminals in Alley.

"It is no secret that many of the alleys hide criminals," the report said. This report and others made at about the same time caught the interest of Congress. It enacted legislation authorizing conversion of the alleys into minor streets.

In most cities there is little difference between an alley and a minor street. In fact, they are almost synonymous. In Washington, as has previously been explained, alleys are not thoroughfares in the usual sense. They are narrow courts, sometimes with only one entrance and usually with several arms extending off the longer court.

This description is repeated to indicate how difficult it is to convert Washington alleys into minor streets. There simply is no possibility of such conversion in most cases because the alleys in no way resemble streets.

It was not until 1899 that there was any possibility of continuing the work of actually eliminating alley dwellings. Then Congress authorized destruction of unsafe houses. In 1906 it created a Board for the Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings.

Court Halted Board.

This board went ahead as rapidly as it could where it was shown that buildings could not be made sanitary. In 1927 a court decision ended the work of the board. The decision resulted from a dispute over payment for the buildings destroyed.

Theodore Roosevelt apparently was the first President to interest himself actively in alleys. He urged their elimination in a message to Congress in 1904. He also created a Homes Commission and, as a part of that organization, a committee on improvement of existing houses and elimination of insanitary and alley houses.

The report of that committee, made on December 17, 1908, goes into great detail to describe obstacles that had been put in the way of alley elimination by both property owners and officials. There apparently was considerable difficulty in reaching any agreement on the question of assessing benefits and damages.

"While the committee," the report said, "is fully alive to the perplexities connected with the alley problem, it is also impressed with the necessity of action in regard to it.

"It does not wish to enlarge on the well-known reasons for opening the alleys, but it can not admit that it is not worth while, even if the process is expensive, to put the city on a proper basis; and thorough constructive work is, and will be, impossible as long as so many blocks, fair on the outside, contain these centers of vice and misery.

Sought Early Attention.

"To refuse to remove the alleys because it costs something is like refusing to escape blindness by the removal of a cataract because of the fees of the oculist."

Following presentation of this report, the President's Homes Committee adopted a resolution containing, among other things, this paragraph:

"Resolved, That the Commissioners be urged to give prompt and constant attention to the alley problem under their present plan, in order that, either by the general law or by special act, all such alleys may, within a reasonable time, be done away with."

That resolution was adopted 26 years ago. The alleys still exist. Evidently a "reasonable time" is more than 26 years.

Helping to bring the alleys to the consciousness of Washington people, Charles Frederick Weller made a complete study of the alleys, publishing his findings in a book called "Neglected Neighbors in the National Capital." This book was a scorching indictment of alley conditions. It carried a preface by President Theodore Roosevelt.

Weller, among other things, went into the matter of immorality in the alleys. He learned that there were more illegitimate children than legitimate ones—that the conventions and marital laws of the community had hardly penetrated into the alleys.

Few Men in Alleys.

He found that alley homes, such as they were, were usually headed by women. He pointed out that among Negroes the women seem to have less difficulty in finding work, being able to obtain employment in households of white people and to take in washing. Thus they stay more permanently in one place.

Social workers who have inspected the alleys recently have remarked on the fact that few men are to be found in them even now. The makers of the city directory evidently found the same situation. Take a look at the alley listings. You will find that perhaps 90 per cent of the names listed in the city directory are the names of women. Men simply aren't listed as alley householders in most cases.

The fact that many alley dwellers are household servants or laundresses or other types of workers coming in contact with the outside population should prove a strong argument for the elimination of alleys. These alley residents must carry from their dark homes and miserable surroundings a ghastly amount of disease to the homes of those outside.

Public Will Swing To Drys, Says Mapp

Believes Virginia Will Never Give Liquor Free Rein.

Danville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Former State Senator G. Walter Mapp, of Accomac, Virginia dry stalwart, does not believe that liquor will ever be given a free rein in this State.

He is of the opinion that public sentiment will swing back to the dry column if the machine is found to gain greater power through liquor and especially should a State scandal develop.

Mr. Mapp, here to defend J. Arthur Winn, his brother-in-law, a former Methodist minister accused of a simple assault, found time to talk about the new liberal movement in Virginia. If the dry organization had conducted a campaign such as that seen in North Carolina, he is convinced that a different story would have been told at the polls.

He does not agree with Gov. Pollard's idea of a "liquor czar" or one-man control of the liquor law enforcement machinery. "Three are better than one," he said "because the functions of the commission will not be merely executive but semi-legal and semijudicial. The commission must enact its own regulations and then proceed to interpret them. If one man was entrusted with this duty it would be dangerous."

Theft at Hospital Wins 5-Year Term

Danville Man Insists He Is Victim of Error.

Danville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Julian Robert Holt was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary in corporation court tonight for stealing $155 from the safe in the office of Memorial Hospital last November.

Holt claimed he had been wrongly identified as the thief. He was shown to have a criminal record, however.

Hospital attaches, including Mrs. Frank Fowler and Miss Frances Ware, testified Holt was the man they saw emerging from the hospital office a few moments before the theft was discovered.

Pursued by an orderly, the man jumped into a car and fled.

Virginia House Retains Brown In Speakership

Other Offices Also Filled in Caucus; Senators Appoint.

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—J. Sinclair Brown, of Salem, was renominated unanimously for Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates late last night at the House Democratic caucus and was cheered as he asserted "we should be thankful for the present and should face the future courageously."

Wilbur C. Hall, delegate from Loudoun County was elected chairman of the caucus and presided at the session which brought forth oratory both serious and humorous. Delegate B. D. Adams, of Charlotte, was chosen caucus clerk and George O. Green, of Clifton Forge, assistant clerk.

Col. John W. Williams, a veteran of 40 years of service was renominated for clerk and Col. William Bullitt Fitzhugh, of Eastville, was chosen again for sergeant at arms. Nomination is equivalent to election as the House as well as the Senate is overwhelmingly Democratic.

Senators met in caucus on the other side of the Capitol to nominate J. L. Woolfolk, of Louisa, for doorkeeper and select pages.

Other House nominees were Charles A. Truslow, of Stafford, first doorkeeper, and Benham Morris, of Amelia, second doorkeeper.

"The Democratic party today is the hope and the promise of the Nation and it presents in Franklin Delano Roosevelt a leader with the foresight and the courage to spur onward those charged with the responsibility of the Government," Mr. Hall said amid applause.

Discussing the changes of 1933, Speaker Brown said:

"It does not fall within my province to discuss the wisdom of the vast and complicated program of reconstruction initiated and enacted by the new Administration, but it represents fulfillment of a pledge, and merits the support of every patriotic citizen."

Virginia Liquor Hearings Jan. 18

Joint Sessions Scheduled by Legislators.

Richmond, Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Joint public hearings on liquor control legislation will be conducted January 18 by the House and Senate finance committees.

Plans for the inquiry were announced today by Wilbur C. Hall, of Leesburg, chairman of the House finance committee. He explained the hearings would not be held immediately because members first wish to learn the recommendations of Gov.-elect George C. Peery, due to be revealed at his inauguration January 17.

Leaders of both wet and dry factions will be among the witnesses.

Jay Driving Warrant Follows Fatal Crash

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). James Ray, a member of the Hagerstown police department, driver of the car in which William H. Bradley was fatally injured in an automobile collision near Frederick several weeks ago, was served with a warrant charging him with failing to keep to the right of the center of the road, at the instance of Sergt. A. E. Markley, of the State police.

Highlights of Gov. Pollard's Recommendations on Budget

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—Highlights of budget recommendations made by Gov. Pollard:

Proposes to restore one-half of the cuts in general fund appropriations, giving in most instances departments and institutions, including the public free schools, 85 per cent of the amount appropriated for them in the budget act of 1932. Cuts under executive order under authority of the 1932 budget bill had totaled 30 per cent and averaged 22.5 per cent for the biennium.

Asks that salaries of State employes, which have been cut from 15 to 20 per cent, be restored to the 1932 budget figures less 10 per cent. Empowers the incoming governor to restore them to the full 1932 basis, should he find that this can be done without creating a deficit.

The appropriation for prohibition enforcement is conspicuous by its absence. The Attorney General's appropriation thus is recommended at $46,855, a reduction of $119,456.

Only two new sources of revenue are proposed—profits on sales of intoxicants and increase in the franchise tax on public utilities from 1½ to 3 per cent of the receipts. The former estimated to yield $3,350,000 for the biennium, and the latter $1,050,000.

Says charges against primary highway construction funds leaves no balance available for construction except that to be done by convict road force. Six million dollars a year would be appropriated to secondary highway system.

Appropriates $11,844,000, or $5,922,062 a year, for schools, which the governor says is materially less than asked by the State board of education, but deemed by him sufficient with a changed system of administering the equalization fund, to provide a minimum school term of eight months in each locality and permit a material increase in the salaries of lower paid teachers, as well as a certain measure of local tax relief.

The annual school appropriation is approximately $1,000,000 more than the amount available in the current fiscal year under the 30 per cent appropriation cut.

Governor says schools were given approximately $2,500,000 more in State funds in his administration than in any other four-year period in the State's history.

Urges distribution of $500,000 of the equalization fund under a plan to be adopted by the State board of education and approved by the governor.

Cites comptroller's estimate of $1,300,000 increase in general fund revenues each year, and says:

"The continuation of many serious economic disorders renders the immediate financial outlook extremely uncertain. Any addition to expenditures in excess of present revenue estimates would greatly endanger the State's credit, and would be most unwise. The general assembly may, in its discretion, revise or reduce the appropriations recommended by the Governor, but it is imperative to avoid an increase in the total of these itmes unless additional revenues are provided to meet such increases."

Budget proposed would absorb estimated deficit of $2,131,000 in the current biennium and provide an estimated surplus of $217,000 two years hence, keeping the State "out of the red."

Recommends continuation of full pensions to Confederate veterans and widows married prior to October 1, 1880.

Says criminal cost appropriation he recommends, larger than last appropriation but less than necessary expenditure, is based on adoption of measures to cut such costs to be recommended by the commission on paroles and indeterminate sentences.

General fund appropriations less than in 1932 by $2,744,406. Entire budget, excluding $6,000,000 formerly apportioned to counties and now appropriated to the secondary highway system, $8,727,666 less than 1932 budget.

mission minority was advanced in the Senate by Henry T. Wickham, Hanover. The minority measure would permit sale by the drink in hotels, clubs and restaurants, and package sale by private merchants for off-premises consumption.

County Reform Urged.

Another outstanding recommendation submitted by the governor involved county reform.

"I think it is safe to say," Gov. Pollard declared, "that one-half of the counties of Virginia are not sufficient in area, population and taxable wealth to support any adequate unit of government without financial distress.

"If they want relief they must consolidate or at least combine functions with adjoining counties, thus abolishing unnecessary offices. And the combination thus formed, as well as the larger counties, should adopt the county manager or county executive form of government."

Gov. Pollard insisted further centralization in the State government would be necessary unless the counties were re-formed.

The new budget represented a reduction of $8,727,666 from that of the preceding biennial. Schools would receive a yearly average of $5,922,062, an increase of $1,017,665.

Low Farm Taxation Cited.

Beaming with pride, Mr. Pollard reported a Department of Agriculture survey showed "farm owners in Virginia enjoy the lowest taxation in the United States."

The Governor was outspoken in his criticism of efforts by certain counties to shift to the State their share of school expenses.

"As the condition now stands," he reported, "some counties, fully able, are in part evading their responsibility and thus subjecting the people of other parts of the State to undue burdens, and to the extent they have failed in shifting their burden, they have allowed their children to go without proper educational facilities. This condition constitutes the crux of the educational problem in the State today."

Answering critics of State road expenditures, Mr. Pollard commented:

"Some, however, say that a proper solution would have been to have transferred money from roads to schools. They truthfully say that schools are more important than roads, but let me call their attention to the fact that there has not been an hour since the depression began that Virginia was in a position to consider such a proposition.

"Tens of thousands of men were out of work and the roads have furnished the chief avenue of appreciable relief. Our highway department has been our relief agency.

"Furthermore, we could not have obtained relief money from the Federal Government if we had increased unemployment by diverting road funds, thus increasing the problem which the Federal Government was striving to solve."

Points to Road Projects.

In the past year, the Governor pointed out, 130,000 men certified by welfare agencies as in need were employed on Virginia road projects.

State funds, as distinguished from Federal money, spent in constructing and maintaining roads in the past fiscal year, the Governor declared, totaled about $14,200,000. He insisted highways had to be conditioned or, "the action of the elements will soon destroy them and Virginia again will be in the mud."

Gov. Pollard announced that in addition to strictly State outlays, $14,355,833 in Federal emergency road appropriations had been, or would be, spent within the next three years.

"The expenditure of this money in our State," he said, "has been and will continue to be a godsend to our people. Thousands of needy families have been fed and clothed from wages received from this source."

Explaining Virginia had received $10,541,660.44 for Federal public works, he added:

"Some have criticized me for going to Washington 'with my hat in my hand and begging' for Federal money to be spent in Virginia. I have been reminded that these huge Federal funds raised by bond issues must be repaid by taxation on all the people of the country, including those in Virginia.

"This is true, but specific amounts have been appropriated by Congress and they will be spent, and the people of Virginia must repay their part as taxpayers of the United States, and the same would be true whether or not any of the money was spent in Virginia.

Tried to Get "Just Share."

"If Virginia had refused this money and allowed it all to go to other States, the part of her people in bearing the burden would be just as great. This being true, I exerted every effort to get Virginia's just share. For this I have no apology to make."

Gov. Pollard discussed every phase of the redistricting problem. Demanding loyalty to the principle of representative government, he urged:

"There is no excuse for districts having a small population being given equal representation in the General Assembly with other districts of three times the number of inhabitants.

"The grossest kind of inequality exists, which can be easily corrected if political expediency and personal political fortunes be disregarded."

The governor renewed recommendations, previously rejected by the Legislature, for new assessments against banks to permit enlargement of the force of bank examiners and check failures.

A renewed fight on tuberculosis was suggested.

Industrial expansion in Virginia, the governor contended, has increased the importance of protecting workers in factories and mines. He indorsed proposals for new employes' safety laws.

Smith Menaced In Districting Bill for State

Representative Is Believed in Danger From Plan in Virginia.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Richmond, Jan. 10 (Spl.).—A Congressional redistricting bill interpreted by observers as endangering the political future of Representative Howard W. Smith, Alexandria, was introduced in the State Senate today by Chairman Saxon Holt of the privileges and elections committee, from Newport News.

The measure would involve transfer to the old Eighth District, in which Smith is expected to run for reelection next year, of Albemarle, Green and Madison Counties, and the City of Charlottesville, all formerly part of the Seventh District.

Politicians said such a shift should greatly improve the chances of John Q. Rhodes, Louisa County, now a member of the House of Delegates, who has been prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress in the Democratic primary next August.

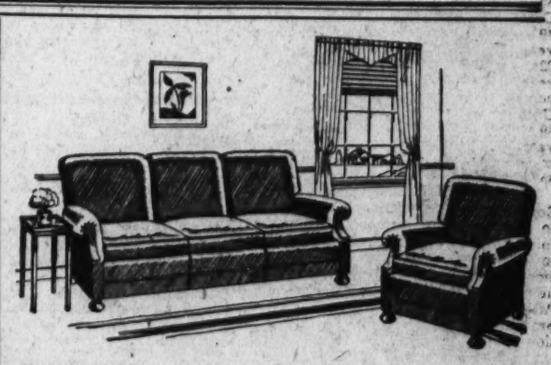

Under the Holt bill, the old Tenth District would be abolished, and the boundaries of every district, except the First, Second and Third would be altered.

The Fourth District would draw Cumberland County from the Tenth. The Fifth would get Wythe County from the Ninth. The ten counties to be added to the Sixth would include Clifton Forge, Botetourt, Alleghany and Craig.

The Seventh District would benefit by addition from the Tenth of Amherst, Appomattox, Bath, Augusta, Fluvanna, Highland, Nelson, Buckingham and Rockbridge Counties and the Cities of Buena Vista and Staunton.

Legislative leaders, however, concede the redistricting fight is far from finished. Several independent bills sponsoring separate plans remain to be introduced.

Five Roanoke Projects Added To CWA List

Work Already Begun on Straightening and Cleaning River.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The State CWA has approved five additional projects for the city of Roanoke and work has commenced on straightening and cleaning the banks of Roanoke River, a work recently authorized.

One project just approved involves remodeling of the old postoffice building at a cost of $6,267.40. The building, now owned by the Roanoke school board, is vacant. The improvement will consist largely of painting and building partitions.

The largest of the new projects calls for construction of sidewalks at a cost of $12,839. Of this sum it is estimated that $8,834 will be paid out in wages and the remainder used for purchase of materials and equipment.

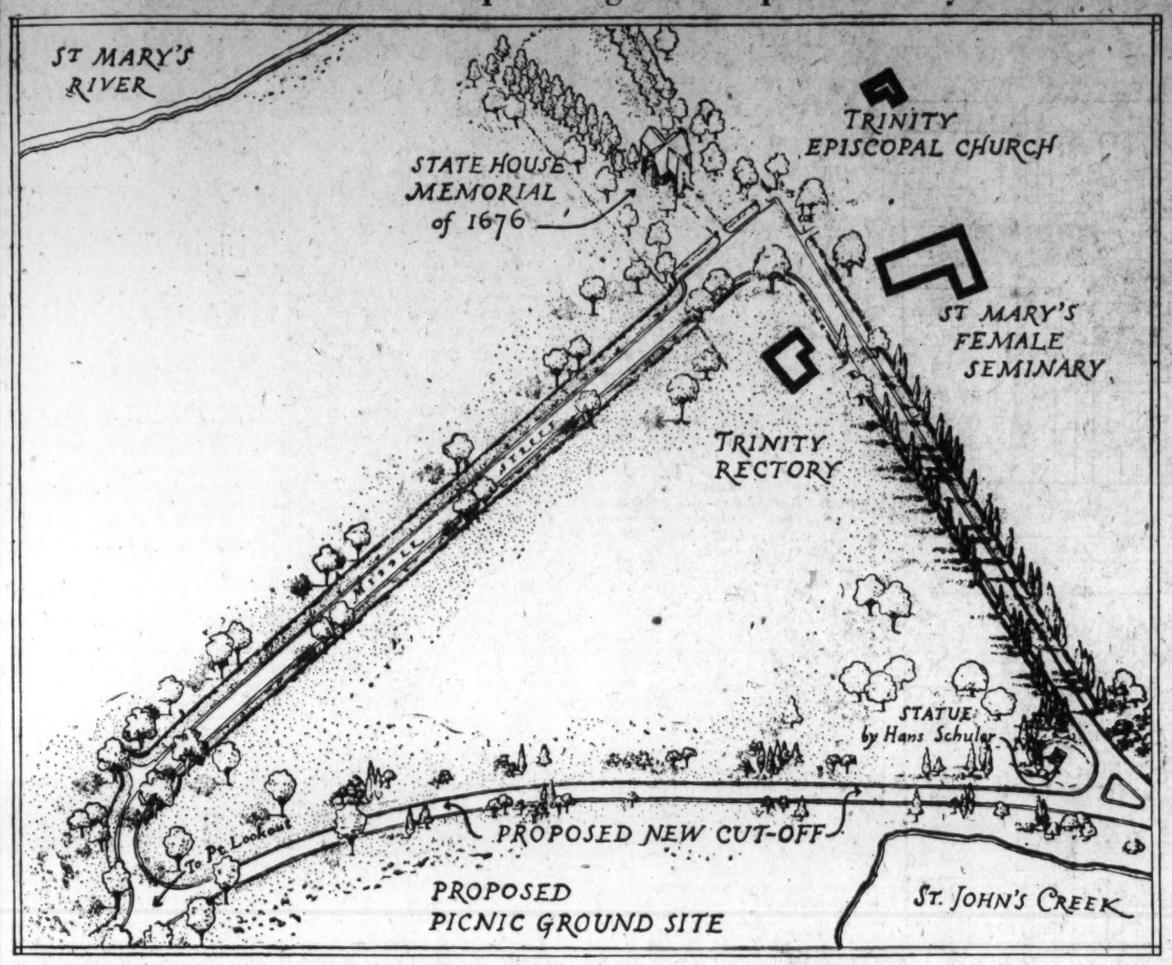

The other projects are widening and straightening open storm water channels, $4,411, and trimming trees, $9,992. The first will provide $3,720 for labor and the second $6,853.

The first school in this area in a program designed to provide safety from accidents to CWA workers has been started here under the direction of Arnold W. Reynolds.

B. J. Carden has been appointed to head the district safety division. William M. Myers heads the State safety organization, while F. H. Perkins is the appointee for Roanoke City.

The question of whether the city will permit the establishment of any transient lodging house is expected to come before city council Friday.

Plans Drafted for Perpetuating First Capital of Maryland

Virginia Cities Starting CWA Safety Course

Study Intended to Guard Project Workers; Job Changes Asked.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—J. E. King has been appointed district safety director by the State officer, Col. W. M. Meyers, whose office in Richmond under the State reemployment commission supervises safeguarding of workers on CWA projects.

King, formerly an engineering student at North Carolina State College, will have jurisdiction over the 14 counties and 2 cities of CWA District No. 3. Each of the 16 units will have a local safety inspector under King, while each individual project will have a safety officer. Fredericksburg's safety inspector is John Gallahan.

All the job and local inspectors will be given a course in Red Cross first aid.

A school here was opened yesterday for men from Fredericksburg and Stafford, King George, Spotsylvania and Caroline Counties, with Herbert Thompson conducting the course. Today 30 men from Fluquier and Culpeper Counties began receiving instruction from Dr. J. W. Sinclair in Warrenton. Schools will be started in Alexandria, Middleburg, Luray and Quantico "as fast as we can get them under way," King announced today.

Women Urged for Posts.

The Fredericksburg Reemployment committee in a letter to George A. Palmer, historical technician of the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Park, recommended three changes in the park historic staff personnel organized under the CWA.

E. Leavelle Billingsley, Horace Smith and Emil Van Deventer comprise the three recommended to be dropped. Miss Mary Houston has resigned and Mrs. Magnus M. Lewis, jr., has been recommended to fill her position.

Mrs. Nettie Deadrick has been recommended for Mr. Billingsley's position, Miss Katie Franklin for Mr. Smith's position, and Garnett Beazley for Mr. Van Deventer's position. The committee has recommended a policy of placing women in office positions whenever feasible, since almost 200 men have been employed in field positions in the park.

New Projects Begin.

About 125 men are at work here after two new CWA projects began, 72 men being hired on the Hazel Run drainage project while six were put to work on the school interior.

The Stafford pay roll last week was $4,568, Prince William, $14,050, King George, $5,397, and Spotsylvania, $4,600. Stafford County residents received approximately $6,000 of the Prince William pay roll for work done on the Federal project at Quantico.

The total Stafford County pay roll to date has amounted to $10,262, not including the sum paid to Stafford workers on the Prince William project at Quantico. Of Stafford's 1,128 registered unemployed, 570 remain without jobs, only 260 being employed on work in Stafford County and 300 in the Marine Corps project in Quantico.

Virginia Highway Officers Shifted

Fredericksburg Engineer Goes to Staunton.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—In a three-way personnel transfer February 1, the State Highway Department will move C. M. Moyer, in charge of the Fredericksburg district of the State Highway Department, to the position of district engineer at Staunton.

Mr. Moyer will be succeeded here by J. Henley Walker, Richmond district engineer, while T. F. Loughborough, whom Mr. Moyer will succeed, will succeed Mr. Walker.

Mr. Moyer came here in September, 1931, to succeed J. M. Hagan. These changes are a routine policy of the department.

Farm Debt Committee Appointed in Madison

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—A farm debt adjustment committee for Madison County has been named by Gov. Pollard. It will function under the State committee held by C. Nelson Beck, of Charlottesville.

Its membership includes B. S. Utz, Madison, chairman; E. M. McAllister, Griglersville; J. C. Crigler, Brightwood; J. W. Price, Wolfton; W. J. Huckstep, Rochelle; E. W. Lacy, Oak Park, and G. R. Thrift and S. H. Smith, Madison.

Northumberland Bank May Reopen Soon

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—M. E. Bristow, State Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, will address a meeting of stockholders and depositors of the Bank of Northumberland, Inc., in the Northumberland County Courthouse at Heathsville tomorrow.

The condition of the bank will be disclosed and it is expected officials will move to reopen the institution. The bank has been thoroughly examined by State and Federal agents.

Scholarship Prizes Go to Midshipmen

Bill Requires Official's Bond

Measure Submitted to West Virginia Delegates.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—A bill requiring bonds from the heads of all State institutions has been submitted to the House of Delegates by Delegate J. Buhl Shahan (Democrat), Randolph.

Shahan says the bill results from investigations by the State board of control which have brought about prison sentences for two former superintendents of State institutions on charges of the larceny of State property.

The Randolph delegate also has submitted a bill providing a penalty of five to ten years imprisonment or a fine of $5,000 for charging interest on a loan at greater than the legal rate.

A subcommittee of the House Finance Committee has been appointed to find out how State policemen employ their time. The work is not in the nature of an ordinary investigation as no complaints have been filed about the work of the State troopers. It was ordered because P. C. Shingleton, head of the State Department of Public Safety, has declared it will be necessary to augment the department personnel to the extent of 50 men if the troopers are to assist in the policing of municipalities whose treasuries are depleted.

Victim of Fire, 72, Buried in Virginia

Staunton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held yesterday at Old Providence Church for David J. Barkley, 72, who was burned to death early Monday when fire destroyed Catalpa, the Callison homeplace near Greenville.

Mr. Barkley is survived by his widow and the following sons and daughters: A. G. Barkley, Spottswood; C. E. Barkley, Roanoke; F. J. Barkley, Augusta County; J. J. Barkley, Staunton; A. N. Barkley, Pueblo, Colo.; Mrs. C. O. Lotts, Lafayette, Ind; Mrs. W. L. Lotts and Mrs. R. H. Bragg, Staunton.

Mr. Barkley lived with his son, F. J. Barkley, who had charge of the Callison farm.

Virginia Areas Demand Rigid Liquor Control

Believe Revenue Should Be Obtained Through Law Compliance.

Waynesboro, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Municipalities in this section of Virginia are giving serious consideration to the proposed liquor control bill, which will be presented at this session of the General Assembly.

The Waynesboro City Council has gone on record as favoring a fair distribution of revenue from liquor tax to municipalities by means of local taxation rather than have all funds from this source paid into the State treasury.

The question of the units upon which will fall the burden of enforcement also is being considered by the authorities in many localities. The view taken by officials in this section is that if the State is to obtain revenue it can do so only to the extent of adequate compliance with the law. The effective enforcement will rest primarily on local police forces which in many places already have been depleted to the extent of menacing public safety by virtue of retrenchment policies, in the opinion of council members.

For this reason, local government officials feel substantial provision must be made to add the necessary officers to see that the regulations are enforced. The council here is supporting the movement to procure such a provision now being sponsored by the legislative committee of the Virginia League of Municipalities.

Delegate Wilson Dined.

Clifton Forge, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—T. J. Wilson, jr., of Clifton Forge, the first Republican to represent Alleghany County and Clifton Forge as a delegate to the Virginia Legislature since 1924, is in Richmond attending the sessions of the House of Delegates.

Mr. Wilson, who was conceded only a slight chance at the start of his campaign last fall, was elected in November by only eight votes over the Democratic incumbent, E. A. Snead.

Speaking at the dinner party in his honor which preceded his departure, Mr. Wilson took a positive stand against any added or new taxes at this time, condemning the "smug complacency" with which the people have come to look upon the vast expenditures of money and levying of heavy taxes by both the Federal and State governments, and also strongly opposed the creation of commissions which may assume the powers of the legislative branch of the government in formulating laws.

Phillips Gets Support.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Three of the four men representing Washington and Smyth Counties and the city of Bristol in the Virginia legislature favor the appointment of Thomas C. Phillips, of Abingdon, as circuit judge of Washington and Smyth Counties, a poll of the legislators revealed.

The judgeship is being vacated by the decision of Judge John J. Stuart, also of Abingdon, not to be a candidate for reelection. Judge Stuart, incumbent for many years, is retiring because of poor health.

Favoring Mr. Phillips for the position are B. L. Dickenson, Marion; State senator representing the two counties, William N. Neff, Abingdon, Washington County representative, and J. Tyler Frazier, jr., Smyth County representative. The fourth representative, S. Bruce Jones, Bristol, is understood to favor Walter H. Robertson, mayor of Bristol.

The bar associations of Smyth County and of Bristol have indorsed Judge Floyd H. Roberts, of the Bristol Corporation Court, for the post.

Mule Suspected In Youth's Death

Mill Worker Found Dead, Team Nearby.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—A mule's hoof caught in his overalls, the body of Frederick Raymond Files, 19, sawmill worker, was found late yesterday near Jones Spring, Berkeley County.

Officers and physicians declared an inquest unnecessary. Investigators believed death was due to either a heart attack or a kick by a mule in the heart area. Files had been dragging logs to the mills with a span of mules, which were found near the body. Two boys first found the body, but Files' dog, which was standing guard, scared them away. A sawmill operative later found the body.

Two First Cousins Die on Same Day

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Two first cousins, Mrs. Emma Tusing, 63, and Mrs. Nettie Riggleman, 65, died yesterday at their homes in the village of Cootes Store, Rockingham County.

Funeral services for Mrs. Riggleman will be held tomorrow morning, while Mrs. Tusing will be buried in the afternoon.

Mrs. Estelle Vaughan Services Conducted

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The funeral of Mrs. Estelle Harrison Vaughan, 72, who died here yesterday, was held today. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Minnie E. Vaughan; a son, Eugene A. Vaughan, both of Petersburg, and a brother, Martin L. Harrison, of Washington.

SINCE 1808, when Jesse Fell of Wilkes-Barre first burned Hard Coal on his grates of square iron rods, Pennsylvania Anthracite has been America's standard of heating value.

Today, real Hard Coal (the kind you know and want) still comes from Pennsylvania's rich veins.

Remember that and don't be misled by advertisements offering "Hard Coal" (or Anthracite) at "bargain" prices.

Ask questions before you buy.

Make sure that you really get what you think you're getting.

800 Delegates At Area Rally Of Methodists

Mission and Evangelistic Program at Staunton Draws Notables.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Approximately 800 persons representing all sections of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, gathered here yesterday for the first of 34 mission-evangelistic meetings to be held during the next two months throughout the denomination's territory.

Central Methodist Church was host to the gathering, declared to have been one of the most representative in the history of the conference, with the exception of the annual conferences themselves. The challenge of the mission and evangelistic program of the church was presented by some of Methodism's outstanding men.

Speakers included Bishop W. F. McMurry, of Fayette, Mo., who presides over the Baltimore Conference; Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, of Huntington, W. Va.; Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of San Francisco; Dr. W. G. Cram, general secretary of the Board of Missions; Dr. G. L. Morelock, secretary of the Board of Lay Activties, and Dr. Elmer T. Clark, assistant secretary of the Board of Missions—the last named three from the church's headquarters in Nashville.

Bishop McMurry presided. Ministers and laymen from all over the Baltimore Conference area, which embraces portions of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia, took part. District rallies will follow at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Roanoke, Winchester, Romney, W. Va., Alexandria, and Baltimore.

"Face up squarely to the most critical hour in the history of our church," was Bishop Moore's parting challenge as he closed the meeting here yesterday. "Make the great missionary crusade of our church a thing glowing with vitality and power through the power of Christ. Make it our main business just now by dedicating our money, our prayers, our trust and our interest to the Divine admonition to 'Go, Teach.'"

Baptists to Rally.

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Baptist General Association of Virginia will hold its annual session here February 13 to 15. All Baptist churches of Petersburg will cooperate in entertaining the 800 delegates. The program committee is composed of Dr. Solon B. Cousins, of Richmond; Dr. John L. Slaughter, of Richmond; the Rev. Kenneth E. Burke, of Norfolk; Dr. Henry Alford Porter, of Charlottesville, and Dr. Edward H. Pruden, of Petersburg.

Dr. M. E. Dodd, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, La., and president of the Southern Baptist Convention, will speak.

Pastor May Get Call.

Waynesboro, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Possibility that the Rev. R. W. Cousar, for the past ten years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, may be called to the Knox Presbyterian Church, Norfolk, loomed as a delegation from that church arrived here for a conference with the local pastor. The Norfolk church is one of the largest Presbyterian congregations in Virginia.

The Rev. Mr. Cousar has been signally successful in his pastorate here and is regarded as one of the outstanding young preachers in this section.

Racing Bets Opposed.

Danville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The Danville Ministerial Association has adopted resolutions addressed to the General Assembly against liberalization of the Sabbath and opposing any liberalization of the laws to permit gambling on horse races.

Vestry Reelected.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The following 14 vestrymen of St. George's Episcopal Church were reelected last night: Dr. M. M. Lewis, Edgar M. Young, Frank M. Chichester, jr., A. P. Thornton, W. W. Braxton, George W. Shepherd, C. Archer Smith, William K. Goolrick, A. F. Turner, W. T. Pratt, Charles H. Lewis and A. C. Wooding.

La Plata Students Awarded Prizes

La Plata, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Prizes were awarded and a class exhibition made to attendents at a Parent-Teacher meeting of the La Plata Consolidated Schools in the school auditorium here.

Miss E. Neale Wills of the elementary school was awarded a picture for having the greatest number of patrons present, while in the high school the picture went to the Freshman home room, under Miss Laura Reese. Dr. Cunningham, deputy health officer of this district, addressed the meeting on health and sanitation, following which the group was entertained by a quartet composed of Mrs. Walter Schwap, Miss Laura Reese, Harris Mathes and John P. Hancock, accompanied by Miss Wills.

Premiums were awarded as follows: First year girls—Kitty Berry, first; Genevieve Ravey, second, and Mildred Greenwell, third; second year girls—Margaret Berry, first; Kitty Mitchell, second, and Helen Edelen, third.

Walter C. Carter Funeral Tomorrow

Danville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Walter C. Carter, killed in a railroad-crossing accident yesterday, will be held from the home at 11 a. m. tomorrow, conducted by the Rev. T. Eugene West, pastor of the Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. R. B. Clagett, of the Methodist Church, and the Rev. H. W. Shannon, of the Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Radio Waves and Ripples

THERE'S more than appears on the surface in the announcement that WOL is feeding Old Age Pension broadcasts to 16 stations Wednesday and Thursday nights.

LeRoy Mark and the General Broadcasting System, for which WOL is the Washington outlet, have hitched their wagon to a star. If the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. only will provide axle grease in the form of reasonableness about a slight matter of wire charges, the minds see no reason why G. B. S. should not one day extend from coast to coast.

Expansion into the Southwest is rumored in early prospect.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, speaking on the Radio Joe program, 6:30 p. m.; a medley of tunes from "Going Hollywood," Rudy Vallee, 8:30 p. m.; Paul Whiteman, 10 p. m.

WMAL—Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, the "Jazz" suite by American Composer Louis Gruenberg, 3 p. m.; Carlos Cardel, Argentine barytone, in program of French and Spanish songs, 7:30 p. m.; Washington wrestling matches, 10:00 p. m.

WJSV—Agnes Davis, Curtis Music Institute soprano, offering "Liebestod," from Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," 3:45 p. m.; "Buenos Aires: A City Without Depression," broadcast by Edward Tomlinson from South America, 11:15 p. m.

* * * *

What else can be understood by extension of the Musical Clock program one hour to 10 a. m. except a blatant kotowing to an unproductive element that likes to take its breakfast in bed? Just another pat on the back for capitalism, that's what it is, and right here under the nose of the New Deal liberals, too. This proletarian blood boils.

It is conceded, however, that while the LeRoy Mark station's breakfast program may not be the Capital's best, no one will dispute its right to claim superiority in length.

WRC Announcer Jim McGrath, whose specialty heretofore has been wrestling broadcasts, yesterday took over the WMAL Breakfast Club presidency vacated by Arthur Godfrey.

N. B. C.'s publicity department here probably went to a lot of trouble to count the number of times WRC and WMAL originated network programs during 1933, so here's the result: WRC, 12,704 programs; WMAL, 4,368.

C. B. S. will take us "Dancing Around the World" one of these days.

It will be another International broadcast stunt, a short wave tour of the world in an hour with stops at principal cities where the most popular dance bands will be picked up.

The start will be made in London, then on to Berlin, Paris, Vienna and into the East with the wind-up in South America. All stops will be broadcast in this country.

New York University's College of Fine Arts will open next term a course in radio orientation and install as its instructor Dr. John S. Young, N. B. C. staff announcer.

In 15 lectures, Dr. Young will trace the history and development of broadcasting, discuss television and its future, evalue the American program structure, seek to clarify technical phases of broadcasting, trace the evolution of radio advertising and consider international broadcasting from educational, religious and political aspects.

"Some Recent Advances in Television" is the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given at 8 o'clock tonight by Dr. V. K. Zworykin, of the research laboratory of the R. C. A.-Victor Co., Camden, N. J., before the Washington section of the Institute of Radio Engineers at the Kennedy-Warren.

GEORGE HALL and his band put music on Columbia air channels several times a week.

VERA VAN is here presented because she is still one of the more decorative microphone talents and because she will put melody into the Stoopnagle and Budd show tonight and Saturday night on C. B. S.

2-Man County Court Still in Deadlock

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The two-man Berkeley County court, so constituted since the West Virginia Supreme Court declared a tie in the 1932 election contest between William M. Johnson, Republican, and J. C. McKown, Democrat, yesterday added to its troubles an inability to designate a president.

Commissioner W. R. Keller, Republican, president last year, believes he should function until his successor is appointed, but Commissioner John C. Ellis, Democrat, demurs. He conceded there was slight chance of agreement.

Murder Charge Holds Husband In Wife's Death

E. R. Koons, Hagerstown, to Face Grand Jury After Shooting.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—E. Russell Koons, 33, today was held without bail for the grand jury on a charge of murder, growing out of the fatal shooting of his wife, Catherine, 33, last Thursday night at their apartment, at a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Richard Sweeny.

A death-bed statement, alleged to have been made by Mrs. Koons to County Investigator Martin I. Ingram, was admitted as evidence over objection of counsel for Koons.

Ingram testified Mrs. Koons told him her husband had been drinking Thursday, had asked her for keys to their automobile and an argument followed when she refused to give them to him. She stepped outside, and a moment later returned and then it was testified her husband shot her, the bullet entering her abdomen.

Mrs. Koons told Ingram, it was said, that she heard a second shot after she threw herself on the bed, and that it was this that may have caused a scalp wound Koons received. Koons, Ingram testified, told him the shooting was an accident and that he could not recall the details.

Drs. H. L. Porterfield and D. A. Watkins, who attended Mrs. Koons, testified the gunshot wounds resulted in her death. The defense offered no testimony.

4-Year Thefts At Fraternity House Jail Man

Varied Property Found in Employe's Quarters; Bad Bills Hold 2.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Charlie Richardson Wynne, Negro houseman of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity house at the University of Virginia, yesterday was given 180 days for theft of personal property from residents of the house during the last four years.

A vast pile of banners, bath robes, pajamas, jewelry, clocks, books and other articles that Wynne contended were left in his charge by their owners, was found in a trunk in his basement quarters.

Students testified three watches had disappeared from the house since Christmas, and that fountain pens, a shirt, ties, a tennis racquet, a pocketbook, tie rack, dishes, &c., had been stolen.

Bogus Bills Hold Pair.

Danville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). William Glenn, Greensboro, N. C., and William Cournow, of Richmond, were held today for the Federal grand jury, charged with having in their possession counterfeit $20 and $10 bills. Both are in jail in default of bond.

Edward Bowers, of this city, arrested on the same charge, turned State's evidence at the hearing before United States Commissioner Meade Flynn and said he obtained his spurious bills in a dice game with the two accused.

The charge against Bowers was nolle prossed, but he was held under $500 bond as a material witness.

Minister's Jury Locked.

A jury in the corporation court late last night failed to agree in the case of J. Arthur Winn, former Southern minister of this city, who was tried for a second time on a charge of simple assault. Mrs. E. Hailey appearing against him.

At an earlier trial he was convicted and fined $50, but the Virginia Court of Appeals reversed the decision on account of the conduct of a juror and sent the case back for retrial.

Wiener Case Reheard.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Retrial of the "wiener case" in which Mrs. Otto B. Sproles, of near Bristol, seeks $2,999 from Swift & Co., packers, alleging ill effects from eating a wiener containing a rusty nail, occupied the Bristol, Tenn., law court today.

The case originally was heard in September, when a mistrial resulted as regards the Swift Co., but a co-defendant, the local store where the wiener sandwich was sold, was released from liability.

Mrs. Sproles this time is suing for $499 more than the $2,500 sought last fall, and attorneys said this additional amount represented a damage claim for illness suffered by her in the iterim.

Two Murder Trials Up.

Russell County Circuit Court will reconvene at Lebanon tomorrow to hear two murder cases. Virgie Beavers, of Swords Creek, is accused of shooting her husband, Dooley Beavers, and Will and Early Combs, of Honaker, are held in connection with the fatal stabbing of Russell Bowman.

A third case that has aroused widespread interest throughout the county is that of Bascom Keith, to be tried Friday. He is alleged to be of mixed blood and to have married a white woman three months ago. He is in jail here pending trial.

Men Indicted in Killings.

Fatal shootings in recent weeks yesterday resulted in the return of two murder indictments by the grand jury of Scott County Circuit Court at Gate City.

Emory Brickey, Fort Blackmore merchant, was indicted for the alleged shooting of a 12-year-old boy, reported to have playfully prodded him while at his store, and John Bishop was accused of killing Eugene Clark, a visitor in his home.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Henry Buried at Bentonville

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Ann Henry, 80, of Bentonville, who died Monday, were conducted today at Bentonville.

Mrs. Henry was the widow of William Allen Henry and is survived by two sons, Thomas Darr, of Bentonville, and William M. Henry, of Baltimore, and two daughters, Misses Carrie and Agnes Henry, of Bentonville.

State Teachers College Work To Start Soon

New Building, to Cost $142,000, Authorized by Government.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). The building at the Harrisonburg State Teachers College, which has been authorized by the Public Works Administration at Washington, will make the college the largest and best-equipped of its kind in Virginia, having dormitory facilities for 800 young women.

President Samuel P. Duke hopes to get work started on the building, which will cost $142,000, by February 15. He estimates it will take 8 or 9 months to complete. This will be the first 3-story dormitory on the campus and will face South Main street. It will be constructed of blue limestone like the other buildings and will have a red tile roof.

The first floor will be a large lobby, parlors with kitchenettes and a suite for the chaperon. There will be 24 bedrooms on each of the second and third floors. Each room is designed to accommodate two students.

Page County Progress Told.

Luray, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The major part of Page County's share of the State's civil works funds of $247,000, amounting to approximately $66,311, is being divided among 400 men.

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—The appointment of standing committee chairmen of the State advisory council of the Virginia State Employment Service, and the start of a State-wide occupational and unemployment survey, has been announced by Col. Leroy Hodges, chairman of the council.

The committee is headed by Dr. Raymond Pinchbeck, dean of the University of Richmond. The survey will be organized and directed by the secretary, Dr. Robert H. Barker, director of the division of research and statistics of the Virginia Department of Labor and Industry. Dr. Barker will organize a staff of technicians, already authorized through the CWA.

Other members of Dr. Pinchbeck's committee include Robert J. Meybin, of Roanoke; Robert T. Bowden, of Richmond; Miss Adele Clark, Dr. Wilson Gee, of Charlottesville, and John M. Gandy, of Petersburg.

1,525 On Warrenton Roll.

Warrenton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—There have been 1,525 men enrolled in the Civil Works reemployment office here, of whom 450 are working on CWA projects, relaying sidewalks and grading streets, while the remainder are engaged in Public Works projects here.

Bristol Extends Vacation.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—There is little likelihood that Bristol, Va., public schools, closed since before Christmas, will be reopened by next Monday, Superintendent Roy B. Bowers said today. He expressed hope, however, they would be open by February 1. The Christmas holidays were extended to allow CWA workmen to finish their interior work, but an additional week will be needed.

With almost 350 men now employed by the CWA in Russell County, the third weekly CWA pay roll amounted to $3,359.77. The new projects at Honaker, extensions to both the water and sewerage systems, this wek are using 100 more men, and 70 started to work last week grading the old Russell County fair grounds here for a community park.

5 Washingtonians Seized in Virginia

Accused of Cigarette Theft at Montross.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Five men, three white and two colored, were arrested on the U. S. No. 1 bridge crossing the Rappahannock by Officer Jenkins, of Fredericksburg, after he had received word from Sheriff E. S. Waller, of Westmoreland County, asking their arrest.

The officer said he found four cartons of cigarettes in their car, a cab engaged by the five men, who gave Washington addresses. Westmoreland officers took them into custody. They are being held on charges of larceny of cigarettes in Montross.

The five are E. Widmeyer, R. E. Bayne and James Bristow, white, and George Mason and Earl Brown, colored.

Alleged Bigamist Held On Bond in Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Stanley W. Arnsparger, entertainer, arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Richard Duffey on a charge of bigamy, was held under $1,000 bond for a hearing in February.

The warrant for Arnsparger's arrest was sworn out by his alleged first wife from Cecil County, who was in court, as was his second wife, a Hagerstown girl. Court Clerk J. T. Hartle testified to the second marriage and produced the marriage record. Arnsparger said he was informed his first marriage had been annulled.

A. E. Grantham Heads Production Loan Body

Richmond, Jan. 10 (AP).—Dr. A. E. Grantham, of James City County, was elected president of the Richmond Production Credit Association, which will make loans to farmers, at a meeting of the directors today.

Other officers are W. H. Stoneman, Henrico, vice president and James A. Loving, Henrico, secretary-treasurer. The loan committee consists of President Grantham, A. W. Buhrman, of Richmond, and W. G. Wood, of Chesterfield County.

Virginia Town Asks for Part In Relief Work

Fredericksburg Is Aligned With Emergency Aid Plan for State.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The city council last night empowered City Manager Levin J. Houston, jr., and the health and charity committee of the city council to align this city with the Federal Emergency Relief Association, providing there is no expense to the city.

J. M. Steck, of this city, a member of the advisory committee to the State emergency relief administratoin, is in charge of distribution of free food supplies in this area. Mr. Steck announced before the resolution was adopted that none of the food products were hitherto available here because city authorities have not applied for participation in the emregency relief program.

Capt. James Shipp, of the Fredericksburg Salvation Army, asked the council to extend financial aid to assist the army in maintenance of temporary relief. The council appropriated $250 for this purpose.

Phone Franchise Renewed.

The council renewed the franchise of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here for 30 years. The legal document awaits only final approval by the council finance committee and C. O'Conor Goolrick, city attorney.

Dr. R. J. Payne, mayor, read a letter from H. N. Pye, chief engineer of the South-Eastern Underwriters Association, suggesting civil works projects to clean out cellars and back yards of homes.

A resolution was passed requesting A. W. Embrey, jr., and W. Worth Smith, assemblymen and Senator, respectively, to attempt to get part of the State liquor tax apportioned to individual cities and counties on a basis of population.

Welfare Plan Adopted.

The Spotsylvania County supervisors yesterday applied to the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for establishment of facilities for providing medical attention, food and clothing to destitute families, and giving employment to needy women.

The actual cash outlay in Spotsylvania might reach $2,500 per month, whereas the only obligation of the county is approximately $20 per month for setting up and equipping an office for the county administrator and her assistants, authorities estimated.

Spring Field Trials Set.

Luray, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—Harry Bradford, executive secretary, said today that March 19 had been set as the date for the holding of the Page Valley spring field trials. In addition to the puppy trials, an all-age stake will be held.

The New Emperor.

"Mr. Henry Pu Yi," as that democratic Manchu prince once preferred to call himself, was proclaimed regent of an independent Manchuria on March 9, 1932. The ceremony at Changchun, the New York Times correspondent reported coincidentally, was generally understood to be "arranged and paid for by Japanese agents."

Dispatches from Tokyo now announce that before the second anniversary of "independence" a hereditary throne will be prepared for "little Henry," as he used to be affectionately known around Tientsin. By permitting "Manchukuo" to become a hereditary monarchy, it is explained, Japan hopes its separate existence will be emphasized.

It is to be feared that the emphasis in the minds of impartial observers will not be overwhelming. For with charming naivete it is further reported from Tokyo that a personal Japanese adviser for the new emperor has already been selected, just in case his sovereign majesty decides to continue the close relationship established by Japanese arms two years ago.

Southern Women Speak.

It is instructive that those agencies in the South which have been most vigorous in the fight to suppress lynchings and punish lynchers are also opposing the Wagner-Costigan bill. This, simply stated, transfers to the Federal Government the burden of putting down and punishing extra-legal mass murders.

A recent canvass of 25 Southern editors who have been most condemnatory of lynchings and of the laxness of public officials in this matter showed that 23 of them oppose Federal legislation. One editor said he did not like it, but would support it if lynchings could not be stopped any other way, and one editor favored a Federal statute.

No organization in the South has been more active in the fight than the "Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching," which is allied with the Southern Inter-Racial Commission. Four years ago, the former organization, claiming to represent 1,000,000 white women, created a sensation by stating that lynchers have no commission to protect the virtue and honor of their membership. They repudiated that traditional plea of extenuation and roundly condemned its hypocrisy.

This week the same organization has adopted resolutions admitting that the situation has become so serious that there ought to be cooperation between the Federal and State governments, but expressing the opinion that approval of a Federal anti-lynch law would interfere with the campaign of education now being carried on in the South. The same meeting, it should be noted, condemned lack of equal educational opportunity for Negroes and termed lynching "a logical result" of arbitrary segregation of a race in insanitary sections, coupled with exploitation and intimidation of a weaker element for economic gain.

There are those who are inclined to believe that a miracle may be achieved merely by the transfer of power from the State to the Federal Government. There are others who realize that favorable local sentiment is absolutely essential to all law enforcement. To these last, at any rate, the findings of these thoughtful Southern women will be important.

No Blanket Authorizations.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, quotes President Roosevelt as being "perfectly agreeable" to the modifications made by the Senate Banking Committee in Administration plans for the corporation's future. The principal modification thus accepted by the White House is the Committee's refusal to authorize continuation of the RFC for three years from January 21, when its lending power expires. The Senators recommend a one-year extension.

This legislative caution, and the prompt approbation of that caution by the President, are particularly welcome at a time when the fruits of previous enabling acts are ripening. As a case very much in point it may be noted that the magnitude of RFC purchases of bank stock has startled many people because it was not foreseen as an inevitable result of measures previously approved by Congress. Yet it is impossible for the legislators to criticize developments which have sprung naturally from broad authorizations readily granted during emergencies.

Chairman Jones has closely estimated RFC needs for the next six months, and has told the Senate Banking Committee that he seeks no new functions beyond the necessary borrowing power for the important agency which he heads. This being so, there is no apparent reason at this time for granting a three-year extension. The Administration's plans for the RFC may involve developments which would take over a year to work out. If so, such plans should be explained in as much detail as is consistent with the public interest before the longer authorization is requested from Congress.

Unsavory.

After properly discounting all political background and implications, charges that are being made before the Senate committee investigating ocean and air mail contracts are still unsavory and serious enough to warrant the most vigorous effort to obtain the full truth.

There ought to be no disposition to prejudge the charge that former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown ordered official records relating to air mail subsidies destroyed when he was about to leave office. Mr. Brown denies that and the denial would explain why, if he knew about it, Postmaster General Farley has been silent for 10 months. This phase of the matter will doubtless be developed under oath. But quite aside from the charge of burning records, other disquieting allegations concerning the methods of awarding mail contracts have been made.

It is asserted that contracts covering approximately 8,000 miles have been awarded without competitive bidding. In some cases where competitive bids were asked, it is charged that contracts went to the highest bidders. In one instance an operator who bid for a contract on a 70-cent subsidy basis is alleged to have lost it to another operator who bid $3, on the ground that his company "had no experience in night flying," although there was no provision in the law for that requirement.

It is further charged, and in effect admitted, that "clandestine" meetings of representatives of companies finally merged into the "Big Four" of American aviation, were held in Washington with Government officials presiding, and that in these meetings air mail routes were drawn and parceled. Independent operators were frozen out, according to the testimony. Erle Halliburton, one of the independents, swears that he was denied contracts although he bid lower than other operators; that when he sought to merge with a line which had a contract the Postmaster General threatened to cancel the other company's contract and that when he finally agreed to sell to a line (one of the Big Four) which was in favor, he was paid $1,400,000 on an investment of between $700,000 and $800,000.

The question whether ocean and air mail subsidies are wise as a matter of policy is not primary at the moment. Before that question is settled, it is important to get a clearer idea of the setting in which the contracts were made and to determine whether favoritism, as opposed to public interest, weighted the scales.

In Proportion To Benefits.

In considering the erection of a new bridge over the Potomac to replace the present Chain Bridge the District Commissioners are confronted by the old problem of financing a structure more elaborate than the taxpayers of Washington can afford. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission contemplates the erection of a bridge at Little Falls in keeping with the other magnificent spans and massive buildings that are being developed in the National Capital. It would serve as a link in an arterial highway connecting the road systems of Maryland and Virginia as well as a part of the George Washington Memorial Highway in the District.

"There is no reason why the District should pay the whole bill for such an elaborate bridge," says Commissioner Hazen, "when it is obviously intended to be of benefit to Maryland and Virginia as well as the District." Fairness demands that these States share the cost of this improvement. The principle of dividing the cost of an interstate bridge in accordance with the benefits to be derived from it has been well established, in such projects as the Philadelphia-Camden bridge across the Delaware.

A contribution from the Federal Government is also expected by the Commissioners. Because this bridge will form a part of the beautiful highway system linking Mount Vernon with Great Falls, plans call for an elaborate structure. With Congress supplying only a small contribution to the local budget, it is not feasible to obtain the cost of such an improvement from District revenue. Certainly the Government ought to assist in financing projects that are so obviously designed to embellish the National Capital.

By taking a firm stand for allocation of the cost of this improvement in accordance with the benefits to be derived therefrom the Commissioners may establish a precedent of far-reaching importance to taxpayers of Washington.

The "Widow Of Paris."

Quite aside from any question of the justice involved—and evidence seems to have been conclusive that he was implicated in the Reichstag fire—the manner of Marius van der Lubbe's death nevertheless stands out as an ironic inconsistency of the Nazi regime.

The strongest element in the making of the "new Nazi state" has been a recrudescence of Germanism. Wagner is more than ever the god of German music, because his characters are out of the Niebelungenlied. Herr Goebbels has been invoking a return to adoration of Thor and Wotan. One hears from Nazis deprecation of everything non-Germanic and glorification beyond its meed of everything encompassed in German tradition.

Undoubtedly it did not occur to the serious-minded crusaders of Herr Hitler how ironic would be the "concession" to van der Lubbe which permitted him to die as he did. Before he lost the battle of Leipzig, Napoleon was master of Saxony as well as France. He decreed that the guillotine should be the official instrument of death. Consequently, when the ox-like Van der Lubbe went to his death in Saxon Leipzig yesterday morning, it was not the battle ax of Germanic tradition, but the "widow of Paris," imposed by the conquering Napoleon, which avenged German justice.

More "Yapping?"

When Gov. Talmadge of Georgia complained that the relatively high wages paid to workers on CWA projects are drawing labor away from the farms he was accused of "yapping" by Harry L. Hopkins, the Federal relief administrator. Now similar criticism is beginning to come directly from the farms and from business organizations. Delegates to the convention of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation complain that farm hands are gravitating toward the cities, where they hope to obtain better wages out of Government funds than farmers can afford to pay. Likewise the Washington Chamber of Commerce has decided to bring to the attention of Federal officials the tendency of industrial workers to leave private employment for jobs under the CWA.

The very nature of Mr. Hopkins' impulsive retort to Gov. Talmadge suggested that the Georgia governor had put his finger on the weakest spot of the "civil works" program. "All that guy wants," Mr. Hopkins was quoted as saying, "is headlines." He will scarcely make as crude a reply to nearby farmers who claim to be unable to retain their hired workmen because of the Government's liberal policy of relieving unemployment.

In October, the month before the CWA began operating, the Relief Administration estimated the number of families drawing benefits from public funds at 2,951,000. Since that time, it is asserted, 4,000,000 persons have been hired for temporary work. Yet current estimates place the number of families still on relief rolls at 1,500,000 or more. Even if we conclude that 1,451,000 families have been removed from charity lists as a result of the civil works program, the CWA figures themselves suggest that a large number of men have been drawn to public pay rolls from other jobs.

A Confusing Position.

It is surprising to find Senator Reed sponsoring a movement for restoration of various pensions and privileges that were eliminated through the economy act of last March. The Senator from Pennsylvania is one of several Republican leaders who supported the President in his demand for reform of veterans' legislation. He even voted against an amendment to limit certain cuts in pensions to 25 per cent. Now he has introduced a bill that would reinstate the presumptive disability clause, restore the old rate for service-connected disability, provide free hospitalization for veterans and liberalize the pensions of widows of World War veterans.

Senator Reed's excellent record on most economy legislation and his vigorous fight against proposals for immediate payment of the so-called veterans' bonus, lead to the impression that his present action may be influenced by politics. There is a strong temptation for representatives of the minority party in Congress to take what is supposed to be the popular side of an issue even though it may not entirely harmonize with their previous policies. This tendency is especially strong when the issue of re-election begins to loom on the horizon.

In a letter written a few weeks ago to the American Veterans Association Senator Reed said:

> I have always distinguished sharply between veterans disabled as a result of their service and those, like myself, who came out of the Army without disability. To the first class I think the Government owes a heavy debt. To the second class, I feel that our Government owes nothing. * * *

It is not easy to harmonize this statement with his bill designed to compensate a large group of veterans whose ailments have recently been found to have no connection with their war service.

The United States and Japan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos the letter of Mr. Y. Chang in The Post of January 4, on the situation in the Far East, and the probability of war between Japan and the United States, I have entertained the opinions expressed by him for the past 25 years, which opinions were more deeply rooted in me by a residence in the Far East of five years when I became very familiar with Japan and the Japanese.

For many years past I have been trying in my humble way by letters in the newspapers to warn our people of the probability of such a conflict and of the necessity of our being prepared for it. War between Japan and the United States has become a psychological obsession of the people of Japan and when such a state of mind exists it inevitably leads to the end contemplated unless averted by some extrinsic circumstances. The only thing the Japanese understand and respect is force, resembling in that respect the German. A priori, the only way to preserve peace in the Pacific is for the United States to build up its defense to a point where the Japanese will realize the futility of attacking us.

Mr. Kaltenborn, a well-known lecturer, who frequently talks to a vast audience over the radio, recently stated that the Japanese were a peacefully inclined people, and that while their country was now in the hands of the military party the people did not fully approve of the policies and of the military aggressions of that party &c. Such statements made by a prominent man to so large an audience are very unfortunate and are calculated to do infinite harm by lulling our people into a false sense of security from which we are likely to have a rude awakening if we don't look after our agencies of defense. In my travels in Japan four times I have been impressed with many things, but never with the pacific characteristics of the Japanese. No doubt the military party is running at present "juramentado," as the Spanish say, but there is little opposition to them from the people.

There is but one of two things or events that will avert a conflict between Japan and the United States in course of time, namely, making our defenses so strong that Japan will not dare attack us, or that as a result of their present activities in Asia the Japanese will commit financial hari kari. The latter is greatly to be hoped for in the interest of the peace of the world.

ALEXANDER SIDNEY LANIER.

"The King's English."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The other evening over the radio a professor at the George Washington University gave a very interesting talk on the difference in the pronunciation of various words by representative Englishmen and Americans. The professor made some observations, but drew no conclusions.

But his talk did suggest to me that more attention in our schools should be given to the better use of one's native language. The teachers, on the average in the lower grades, are not themselves well equipped to teach the use of the spoken word * * * and those in the grades below high school should be put through a rigid examination in the use of the English language.

Of course, the home surrounding of the child has much to do with the child's manner of speech, but since we can not overcome these disadvantages, the next best thing is to suggest better trained radio announcers and speakers on the radio. I would take as "better trained radio announcers" models such as David Ross, and Miss MacDonald on the Woman's Radio Review.

Undoubtedly the radio is fast becoming our continuing public school. And this fact brings up the importance of the written "interviews" and plays of whatever kind put on the radio. The "interviews" are generally fairly well edited before presentation, and the speakers on the average more than ordinarily competent. But in my estimation in the average plays presented for children especially, the intentional misuse of the English language is almost a crime. The plays themselves, I am glad to say, are improving in quality.

It is surprising how many inane songs, silly to the point of exasperation, that radio program makers still allow.

Of all the radio programs, apparently those given in the morning from about 8 to 11 o'clock, are written down; and just why the housewife is thought to want to hear some girl and boy sing through his or her nose about his or her tale of woe is beyond me. I am sure most housewives during those hours are reading the woman's page in The Post.

GROVER AYERS.

Advocating a Tax on the Dollar.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This country, like all others, has been and is in a bad way, and there are many brilliant minds endeavoring to work out a system to put the country on an even keel.

I have a system in mind that I think would meet with the approval of everyone, if it is considered from a fair point of view. It is as follows: To tax nothing but the dollar, but tax every dollar gained at least 1 per cent; have 1 per cent as a basic tax to reach every person in the United States and possessions, from the President down to the common laborer. That includes all Federal, State and municipal employes, and officers, the commissioned and enlisted personnel, of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard service. Tax all retirement pay and pensions. All aliens should be taxed as citizens. Tax the income from Federal, State and municipal bonds, in short, to tax every dollar gained, regardless of how it was gained, except inheritance tax within the family, for the following reasons: When a man is accumulating a fortune he is paying tax upon it while he is accumulating it, and it should not be taxed a second time in the same family. Tax all professional hypocrites—I do not mean the old established churches—and all foreigners who come to our shores to enrich themselves with no intent of becoming citizens should be taxed at least 50 per cent of every dollar gained. Foreign moving picture performers should be taxed as aliens or citizens for the simple reason that we must protect the moving picture industry.

This idea may not be workable, but I can not see why it will not work better and fairer than our present system. I would be glad to go into details with anyone who is interested. I do not think that a country like this should skimp along and keep going into debt when there are so many taxable dollars to support the country.

FAIR DEAL.

On Public Utilities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By a strange inconsistency, the present Administration, which avowedly sponsors the "forgotten man," has put itself on record as hostile to the public utilities. In so doing they have ignored the fact that probably more small investors ("forgotten men," forgotten women, widows and old people) have, since the railroads went bad as investments, intrusted their savings to public utilities than to any other one kind of investment.

Everything is being done, at great expense to the taxpayers, to inject new life into our sick industries and business enterprises. Could anything be less consistent with sanity and sound judgment than a policy of undermining the few concerns that are in good financial health and able to stand on their own feet without howling for Government aid?

One would think that enlightened self-interest, if nothing else, would cause the Government to stop persecuting this important group of solvent industries. This should be particularly true, now that the deficit in the National budget has grown to such colossal proportions. More than ever the good will and confidence of all classes of people are needed. Why, then, should the Government persist in their hostile attitude toward these sound, solvent "going concerns" that are owned by such a large group of worthy citizens?

A WOULD-BE LOYAL CITIZEN.

If Einstein Knew Less, He Might Be Less Willing to Confess an Error

By Robert Quillen.

All men who can face the world without cringing have some kind of pride.

Most of them are proud of their money or property, however little it may be, for they do not make comparison with those who have more, but with those who have less.

Many are proud of their knowledge, and others are proud of their ancestors, good looks, muscle, rank, skill or hair.

They must be proud of something, for without self-respect they are whipped and broken.

Since pride is so essential in making life endurable, the wise man who must choose between two courses of action will choose the one that ministers most to his self-respect.

And vanity, making choice in the heat of controversy, will cheat him by choosing the first.

Suppose, for example, that you argue with a friend concerning horses.

"You are mistaken," you say to him. "It is an established fact that all horses have the same number of vertebrae."

Having reference books at hand, he proves to you that Arabian horses have fewer vertebrae than others.

"Of course they have," you say; "I thought you meant ordinary horses in this country."

Thus you save yourself the embarrassment of exposing your ignorance and for the moment count it a victory.

But you thought nothing of the kind. To avoid a confession of error, you soiled your honor and made alliance with the father of lies.

When you remember the incident, you are ashamed. You let your vanity make you a liar, and thus sacrificed some measure of your self-respect.

The shameful thing is not ignorance of unimportant facts, but the want of courage to admit it. And ignorance is most tragic when it inspires pride in the wrong things.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

IT IS to be hoped that the Young Liberals do not fail to seize the opportunity now offered to them of making over France. There has been a first-class scandal over there, one involving the loss of some $40,000,000, I believe, to the people. Men in high places are found to have been dishonest, to have violated the trust imposed in them by a gullible investing public. In short, the stage seems perfectly set for a New Deal at the hands of the Young Liberals.

BARGERON.

First, the nation's industry should be regimented, then all of its pigs and wheat turned under, a project similar to Muscle Shoals set up in order that the sociologists might experiment with the people, and a managed currency substituted for the gold standard.

It would follow, of course, that the government would have to buy up all of the marginal lands and set up corporations to sell refrigerators and electric washing machines to the populace.

In the transitory period there would have to be, as we have learned, a PWA and a CWA and an AAA to keep the people contented and enthusiastically behind their new Government. The mounting deficit that this entailed could be handled through the Government's taking over the credit system, this by having an RFC buy preferred stock in those banks that needed this assistance and forcing other banks also to sell stock to the Government on the argument that it was necessary not to embarrass the weaker institutions.

Somewhere there should be thrown in a pure food and drug bill and the liquor industry should be controlled along with everything else from the Quai d'Orsay or I dare say some other quai. This is as far as the Young Liberals have taken us, so I am in the dark as to what the French should do from there on.

* * * *

Of course, the French have a different psychology from us, but, broadly speaking, I should imagine the same tricks could be used. For one thing, a committee should be set up in the Chamber of Deputies to investigate the pawnship scandal and keep investigating it. Every time criticism of the New Deal developed, the committee could turn up another sensation and the Young Liberals could ask, "Do you want to go back to that?"

Invariably the people would respond, they having some characteristics in common with Americans: "No, no—let's continue along the new path."

* * * *

Undoubtedly, too, the Nation's sloganists could work up such slogans as "It Is the New Deal or Ruin," "Take What We Offer or You Will Have Chaos," or as the French would say, c'est le "new deal" ou la ruine prenez ce que nous offrons sans quoi gare au chaos.

They would unquestionably have to have a Johnson le braillieur to run up and down the country, over the vineyards and into Alsace-Lorraine shouting caporaux du desastre and retirez vous hommes petits!"

The French would have more fun with the whole thing than we have had. Their language lends itself to more expressive epithets. Their speakers should make the air lurid while ours have only beclouded it.

Very probably they would need some of our Young Liberals to get them started, to show them the way at first. We will gladly let them have a carload—Jerome Frank, Rexford Guy Tugwell and all the rest of them, in fact.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

James Whitcomb Riley.

No American poet since the death of Longfellow is better known than Riley or more often quoted—for millions of persons know some of his verse by heart. "The Old Swimmin' Hole," "When the Frost Is on the Pumpkin," "Little Orphan Annie," "There! Little Girl, Don't Cry," are certainly familiar to some people in every city and village in America. He expressed in his books the sentiments of the common heart—the longing for past scenes and experiences, boyhood as viewed in a golden glow of reminiscence, the pleasures of home life, including home cooking, the smiles and tears of daily experience, love, marriage, sickness, death.

Yet no poet was ever less spontaneous. He toiled over his work in the endeavor to make it as perfect in form as was possible. He was an artist, and took his profession with the utmost seriousness. He had no patience whatever with careless or shoddy work—and the final form of his poems was as neat and finished as his clothes, personal appearance, and careful and beautiful handwriting.

Had he chosen the more ephemeral art of the stage, he could have been one of the great actors; for he was a born comedian. His impersonations, notably the one of the school visitor, who is a conceited windbag, pompous and brainless, will never be forgotten by anyone who saw it. And in his poems he was truly dramatic; for he drew individual pictures of farmers and other persons who are definitely differentiated from all others. The man Riley was as lovable as the sentiments expressed in his poems.

Transient Aid Over Maryland Is Increasing

Frederick Lists 1,700, and Other Bureaus Take Part in Program.

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The St. Marys County CWA reports 230 men are at work. The county registration office, under direction of George Hamilton, reports 1322 have registered, that 432 have been given employment and that 890 are on the waiting list.

The lowest bidder for constructing the 4 miles of road to complete the Three Notch road was L. R. Colbert, of Virginia, at $28,000. Labor for this road will be selected from the register.

Hagerstown Staff Named.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Rudolph W. Jordan, named by State Director Frank M. Liddle, has arrived to take charge of the Federal Transient Bureau here. He came from Louisville, Ky., where he was engaged in welfare work. About 50 transients are being cared for at the home now.

William Sparrow, Hagerstown, has been named interviewer for the bureau, and Miss Kathryn Bingham, Weverton, will be the social worker. This is one of similar bureaus to be established in Maryland, intended to keep transients from wandering about the country.

Water System Argued.

Clearspring Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Town officials will confer this week with Abel Wolman, chief engineer of the State department of health, relative to the type of water system to be installed here.

The health department has authorized the system at a cost of $23,000, $5,500 of which is a PWA grant. Local officials favor a reservoir and 8-inch pipeline, and the health department has suggested a tank.

Many Nomads at Frederick.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—About 1,700 transients have registered at the local Transients' Center established under auspices of the Board of State Aid and Charities.

Food, clothing and lodging are supplied through the agency, the plan being to prevent aimless traveling about the country. If the stranded person is found to have relatives or means of livelihood elsewhere he is sent there, if not he is kept here. A similar center has been established in Brunswick.

Frederick's part in the CWA business survey is under way, directed by John W. Hoffman, district supervisor. The canvassers are Lewis E. Eichelberger, Willard H. Markey, Robert M. Staley and J. Garrott Hayes. Three more will be added for the county.

Bureau for Cumberland.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Harry E. Flook, manager of the reemployment office here, says all jobs have been filled on projects, and until additional work is obtained it will be useless for registered unemployed persons to apply at the office.

Miss Catherine Sponseller will be supervisor for Cumberland's transient bureau, with offices in the Macfarlane building. Miss Sponseller, a resident here, formerly was executive secretary of Family Welfare agencies at Roanoke, Va. She is a graduate of Allegany High School.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, secretary of the county welfare and relief committee, has been advised that Dr. Emma Ward, of Baltimore, will be sent here by the State Relief Board, to work out a plan for the employment of women with dependents in county CWA movements.

Plans are considered here to apply for CWA funds to construct a stadium and outdoor recreation center. Local funds would supplement the Federal aid.

Mrs. Sarah Hanger Buried at Staunton

Staunton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Kennedy Hanger, wife of J. A. Hanger, who died at her home in Stuarts Draft Monday, was held today at Calvary Methodist Church. The Rev. C. I. Flory officiated.

Surviving are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. C. E. Pence and Mrs. C. E. Roudabush, of Staunton; three sons, H. A. Hanger, Stuarts Draft; D. O. Hanger, Waynesboro, C. E. Hanger, Buchanan, and an adopted daughter, Miss Della Hanger.

Wife to Face Grand Jurors After Killing

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Held for killing Mrs. Elsie Barksdale Ray here last night during a dispute, Mrs. William P. Casey, 37, of Stony Point, today waived preliminary hearing. Her case was set for consideration by the corporation court grand jury Monday.

The body of Mrs. Ray, 24, a waitress and mother of a small child, was at University Hospital waiting burial arrangements. She died there last night after being shot by Mrs. Casey after a dispute involving Casey. Mrs. Ray was seperated from her husband, Earl Ray, of Crozet, police said.

Husband Unemployed.

Casey, who is unemployed, swung to the defense of his wife. He told Police Chief Maurice Greaver he "was to blame for the whole thing except the shooting."

Before she was led away to the women's quarters at the jail last night, the pair parted with an embrace.

A signed confession made by Mrs. Casey revealed Mrs. Casey persuaded her husband to drive from their Stony Point home to talk with the waitress. She fastened a revolver beneath her cloak without his knowledge.

Fired One Shot.

They met Mrs. Ray and the trio drove in Casey's car to a point on Preston avenue. In the ensuing argument, Mrs. Casey said, her husband and Mrs. Ray declined to discontinue their relationship. She quoted her husband as stating "there is no use saying anything more."

"Come on Elsie," she said her husband told Mrs. Ray, who started toward the automobile. Mrs. Casey fired once. The bullet lodged in Mrs. Ray's brain.

Mrs. Casey threy away the revolver, but then searched about and recovered it for police, thinking "the officers would want it." She asked a passing taxi driver, Roy Southall to call police, and calmly waited at a nearby filling station until they came. Mrs. Ray was taken to the hospital by Policeman J. J. Buck.

Witness in Bank Robbery Jailed

Alleged West Virginia 'Tip' Man Faces Charge.

Buckhannon, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—After a week's search, Melvin Swiger, 60, sought as a witness in the Adrian Bank robbery in December, was placed in the Upshur County jail here today. He was arrested yesterday at Reynoldsville on a warrant issued by Magistrate R. T. Evans, at Buckhannon, charging Swiger with obtaining money under false pretenses.

Swiger is said to have telephoned a tip to Sheriff Morgan Bailey, of Upshur County, that resulted in the detention of Mrs. Helen Brenway, 39, at St. Marys, as a suspect in the robbery, in which $1,800 was taken. One bandit was killed and another was captured. The woman is in the Upshur jail.

St. Marys County Resident Buried

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today for Louis H. Van Landingham, 69, farmer of St. Marys County.

Mr. Van Landingham died Monday at St. Marys Hospital.

Charlottesville Youth, Named Rhodes Scholar, Goes Abroad

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Herbert Chermside Pollock, 20, of Charlottesville, student at the University of Virginia, sailed tonight for Oxford University to begin his work as a Rhodes scholar.

He stopped here several hours yesterday en route to New York from Atlanta, where he was chosen as one of the four young men to receive Rhodes scholarships from District 3, covering Georgia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Florida and Tennessee.

Mr. Pollock is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James K. Pollock, who moved here from Morristown, N. J., in 1929 in order that their son might attend the university. He finished high school in Morristown.

As a student at the university, he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Raven Society, the managing board of the magazine, and was associated with work of the student senate. He recently received an English-Speaking Union scholarship, but had indicated he would give this up if he received the Rhodes award.

Mrs. M.D. Pollard Dead; Formerly of Staunton

Staunton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Relatives here have been informed of the death in Lakeland, N. J., of Mrs. M. D. Pollard, formerly of this city. Mrs. Pollard leaves two children, Mrs. G. T. Seiden and Herbert Pollard, of New York City; a sister in New Jersey and a brother, W. J. Swink, of Staunton.

Burial Rites Held For Homer Winn

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The funeral of Homer Winn, jr., 24, of Campbell, Va., who died yesterday at University Hospital, was held this afternoon at Campbell.

Mr. Winn married Miss Catherine Burns, of Washington, D. C., who survives him. He also leaves his father, three brothers and four sisters, L. M. and W. R. Winn, of Charlottesville; John Winn, of Campbell; Mrs. R. L. Draper, Charlottesville; Mrs. J. C. Corbell, of Gloucester; Mrs. R. J. Bedell, of Long Beach, Calif., and Miss Marvel Winn, of Campbell.

Landlord Loses In Padlock Case

Court in Fredericksburg Bars Tenant.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—Judge Frederick W. Coleman, in Corporation Court, today entered an injunction against M. Wallace Jones, a landlord, restraining him from letting a room to Malcolm Rice, 35, for a year, and requiring him to pay Commonwealth's Attorney W. B. F. Cole's fee of $50, and court costs of $20, in padlock proceedings against the room.

An injunction was also entered against Rice, restraining him from renting the room for the same period.

Two officers testified they had notified Jones of disorderly conditions existing in his place, and that Jones failed to take steps to correct the conditions or evict the tenant.

Fire Destroys Home.

Warrenton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The home of Herbert Tarly, near Liberty, was destroyed by fire last night. When the Warrenton Fire Department responded to a general alarm the building was a mass of flames. The loss was estimated at $4,000.

Retired Contractor Was 90 Years Old.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Capt. Edwin H. Diffenderfer, 90, retired building contractor, died last night following a short illness.

A native of Winchester, Capt. Diffenderfer spent his entire life here. He was the only living former captain of the Old Union Fire Company.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Frank Barr and Mrs. Jack Smith, of Winchester; one brother, Lewis McKin Diffenderfer, of Winchester, and several grand children. Funeral rites will be conducted here at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow.

*PROGRESS MEANS CHANGE!...

Announcing...THREE MAGNIFICENT NEW CADILLACS

AND A SENSATIONAL NEW LA SALLE!

Everywhere in America, "the old order changeth, giving place to new." Progress, and that alone, is the keynote of this new age in which we live. . . . Cadillac, out of its quarter century of progress, brings you this spirit of change in three magnificent new Cadillacs and a sensational new La Salle! . . . In designing these cars, the precedents of the past were completely ignored. For progress means change! . . . Of foremost importance is the revolutionary new system of front-end construction — "Knee-Action" wheels — giving, by far, the finest ride ever known in any automobile. Even in the rear seat, passengers can now ride at high speeds over rough roads, in complete relaxation. The car actually seems to glide. . . . All control mechanisms have been greatly improved. The motors have been endowed with new smoothness and acceleration. The bodies are far finer and more beautiful, both inside and outside—with all enclosed models embodying the latest Fisher No Draft Ventilation. In fact, the whole of every car has been so radically improved that only after a thorough demonstration and inspection can you appreciate the full advancement that has been made. . . . And, even in the face of today's rising market, prices have been drastically reduced. . . . The new Cadillacs are now on display at our showrooms. The La Salle—a completely new car, entirely re-designed in all its phases—and equipped exclusively with bodies by Fleetwood—will be available within a few weeks. The V-16, as usual, is custom built to order. . . . We sincerely believe that this is the greatest announcement Cadillac has ever made. See these cars with that thought in mind. You can't be dissappointed.

Ladies of Cabinet Observe 'At Home'

Capital Society Assembles at Brilliant Reception Given by Mrs. Morgenthau, Mrs. Ickes, Mrs. Wallace and Miss Perkins.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Capital society, diplomatic, official and resident, met yesterday afternoon at the Sulgrave Club, when four ladies of the Cabinet officially observed the second Wednesday at-home of this season. Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, received.

The hostesses stood in the handsome oval ballroom of the club, and the guests, after being received, passed through two charmingly decorated drawing rooms into the hall, and beyond to the dining room, where tea was served.

Mrs. Morgenthau, who headed the line, wore a gown of black velvet with wide sleeves of sheer white material embroidered in white beads, and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Ickes was in a handsome gown, also of black with touches of white, and wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias, while Mrs. Wallace had chosen black crepe with a wide piping of tomato color at the neckline. Miss Perkins had on a black gown fashioned on tailored lines, and a small black hat.

Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, daughter of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, poured tea for Mrs. Ickes and made a charming picture as she sat at the end of the great table in the dining room, which was lighted by candles and decorated with red and white flowers. She wore a frock of deep coral crepe and a smart black velvet beret set jauntily on her blonde hair.

Assisting Mrs. Ickes were Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, who wore a gown of deep blue velvet with a small black hat and silver fox furs; Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, and Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller.

Assisting Mrs. Morgenthau were Mrs. Earle Baillie and Mrs. Blair Bannister, while Mrs. Wallace was assisted by Mrs. Rexford Tugwell, and Mrs. Chester Davis. Miss Perkins was assisted by Mrs. Edward F. McGrady and Miss Schneiderman.

Hostesses Receive Many Guests.

The long line of guests moved with amazing rapidity considering their numbers and the cordial greeting that the hostesses had for each guest. Glimpsed in the gathering were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wearing a gray costume and a chinchilla wrap; the Ambassador of Brazil and Mme. de Lima e Silva, Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, wife of Associate Justice Roberts, and Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Minister of Sweden. In another group were the Baroness van Breugel Dougal, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the Netherlands, wearing a black crepe ensemble trimmed with silver fox and a small black hat pointed between her brows; Mme. de Wichfeld, wife of the Counselor of the Danish Legation; Baroness Beck-Friis, wife of the Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Signora Sbernadori, wife of the Air Attache of the Italian Embassy, recently returned from Europe, and greeted on all sides by welcoming friends.

Mrs. George Mesta and her sister, Mrs. Skirvin Adams, who arrived in Washington yesterday from New York, were with Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol. The Solicitor General and Mrs. J. Crawford Biggs were seen chatting with the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Lawrence W. Robert, and in another room were Miss Anne and Miss Mary Randolph, Miss Bell Gurnee, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, Chief of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department, and Mr. Robert F. Kelley, chief of the Eastern European Division of the State Department.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper At Home.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, entertained at her first official at-home yesterday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock in their home on Woodland drive. The color scheme of red, white and green was carried out with roses, stevia and ferns. Mrs. Roper received wearing a gown of black velvet made with long sleeves and a high neck and a trimming of crystal beads. Receiving with her was Mrs. John Dickinson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Alternating at the tea table were Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and assisting were Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Hutch I. Cone, Mrs. George R. Putnam, Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Mrs. Lyman Briggs. Those who served were the wives of the heads of all of the bureaus of the Department of Commerce, including Mrs. Eugene L. Vidal, Mrs. J. Carroll Cone, Mrs. Rex Martin, Mrs. William L. Austin, Mrs. Willard L. Thorp, Mrs. Frank T. Bell, Mrs. S. S. Patton, Mrs. Conway P. Coe, Mrs. South Trimble, Mrs. Malcolm Kerlin, Mrs. Chester McCall, Miss Grace Roper, Mrs. Joan Roper and Mrs. Fred Roper.

Two Visit Capital Preceding Voyages

Dr. and Mrs. LaGorce Are Hosts at Shoreham.

Mrs. Bernard F. Gimbel and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Isaac Gimbel, have arrived at the Shoreham to spend a few days, and to see Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce before the LaGorces depart tomorrow for their cottage at Miami Beach. Mrs. Bernard F. Gimbel, after returning to her home in New York, will sail January 20 with her daughter, Caral, to spend two months in Paris, and Mrs. Isaac Gimbel will go to Jamaica. Mr. Bernard Gimbel, now in New York, will join Dr. and Mrs. LaGorce in Miami Beach after Mrs. Gimbel sails.

The Child Who Tore Up an Ugly Hat Is Now a Famous Designer of Hats and Gowns

Handicrafts Nation's Need, Federated Club Women Hear

Clarence Pickett Tells Them a "Little Shop" Movement Would Do Much to Lift Thousands Out of Despair and Restore Good Times.

A national handicraft movement, to provide occupations for hundreds of thousands of unemployed men and women throughout the country, was urged yesterday before the General Federation of Women's Clubs in convention here.

The speaker was Clarence Pickett, of the Subsistence Homestead Division of the Interior Department, who said:

"Many people today are sick, mentally and spiritually sick, from unemployment, and there is no better cure than extension of the privilege to carry on handicraft work in little shops. With this in mind, the Subsistence Homestead Division is eager to encourage interest in handicrafts.

"If such enterprises are to be successful, it will not be because of Government support, but it will be because public opinion as formed through the efforts of women groups, such as this one, see the spiritual, aesthetic, commercial and therapeutic value of handicraft in our society today."

Mr. Pickett followed on the program the federation's president, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, who had declared that women, by making buying an art, could help to save the economic structure from ruin.

"The only guarantee that the sweat shop and child labor will not return is an intelligent buyers' strike against such disintegration," Mrs. Poole said. "It must cover every avenue of our daily buying, and, if attained, will make the greatest contribution to a stable tomorrow of any group. I believe it is the greatest challenge yet given us.

"The NRA was not designed simply to save our economic structure from ruin; to help capital and labor live peacably together. Its ultimate purpose is actually to make over our economic life with the star part played by us, the consumers. Just now the slogan is, Buy Now.'

"But when that is accomplished, our slogan should be, 'A Quality Standard Established and Maintained.' That can only be realized by acquiring a knowledge of the art of buying, which, frankly, we do not have."

Delegates, assembled at federation headquarters, 1734 N street northwest, for the opening meeting of the four day's session, were told that their "magnificent response to the challenge" of the President's recovery program was one of the high points in the federation's accomplishments the past year.

Mrs. Poole was followed on the program by Clarence Pickett, of the Subsistence Homestead division of the Interior Department, who said:

"Many people today are sick, mentally and spiritually sick, from unemployment, and there is no better cure than an extension of the privilege to carry on handicraft work in a little shop. With this in mind, the Subsistence Homestead division is anxious to encourage interest in handicrafts.

"If such enterprises are to be successful, it will not be because of government support, but it will be because public opinion as formed through the efforts of women groups such as this one, see the spiritual, aesthetic commercial and therapeutic value of handicraft in our society today."

That the federation is still far short of its goal of a $1,000,000 "foundation fund"—interest from which is to be used in meeting national program budgets—was told by Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight, chairman of the board of trustees. She reported a present total of $121,002.57 in contributions.

There was a ripple of excitement at the meeting when the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs presented to national headquarters a hand-carved native walnut table and three matching chairs, upholstered in needlepoint. The needlepoint had been made by Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, of North Carolina and her sister, Mrs. D. S. Reynolds, of Detroit. The gift was made in memory of Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotton, pioneer North Carolina clubwoman, who died in 1929.

Miss Helen Norris Cummings, president of the Cameron Club, of Alexandria, was hostess at a tea for the delegates, given in the late afternoon at historic Gadsby's Tavern, in Alexandria. Last evening they were guests at a musicale arranged in their honor by the District Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District Federation, is giving a tea for the visiting clubwomen at the Woman's City Club, 736 Jackson place, this afternoon, and tomorrow the highlight event will be a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, at which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be guest of honor.

'Unfit to Farm' Girls of Texas Are Informed

College Station, Tex., Jan. 10 Whatever their "biological adaptability" to agricultural and military training, a dozen girls have lost their court fight to invade the masculine sanctity of Texas A. & M. College.

Following a hearing in which parents of the girls sought to mandamus the college board of directors to grant their daughters registration, and board members stood by their argument that young women were not "biologically adapted" to the courses offered, Judge W. C. Davis denied the application for the writ.

His ruling, however, did not touch on the question of how the girls would fare in a world of men. It was based on his interpretation of the constitution and the statutes as leaving the question of co-education to the board of directors.

L. J. Wardlaw, a member of the board, testifying at the hearing to his belief that young women were not adapted to the A. & M. curriculum, referred to what he termed the vicissitudes of farm life.

Miss Jane Singletary, of Bryan, one of the petitioners, informally stated the other side of the question:

"If women are biologically unfit for these industrial vocations in Texas, it seems the same would be true of other Southern States which permit girls to attend agricultural and mechanical colleges and take the courses offered.

"Thousands of women in Texas now are engaged successfully in dairying, poultry farming, ranching, general farming, rural teaching, textile work and store, shop and factory management. That seems answer enough to the flimsy 'biologically unfit' excuse for barring women."

The petitioning girls said they sought admittance because they were financially unable to attend other colleges and universities because their expenses would be greater and they could not live at home.

Attractive mannequins glide down the stairway in Frances Clyne's luxurious beige salon in New York's East Fifties, to show exciting and fashionable new clothes to the aristocracy of America. Russian-born Miss Clyne, who began as a designer at the age of 10 when she made over her mother's hat and has become one of America's great dressmakers, is pictured below.

Fashion Maker Sees Arrival Of Slim Figure

This designer, Nettie Rosenstein, describes it as a "slimming," figure-fitting silhouette, with inconspicuous waistline and interest all at the top.

This top interest adds to the appearance of height. It will be a season of subtle changes — not startling differences. The waist must be small. In fact, to look her best in the new spring gowns, a woman must have a natural figure —slender, but with curves. No flat chests.

Season For Suits Forecast.

It was this designer who made the first cowl neck in this country. Paris discovered it later. She also was the first to use big sleeves in the summer of 1931.

The coming spring will be a great dressmaker suit season, she believes. Dresses with jackets giving a suit effect are in her spring collection.

Painstaking Fittings.

"Black," Says Paris, for the Formal Gown

But She Enlivens Somber Velvets and Silks With Rich Jewels.

Paris—"Black" is the edict again for formal clothes.

The cocktail parties, dinners and galas given here recently were thronged with chic women many of whom wore costumes devoid of color except for a sparkling brooch of diamonds or rubies.

Long black velvet frocks and ensembles worn with small black hats are chosen by the smartest women for afternoon affairs and black evening gowns are worn by many sophisticates to evening galas.

Little Rouge Used.

The makeup which goes with these frocks has a distinction of its own. Very little rouge is used. Smart Parisians wear a smooth mat powder which gives an ivory tint to the skin, brilliant lip rouge, eye shadow on their eyelids and an unguent on their lashes to deepen the color of their eyes.

At a recent tea given by the Comtesse Celani, the Baronne Thyssen wore a close-fitting long-sleeved Lelong frock of black crepe finished with a ruby clip. With it she wore one of the new "off the face" hats in black felt.

Mme. Ecnault Deletrie appeared in a Lanvin ensemble of black velvet trimmed in silver fox and a black felt hat.

Black Tulle and Diamonds.

Frances Clyne Is Costumer Of America's Richest Women

The Little Immigrant Girl From Russia Found Her Calling at the Age of 10, When She Ripped Up Her Mother's Horrid New Bird-Cage Bonnet.

Dresses—lovely frocks for charming women to wear. Some say Paris is the only spot on earth that can produce beautiful gowns. But the new generation of America's great dressmakers have proved that is not true. A few of them have equalled—even surpassd the Frnch geniuses of haute couture.

A shiny new hat that resembled an inverted bird's nest, bedecked with ribbon doodads and nodding posies, lay in state on the bed of a Russian immigrant family in New York City. For weeks the mother had planned for this beautiful bonnet for herself. That afternoon her 10-year-old daughter had gone with her to help her select it.

Now the little girl stood before the bed gazing at the hat, turning her head from side to side and wrinkling her nose in dissatisfaction. When she had made sure that no one was watching her she swooped upon the bird-nest affair and plucked from it the gay posies and saucy bows. Next she tore the straw apart. Then, with large needle and coarse thread, she put the hat together in an entirely new shape.

Still, it didn't suit her idea of what it should be. She ripped it apart again. At this interesting point her mother walked in. The older woman took in the situation at a glance. She walked straight to her daughter and gave her—an approving pat on the head. This accolade from her mother marked the debut of Frances Clyne, milliner, who now has a dressmaking salon in New York that is frequented by the aristocracy of America.

The Hat Was Ruined.

That was 30 years ago. When Mrs. Clyne (or whatever her unpronouncable Russian name was) patted Frances on the head it was not so much a reward for ruining the new hat as gratefulness that the youngster should be showing interest in her new work. That afternoon, Frances had asked the milliner for a job. She had chosen just the right moment—the moment when Mrs. Clyne was wavering over the purchase—and, in order to clinch the sale, the proprietor of the little shop had said that of course she would give the child something to do.

She should start work next week. It was in preparation for this that Mrs. Clyne sacrificed her hat to be made over, and made over, and made over again. No one in the family thought it strange that Frances should begin working at the age of 10. Girls in Russia bade farewell to carefree childhood days when they are quite young. Besides, the money was badly needed in the Clyne household.

But the new hat was sacrificed in vain. The milliner had forgotten her promise when Frances went to claim the job. The little Russian girl went back to school. But she did secure part-time work in millinery and dress shops within the next few years. By the time she was 17 she was making hat models in a stylish shop in Twenty-third street, then a fashionable thoroughfare.

One day the manager asked her to come to the showroom and add a few touches to a chapeau, right on the customer's head. The customer was Anna Held. Frances was so excited when she recognized the famous woman that she almost yanked the turban off, in her efforts to twist it to the proper angle.

Anna Held Wore It.

Miss Held liked the turban. She confided to the little milliner that she would wear it that night to the horse show and that she would create a sensation. She probably did. So far as is known the turban represented the first time a hat had been fitted to a customer's head in America. Now milliners from Coast to Coast have followed Frances Clyne's lead in this matter.

When she left the Twenty-third street shop, Miss Clyne went to work for J. M. Gidding, owner of a shop that dealt in fine hats, gowns and wraps. She was in Europe, buying hats for this establishment, when the war broke out.

At that time the American stores and shops were entirely dependent upon Paris for styles. Hollywood had not become the enfant terrible that she is today in starting fads and fancies. As for American designers—they had not even scratched the surface of dress materials. Paris was the lyre to which the fashion world was attuned. When the explosion of bombs and the staccato barking of guns drowned out the music of the lyre, the dress and coat manufacturers found themselves in a pretty hopeless state of affairs. They had leaned upon Paris so long for their inspiration that if there had ever been a single original idea among the lot, it had atrophied from lack of encouragement.

Paris Haute Couture.

Mr. Gidding wildly cabled Miss Clyne to take enough time off from buying hats to see the latest thing in gowns and wraps. This was risky business. Although she knew hats as well as she did her own face, she had not been watching the trends in gowns and wraps. But the Russian-American young woman sailed into the French haute couture and bought the things she thought would appeal to women in New York and points West and South.

Her guesses were right, in every instance. The minute the models arrived at Giddings', the head of the establishment cabled Miss Clyne to buy others. This cable was followed by several similar ones. She bought feverishly, joyously, discovering that gowns were just as interesting as hats. When she returned to New York she found that she had a reputation as a careful and discriminating buyer.

In December, 1915, Mr. Gidding said to her, "How would you like to go abroad for me again?" He tried to make it sound casual, as if the ocean were not spluttering with submarines and as if Paris were not having frequent nuisances in the form of air raids. Miss Clyne's casualness matched his. "Sure, I'll go. When do I sail?"

And On to Deauville.

After she had managed to duck into the ateliers and do a bit of buying between the bursting of bombs, she was ordered to Deauville to make reports on the fashions being worn there. She found that one color was enjoying an enormous, unprecedented vogue. That color was khaki.

Frances Clyne looked dispairingly at the drab scene. The people back in New York wanted to hear about lovely, glamorous costumes. Very well. With only a moment's hesitation, Miss Clyne, with her own imagination, devised mauve chiffon frocks with chinchilla capes. She sent back reports about gleaming gold satin, rich brocades, luxurious furs and twinkling taffetas. The contents of her cabled reports were reproduced in full-page advertisements in the New York papers.

Miss Clyne is neither ashamed nor proud of this hoax. "It was just one of those things that somehow happen. And it did stimulate business on this side of the Atlantic. Elegance was just beginning to be accepted here. Those reports gave it a stronger foothold."

Her Own Salon.

It was after the war that Frances Clyne opened her own establishment. Today she has a beautiful salon, done in beige, at 6 East Fifty-sixth street, New York. Its cool modernity forms a perfect background for the exquisite clothes that are shown there to a distinguished clientele. These clothes have elegance without affectation, craftmanship without obviousness, and simplicity without monotony.

Some of them are adaptations of French originals. Many of them are designed by Miss Clyne. She was the first creator in America to combine with her other talents those of the superior French vendeuse, who stays throughout the fitting, knows the mode, the model and her client. Frances Clyne is the most active of all her workers and her sure hand knows where every seam should be placed. Every day she spends from 12 to 16 hours between the fitting room and workroom. She refuses to sell a dress that she does not believe is exactly right.

Hard Worker.

She herself wears very simple things which are usually a bit mussed because she will plop down on the floor every now and then to show a fitter how to adjust a gore here and how to place a tuck there. She seldom has time to have her hair curled or her nails manicured. Sometimes she wonders how women can bear to trust her judgment in clothes after looking at her. But at least four times a year she says farewell to the shop and goes holidaying in Europe.

Big Romance Boom On, Says Marriage License Bureau

But It's Not Romantic, Just Funny, the Clerks Insist, This Business of Getting Down the Facts About Folks in Love.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

The big business boom is on—in the District marriage license bureau. And as far as the employers of the women are concerned, it's a silly enough business, too.

For all the world may love a lover, but to those who have romantic brides and bridegrooms on their hands all day long, every day in the week, they just mean a lot of extra doors to open and shut and new cards in the filing cabinet.

Yesterday this reporter went gaily to the District Courthouse in search of Romance—real Romance—spelled with a capital. She found a gratifying situation, so far as weddings were concerned, but was not a little disappointed and shocked by the indifference of these guardians of our matrimonial affairs.

"Huh," snorted the uniformed guard in front of the door. "I ain't got no time to notice folks that get married. If they want to do a fool thing like that in these hard times it's their hard luck."

Too Saccharine!

"It's all just a part of the day's work to me," said Mrs. Maud Rinex, who issues the licenses. "Romantic, nothing. They are much more likely to be funny!

"Last week an old man 80 years old came in and applied for a license. His bride, who was about 50, came with him. 'Stop!' he cried when I asked him to hold up his right hand and swear to the facts. 'No woman clerk can marry us. We are going to have a preacher do it.'

"One day two men walked out because they refused to answer the questions I asked them. They said I was entirely too personal and that I would get along much better if I would mind my own business."

Mrs. Rinex said that many people get married when they barely have enough money to buy the license, which costs $2.

"I felt terribly sorry for a young colored boy who came in here. He wanted to buy his license on the installment plan. He had saved $1.25 and had to work and make the rest. He was quite worried, so I took the money he had and promised to save the license until he had the $2.

"Often the groom will come in and then borrow enough money from the girl to finish getting the license. I can't get used to that. It does seem that that is one expense the man ought to bear. Of course it may have something to do with equal rights.

"Imagine my surprise one day when I looked up and saw two couples, both of whom had young babies. They said they were from another city, and they had decided they might as well get married. I never saw people so unconcerned about anything. It reminded me of the old comic story of the man who has just seen his granddaughter married and then turned to the lady who was supposedly his wife and said: 'Well, old lady, I guess you and I might as well get married, too.'

"Strangely mated people sometimes come in to get marired. Not long ago we had a man 72, who came in and got a license to marry a girl of 20.

"Brides are often older than the men they marry nowadays. Once people thought that was terrible. I can't explain the difference in attitude except that the beauty creams women use must really keep them young looking."

Hands up—You're It!

At this point a young colored boy came up and shyly handed in his application for a license. Mrs. Rinex looked at it critically.

"Now take off your hat and hold up your right hand," she bade him. The youth obeyed.

"Do your solemnly swear that the facts stated here are true?" The boy's black eyes showed wide and terrified in his brown face.

"Wait a minute," he said. "My girl ain't old as I said. But I do want to get married. What can I do?" He looked appealingly at Mrs. Rinex.

"Oh, that's simple," she said. "Get her parents to come in and consent to her marriage."

"Oh, sure, I can do that." He smiled happily. "I'll be right back." And he hurried out the door.

Mrs. Rinex looked after him speculatively. "Well, maybe your are right," she said. "It may be romance, and then it may be just incurable optimism. No matter what it is they keep on getting married. Business is picking up all the time."

Silver-White of Northern Snows

Photograph by Alfredo Valente.

When Frances Clyne made this ice-blue silver-shot crepe negligee for Judith Anderson she fitted it so sleekly that its lines become fluid with the wearer's every motion. The pale, cloudy pink feathers at the shoulders give a touch of frivolity to statelliness. The actress wore the negligee in "The Drums Begin."

The Fluid Lines of Statuary

One of the most strikingly lovely costumes on the stage this season was the wartime dress and cape designed by Frances Clyne and worn by Judith Anderson in "The Drums Begin." The fabric of the dress was blue-gray bagheera. The starkly simple cape was in royal blue, lined with blue-gray.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

True Sympathy.

'Tis well enough to say:
Cheer up, good friend today.
Soon your cares will pass away!
But the troubled mind needs more
From the caller at the door
Than a few words mumbled o'er.

Best for doubts which terrify
And the heartache and the sigh
Is a true friend standing by.
For so strangly is man made
That the mind which is afraid
Is in desperate need of aid.

When man feels that all is wrong
What he needs to come along
Is a kind heart and a strong;
One who's been through grief and doubt
And the care that wears one out
And knows what they're all about.

Words fall sweetly on the ears,
But when one is prey to fears
It's the helping hand that cheers.
One can rise once more to try
'Gainst the odds which terrify
If a true friend's standing by.

Best Eye Make-up.

In applying eye make-up for the street or evening wear, always make the eyelashes a shade darker than the eyebrow, says Colleen Moore.

Dash of Color Breaks Gloom In Wardrobe

Drab Shades of Winter Respond Readily to Contrasts.

January, the forlorn month—holidays are over, people are suffering a mental and physical relapse. And your poor wardrobe, battered and shaken by much winter use, hangs listlessly in the closet longing for a bit of cheer. Take a look at it—does it look appallingly black—or gloomily brown?

Like yourself, it needs a bit of freshening, a bit of gayety, a dash of the piquant. A striped taffeta blouse, perhaps—bright with contrasting colors, gray and orange, green and yellow, with a dashing ascot tie that looks like a giant-sized bow flaring boldly under your chin. Why not? It will cure any wardrobe blues.

Bottles—there are all kinds of them, big green ones and squat brown ones, but the daintiest bottle in the world is just the thing for a luncheon favor. How? Fill it with a liqueur—if you have such a thing—or with the red wine that you brought back on the boat, tie a label around its neck, write a name, and you have a really original place card. A dozen of these bottles, all shapes, tall and slender, short and pinched through the middle, weirdly twisted into alluring shapes, costs $2.00. The bottles are about two inches high, and would be perfect to hold perfume after the wine is gone.

Speaking of luncheons, hand-painted match boxes, decorated with floral designs or all sorts of ships, are 50 cents a set. The small ones come in sets of eight, the large in sets of six. They add a note of charm to your parlor table.

Bargains in Linen.

There are lots of linen sales going on now. Linens for breakfast, luncheon, dinner and tea. Linens from China and Russia, linens with color, or demureley and correctly white. The Russian sets are so brilliantly beautiful that you stand before them, gasp, and recklessly buy. They are woven with bright borders, embroidered by hand with the exotic patterns that characterize the Slav. Bridge sets, a cloth and four napkins, are only $2.75. Luncheon sets, a cloth 54 by 72 inches and eight napkins, are $7.95, and the dinner sets, each with a large cloth and eight napkins, are $12.

But here's a real bargain. A set of white linen, all hemmed and ready for use, a cloth and 12 napkins, is only $13.50. It will relieve your very best dinner set of a lot of hard wear, or would make a young bride heave a sigh of relief. Somehow one cannot have too much linen, particularly if one entertains extensively.

And, oh, what a heavenly set of china! It is cream-colored, the surface oddly ridged by a special process, and around the edge there is a black border that looks as if some clever seamstress had taken a needle and whipped around the plates and cups with a heavy black thread. The china is English, made by a famous company, and this set is called the "black stitch" pattern. The "stitching" is not painted on, but is a black clay baked into the earthenware of the china, so it will not wear off. Best of all, you can get 108 pieces of the china for only $45. The set is open stock, so you can supplement your own set with cunning porringers, or salad plates.

For after-dinner coffee here's a set that will make you a distinctive hostess. It is a new white—yes, there is such a thing—called "lead white," that is dull and dignified. The set is $6.50 for the cups and saucers, cream pitcher and sugar bowl and a tall coffee pot, shaped with real style.

Something New in Graters.

Here's the newest thing in graters, a set of three of them guaranteed not to cut your fingers. They are all sizes and styles. They will grate anything from radishes to cheese, making the most prosaic vegetable look like food for the gods. There's a lady in a department store who will show you just how to use them, and if there's anything she can't grate it will be an unusual article. The set of three costs 85 cents, and there is a recipe book made up particularly for the merits of the grater—telling you how it's done and when to do it. The book is 15 cents, so the whole set amounts to $1. Your dinner table will blossom as if transformed in the hands of a French chef, and you can snicker and tell yourself that it was a dollar well spent.

There's another grater that works like a meat grinder. Put the vegetable or cheese in the top, press it down with the littlie wooden block that fits in and turn the crank, and your cheese will come out nice and fluffy—can cheese be fluffy? This grater comes in two sizes, one for 95 cents, the other for $1.15.

What to put in that dark corner of the den? Where to find an appropriate lamp? Ah! Here's one. The standard is a tiny three-legged wooden stool, a miniature of the ones milkmaids used to use. The standard and little shade are $1.25.

Those Nice Cozy German Beer Gardens Just Won't Do Over Here, Says Capital Visitor

New York Woman Disagrees With LaGuardia on Sidewalk Cafes.

They're Fine in Havana or in Berlin, But Not in U. S. A., She Thinks.

By Elizabeth Young.

American cities are personalities too distinctive in their own right ever to become copyists of Continental cities in the matter of sidewalk cafes and beer gardens.

That's the opinion of an interesting woman visiting Washington from America's biggest city, whose mayor recently proposed to make German beer gardens with orchestras and French sidewalk cafes a part of the civic scene.

She is Mrs. Bertha Adams Mulvey, half-Irish descendant of the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams; and the project she thinks won't "take" is Mayor LaGuardia's of New York.

"American cities will never take to Mayor LaGuardia's plan, in my opinion, for the simple reason that Americans can get along happily without sidewalk cafes and beer gardens," Mrs. Mulvey said yesterday, when interviewed at the Mayflower Hotel.

"They really have no place in the American scheme. I think the great appeal of the French sidewalk cafe and the German beer garden to their own nationalities is the invitation to leisure; but when Americans go there, it's more on the chance of seeing some one they know, or some one from home.

"Just as they go to 'Sloppy Joe's,' in Havana. What's the first thing we do after we get to Havana? Nine out of ten of us, if we haven't already run into some one we know at our hotel, make for 'Sloppy Joe's,' not so much for purposes of hilarity as to see a face from the States.

"No, Personally, I think New York can and will get along without sidewalk cafes and beer gardens, and still be known as the greatest and best city on earth. And I daresay others who love their particular cities feel the same about them."

Mrs. Mulvey has had her finger on the political pulse of her beloved New York for 22 years. When a girl just out of school—she graduated in law from New York University—she managed the campaign and publicity of the late Daniel J. Griffin, in his first successful campaign as Representative from New York. She relinquished abbitions of a career before the bar to marry Thomas J. Mulvey, who died some years ago.

Mrs. Mulvey discussed the great shift in public opinion toward women political campaigners, since she engaged in it 22 years ago.

"Then, the most bitter retort an antagonistic male could think to hurl at us, and they did it violently and often, was: 'Why don't you go home and wash the dirty dishes in the sink?' I happened to recall that remark recently in making a public speech. It brought the house down, especially the men. They seemed to have forgotten they ever dared say such a thing to a woman!"

Mrs. Mulvey spoke with pride of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as "the epitome of womanhood."

"Mrs. Roosevelt is alive to everything," she said. "Her vitality is amazing. She has been an inspiration to every woman in the country since she has been in the White House."

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Bertha Adams Mulvey, Capital visitor, believes that our American cities will never adopt the European plan of music and beer on the sidewalks and in the open air. It doesn't suit our personality, she says.

The Family Marketer

Like the grate fire, the chafing dish serves to draw good friends together. It's intimacy and it's informality inspires clever, friendly talk, and eager appreciative appetites. What hostess will not appear more gracious behind the grace of the chafing dish, what man's heart will not grow warm and tender under it's gentle auspices?

So get out your dish, fill the lamp, get your utensils in order, call up your very best friends and invite them to a chafing dish party.

Before beginning to cook, see that the table is well supplied with knives and forks, and napkins for your guests, and that the ingredients needed are prepared and neatly arranged around your tray, because of the limited size of the dish, and the limited amount that it will hold invite only a few of your friendliest associates, not more than eight or ten, because the chafing dish creation will not appease the appetites of more.

Now for the recipes. Here is one that is delicious with cold sliced meats.

Almonds, Deviled.

¼ pound almonds, blanched
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon chutney sauce
1 tablespoon chopped gherkins
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce sauce
¼ teaspoon paprica
¼ teaspoon salt

Saute almonds in the butter until they are brown, add remaining ingredients, mix well and cook until heated through.

Bacon and Mushrooms (Serves 6).

6 small slices bacon
6 very large mushrooms, peeled
Salt
Paprica
Dash cayenne

Saute bacon until nearly done, add mushrooms, which have been sprinkled with salt, paprica and cayenne. Cook until mushrooms are tender. Serve with a slice of bacon on each mushroom. This recipe may be doubled or trebled according to the desired size of the servings.

Cheese Rarebit With Beans.

1 cup cheese, grated
1 cup cold baked beans, mashed ½ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprica
1 tablespoon Worchestershire sauce

Melt the butter, add salt and paprica, add beans which have been pressed through a seive, add milk. Cook until mixture boils, stirring constantly. Add cheese and Worchestershire sauce and cook until cheese is melted and the mixture smooth. Serve on slices of toast.

Modern Mechanics Rout Primer Elves

School Children's Books Discard Fairy Tales.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 10 (AP). Fairies, elves and cows have been superseded by traffic lights, airplanes and science—in the school reader.

No longer do Ned and his faithful dog, Rover, enact heroic roles in the textbooks, and such words as "hark," "thee" and "thou" that confounded the boys and girls of a generation ago have gone the way of stories about fairies.

And Dr. Walter D. Cocking, Tennessee commissioner of education, says it is a fine thing that mysticism has given way to realism and rusticity has been replaced by urbanity.

"There is some question as to whether it is possible to fool a child anyway," Dr. Cocking said today. "I expect few children believed the old fairy tales.

"The books now are written in the language of the times."

Instead of learning "this is a horse," children of today are informed that "this is a traffic light." Similarly, the story of "what happened to Tim," who was injured seriously as a result of carelessness, has taken the place of the tale of what befell the little boy who lied to his mother.

Opening Notrump Bids of One.

Lacking a biddable suit, a player should bid one notrump provided his hand contains about 3 honor tricks not vulnerable or 4 honor-tricks vulnerable, distributed in three or more suits.

The honor-trick holding which will justify an Opening bid of one notrump when not vulnerable may possibly range from 2½, if the hand includes one or more plus values and some intermediate strength in Tens and nines, to 4 bare honor-tricks with little or no intermediate support.

Spades	A	9	8	3
Hearts	Q	J	8
Diamonds	K	10	9
Clubs	Q	J	7

(2½ honor-tricks.)

Spades	A	K	3
Hearts	A	7	4
Diamonds	8	6	5	2
Clubs	K	J	8

(4 honor-tricks)

Since any Opening one-no-trump bid denies a biddable suit in the hand, it follows that the distribution indicated is 4-3-3-3, as in the above examples, or, occasionally, 4-4-3-2. With 4-4-4-1 distribution any nonbiddable four-card suit is preferable to one notrump, and when the hand contains any five-card suit and no other bidable suit the five-card suit should be preferred to a one-no-trump Opening, regardless of the rank of the card heading it.

A close perusal of the two hands mentioned above will reveal that while there is a difference of 1½ honor-tricks in the two hands, their trick-taking potentialities are almost exactly the same. Not only is this true of the hands listed, but it will be found to be true of any two hands which may be bid at one notrump. This condition is a logical outgrowth of the restrictions placed on Opening notrump bids because:

1. Since a notrump hand contains no biddable suit, in practically no instance will it give any promise of developing more than 1 long-card trick.

2. The range of honor-trick strength reaches its highest point at 4 bare honor-tricks, which are ordinarily worth only 4 playing-tricks, and its lowest point at 2½ honor-tricks reinforced by intermediate cards which will ordinarily develop at least 1 additional winning trick.

3. If the hand contains more than 4 honor-tricks, it will almost always contain a shaded biddable suit, or justify a bid of two notrump.

Analysis therefore shows that an Opening bid of one notrump indicates a hand which, solely on its own strength, will take between 3½ and 4½ tricks at a notrump contract; and from this truth we deduce the conception of the Opening one notrump as a limit bid.

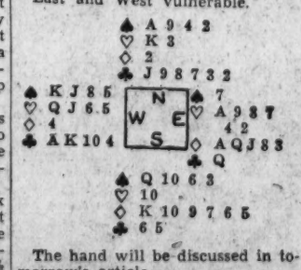

Nor can the vulnerability feature affect the truth of the statement that any one-notrump bid is highly limited in scope. Inasmuch as the vulnerable one notrump guarantees 4 honor-tricks, as against the 3 honor-tricks shown by the not vulnerable one notrump, its range of playing-trick values will be approximately 1 trick higher.

The statement that one-notrump bids show limited strength is not based upon a desire to set an arbitrary restriction on such bids, but upon the profound truth that sound bidding which follows the Approach principle necessarily requires that all but a certain few hands should be opened with one of a suit, and that all other hands biddable at one are approximately alike in general strength. It follows that the responding hand must always take into consideration the fact that his partner who has bid one notrump has in all likelihood shown the full strength of his hand, and that, even in an extreme case, the player who made an Opening bid of one notrump will have at most one Rebid, if that.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If South opens the club 6 against East's contract of six hearts, how should East play the cards?

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

New Creations In Tea Gowns Dazzle Buyers

New York, Jan. 10 (AP). — Tea gowns that will set the masculine heart a-whirl are being created in New York.

One designer, Jessie Franklin Turner, showed in her spring collection today several that are a feast for the lover of beautiful clothes. They are ultra-feminine, swishy and timeless.

One, a froth of chiffon, has a three-layer skirt of flesh, chartreuse and pale blue. It has flowing sleeves, a train, a silver lace bertha with a chartreuse taffeta bow at the front and a belt of magenta velvet.

Another has three chiffon layers throughout—orchid, pale pink and saffron yellow. The three colors shown in narrow folds outlining the neck and in a triple ruffle on the trailing skirt. The gown has a ruffled vest of cream-colored lace.

Sumptuous Gown.

A third tea-gown, one in the regal manner, is of dull crepe in East India red. Although one piece, it wraps around, giving a complex line. The sleeves are draped from shoulder to elbow, and then tight to the wrist.

Two pearl and gold pins give accent—one worn at the shoulder and one at the back. The gown has a panel train.

This designer pays no attention to fashion except as the economic and social order inevitably affect the mode. She designs as she pleases—cutting, pinning and draping the fabric, with no previous drawing.

She creates her own tints in water color and her dyers then reproduce them. One of her greens is from Botticelli's paintings, and her blue from Lake Maggiori. Some of her hues were taken from wild flowers.

Molded Evening Gowns.

Her evening gowns, known for their elegance, are molded to the figure with intricate seaming. One is of eggplant chiffon—a dull purple shade with the sheen of gunmetal. With it goes a long coat of Persian brocade lined with pearl satin.

Her brocades she copied from Persian maharajahs' coats—embroideries she found in the Far East. A shamrock green chiffon gown with a cascaded skirt "waterfall" has a short Persian coat lined with red.

This designer's 1934 rule—and it will be the same each year—is follow the lines of the figure.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Fond parents and their admiring friends have a way of fooling with babies that presents some possibilities of harm. The reference is to cooing to the young one, dangling objects, and trying to attract his attention. Possibly the theory is that this is a contribution to his education or entertainment. It is neither. The intent is to give pleasure to the young one or to the parent. It may succeed in the second objective but it will fail as to the first. The baby has his own standards of entertainment and pleasure and these differ considerably from those of adults. Fortunately, babies are foolproof to a considerable degree, and most of the unwise and potentially harmful things we do with them result in no harm.

At birth a baby is blind, in a certain sense, though not in the way we generally use the term. The nerve impulses that result in vision are carried from the eyeball to the brain by the optic nerve. At birth the nerve fibers of this important nerve are fairly well developed, so far as the central wire is concerned, but there is almost an entire absence of insulation. In consequence, a nerve impulse starting down one nerve fiber spreads all over the place. It would be as though we laid a bunch of plain telegraph wires without insulation under the ocean and then tried to cable England. We would not make a success of the venture. The optic nerve does not become even fairly well insulated until the baby is three weeks old and it is not a good job until he is ten weeks old.

At birth baby's eyes are large but very shallow from before and back, consequently he is farsighted. He may see the ceiling, in so far as he can see anything, but he can see nothing closer. When some kindly person holds baby up, looks him in the eye, and makes assorted faces to attract his attention, baby sees none of the show and does not know what it is all about. If the kindly disposed person will move some ten feet away or climb up to the ceiling he may succeed in attracting the baby's notice.

The eyes rapidly grow in depth and, therefore, become less farsighted. At four months of age he is still quite farsighted. At six months of age it is possible for him to get a fair conception of near objects. At one year of age he is still farsighted, but near vision is tolerably good. To try to make a baby see near objects when farsightedness is still the prevailing condition is to invite cross-eyes and cockeye and, in a degree, to strain the fabric of the eyeball.

The quality which finally makes cross-eyes unlikely is good fusion. Complete and proper capacity for fusing is not attained until about 6 years of age. The eyeball of a baby is very fragile. It is large as compared with the body as a whole. Like the body, it grows according to a definite schedule. In that schedule there are periods of rapid growth and others of slow growth. The different parts of the eyeball grow according to different schedules. Since the structure is a delicate one and growth means softer and less resistant tissues, the eyeball may be considerably changed by the experiences of the growth periods.

Late Winter Coats Possess Early Spring Appearance

Coats of the types described are available in Washington in all the better-class shops.

New York, Jan. 10.—If you have waited until now to choose your winter coat, and, being practical-minded, want something you can "get the good of" right on into early spring, here's an idea. Choose one of the smart unfurred coats. One that's warm but which doesn't look too wintery to greet milder weather.

There's a fashion for them. In two different kinds.

One kind is cut like a dressy coat with high side-button closing and set-in sleeves fulled at the elbows. Some have scarf collars, arranged nattily through loops or with fringed ends to dangle.

But they are made of a sports material . . . tweed. Plain, one-color tweeds, however, without any contrasting nubs. So that the general effect is not a sporty one.

It's a bright effect, though . . . if you want it to be. For in addition to rich browns, you find deep reds and greens, toned to go with either black or brown accessories.

The other kind of unfurred coat is sportier looking, made of checked diagonal or mixture tweeds. And these are cut in the classic, mannish topcoat style. (That's the type shown in the illustration.)

In brown-and-beige or black-and-gray mixtures, these make a fine general, everyday wear coat for right now or early spring.

Even some of the new midwinter fur-trimmed coats can enter spring quite gracefully. And that's because of the fashion for a less lavish use of fur.

You'll find plenty of coats with just a small collar and no fur elsewhere on them. Plenty, too, with fur trimmings used in flat, fabric-like ways, devoid of all bulkiness and, though actually warm, light looking.

These are the ones with simple scarf and tie collars, yokes or plastrons of Persian lamb or other lighter looking furs.

Warm Shawl Collars.

However, for real mid-winter comfort and fashion rightness, you can't beat the coat with big shawl collar of fluffy fur. Generally fox. In the regulation shawl, the one-sided shawl or the rounded swirl shawl.

They are all fashion leaders, snug and cozy. And if you're not looking forward to spring but only to the rest of this winter and to next, these are certainly the coats you'll want.

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If January 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:45 to 8 a. m., from 9 to 10 a. m. and from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:15 to 2:15 and from 7 to 9 p. m.

If you were born on this date, you will have to be very tolerant, for your patience will be very much tried by a friend or business acquaintance. You have a high regard for the value of time, and people who dilly-daily or procrastinate irritate you. You are gifted with a wide range of vision, which will enable you to successfully plan large enterprises. The fair sex has a strong appeal for you, and you thrive on romance, although you are very practical when business affairs are involved.

If you are a woman and born on January 11, you will find a great deal of solace in reading. You have too much of a tendency to select your books indiscriminately, with the result you read entirely too many of a trashy nature. It will be advisable to select your books, as you would your friends, with the greatest care. You crave affection, and if not married, you should marry at the earliest opportunity, for home life and motherhood will bring you your greatest happiness.

January 11 men are unusually successful in any lines of business involving transportation problems. You have a great deal of ability in planning methodical schedules. You can control and direct other men. You are inclined to be a little too exacting in your home life, and you will find it inducive to much more happiness at home if you will make more allowances for little things that now annoy you exceedingly. Your high regard for right principle will help you in life, and you will find your advancements will be largely due to this characteristic.

Frances Clyne's Career Began at 10

nals. When she is in New York she has little time for anything but the Fifty-sixth street establishment. Her Rolls Royce is used merely to take her to and from business. Her apartment, decorated in eighteenth century French style, seems to be conducted largely for the benefit of a fluffy white dog.

Frances Clyne has never married. She believes that romance requires leisure, a luxury she has never enjoyed.

A Genius for the Mode.

This dressmaker-milliner has a genius for interpreting the mode of the moment. She insists that clothes must be comfortable to be flattering and that there is no substitute for quality. She believes that beautiful clothes can be made only from beautiful materials. Special looms are kept in operation to weave a superior quality of lining silk for her alone. She studies her clients, their lives, their habits, so that when she designs clothes for them these clothes are dovetailed into their existences.

Among those who are dressed by Frances Clyne are Mrs. James B. Duke and her daughter, Doris; Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Harrison Williams, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Harold E. Talbott, Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham, the Goulds, the Wideners and every Vanderbilt of this generation.

She also numbers prominent actresses among her clients. Recently she designed a wardrobe for Judith Anderson. She planned the costumes worn by Katharine Cornell in "The Green Hat." Miss Clyne says her greatest satisfaction comes with dressing women who have knowledge, good taste and intelligence.

The "Ten Best Pictures of the Year," as Determined by Critics of the Nation

Annual Voting Produced List Of Fine Works

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"Cavalcade," the Fox picturization of the historical pageant by Noel Coward, was adjudged the best picture of 1933 by the largest vote of the greatest number of motion picture critics ever of record in the annual poll conducted by The Film Daily, leading trade paper of the motion picture industry, published by Jack Alicoate, a former member of the staff of The Post.

The "Ten Best Pictures of the Year," according to the vote of practically all of the leading motion picture critics in the country, the final results of which are released today, were as follows:

1. CAVALCADE
2. FORTH-SECOND STREET
3. PRIVATE LIFE OF HENRY VIII
4. LADY FOR A DAY
5. STATE FAIR
6. A FAREWELL TO ARMS
7. SHE DONE HIM WRONG
8. I AM A FUGITIVE FROM A CHAIN GANG
9. MAEDCHEN IN UNIFORM
10. RASPUTIN AND THE EMPRESS

These selections were made, as stated, by the greatest number of motion picture critics ever participating in the Film Daily's annual field day for appraisers—384, as against last year's previous high of 368.

The winning picture, chosen to top the list of ten, also was accorded that honor by the biggest vote ever given a year's first choice—304 votes, against the previous record of 296, held by "Grand Hotel."

No Two Alike.

In range of subject matter, no two pictures in the winning list were of identical type. The Film Daily's brief summary of the chief qualities of distinction possessed by each picture on the winning list of ten—with which this department is in hearty accord—are as follows:

"'Cavalcade' was a historical epic in a British setting.

"'Private Life of Henry VIII' commanded attention principally by the compelling performance of Charles Laughton, backed by an elaborate production.

"'Lady for a Day' was a strong down-to-earth human interest story with May Robson making the most of a grand role for her.

"'State Fair' hit home because of its imaginative handling of a story dealing with ordinary folks and their dreams.

"'She Done Him Wrong' in addition to establishing Mae West as a dynamic new screen personality, broke down a lot of sham prudish barriers and poked fun at sex in a way that was disarming, refreshing and great fun.

"'I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang' had an exceptionally fine performance by Paul Muni in a tense drama with strong human interest plus a timely sociological angle.

"'Maedchen in Uniform' was an expertly handled study, a bit in the class line, yet possessing such clarity and tensity that it appealed to a wide circle.

"'Rasputin and the Empress' with Ethel, John and Lionel Barrymore, was a distinguished production and so gripping in melodramatic content that it could not help but impress a great many persons."

Seven Producers Win.

The ten winning pictures were the product of only seven producing companies. In addition to the No. 1 "Cavalcade," Fox also accounted for No. 5, "State Fair." The Warner Brothers were represented by two, "Forty-Second Street" and "I Am a Fugitive From Justice;" Paramount by "A Farewell to Arms" and "She Done Him Wrong," starring Helen Hayes and Mae West—as an example of something of the contrasts to be found among the critics' selections. "The Private Life of Henry VIII," although made in England, was released in this country by United Artists. "Lady for a Day" was produced by Columbia; "Rasputin and the Empress," by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and "Maedchen in Uniform" is credited to Filmchoice, which, in this country, of course, means the youthful Messrs. John Krimsky and Gifford Cochran.

How We Picked 'Em.

This column on Monday, December 18, published its selection of the pictures which it deemed best qualified to be recognized as the 10 best of the year, in this order and to wit:

No. 1—Cavalcade.
No. 2—A Farewell to Arms.
No. 3—The Sign of the Cross.
No. 4—I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang.
No. 5—Lady for a Day.
No. 6—Topaze.
No. 7—The Private Life of Henry VIII.
No. 8—Maedchen in Uniform.
No. 9—Forty-Second Street.
No. 10—King Kong.

Seven of these being included in the National list of the year's 10 best, may be excused from further consideration.

Of the other three, it is interesting to note that "The Sign of the Cross" rates No. 7 on the supplementary "1933 Roll of Honor;" that "King Kong" is No. 15 on that list and "Topaze" one notch lower down, at No. 16. Since there are 41 titles on the "Roll of Honor" list, these ratings are fairly up in the running—not that it matters.

The Postmortems.

"King Kong," it may be said, was nominated on our list purely because it could never have been anything else but a motion picture and so reflected one extreme of spectacular daring to which film-making could successfully be carried; "The Sign of the Cross" for the superlative spectacle which it presented, and "Topaze" for a particularly facile performance by John Barrymore.

It was, as Mr. Alicoate points out, a difficult task to pick the 10 best pictures out of a list of 400 or 500 titles from which so many excellent productions necessarily had to be omitted.

However, we may now all breathe freely again, since the nervous strain is over at least until next December—unless, in a burst of sudden inspiration, Mr. Alicoate should decide to pull this business every six months, Heaven forbid!

In case the item of the actual vote is piquing your curiosity, this short paragraph probably might be devoted to telling you that the polling added up something like this: "Cavalcade," 304; "Forty-Second Street," 209; "Private Life of Henry VIII," 187; "Lady for a Day," 173; "State Fair," 169; "Farewell to Arms," 167; "She Done Him Wrong," 158; "I Am a Fugitive," 156; "Maedchen in Uniform," 137; "Rasputin and the Empress," 128. So now you know.

Kreisler Returns.

Fritz Kreisler, the noted Austrian violin virtuoso, who will inaugurate Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey's Tuesday afternoon recital series at Constitution Hall with an appearance there in concert next Tuesday afternoon, January 18, reached New York yesterday from Europe, where he spent the Christmas holidays.

Although an Austrian by birth and training and decidedly in opposition to the Nazi political program in Germany—so much so, in fact, that he declined to play as soloist with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra last summer until the Hitler campaign against musicians on racial grounds was discontinued—Kreisler has made his home on the outskirts of Berlin for many years and it is there that he spends his leisure time between concert tours.

Kreisler will resume his American tour at once, coming to Washington Tuesday and playing a series of engagements until early in February, when he will sail again for Europe immediately after his New York recital in Carnegie Hall.

In anticipation of packed and jammed houses over the week-end by reason of the appearance in person of Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey and peppery little Dorothy Lee as headliners of the vaudeville bill, beginning Friday, the Earle Theater already has decided upon an expanded schedule of performances for Saturday and Sunday. There will be five complete de luxe performances on Saturday, beginning at 10:15 a. m., and running through until 11:30 p. m. Stage shows will be at approximately 11:35 a. m., 2, 4:20, 6:50 and 9:15 p. m. On Sunday there will be four de luxe performances with stage presentations at 2:10, 4:35, 7 and 9:20 p. m.

O'Neil's New Tricks.

Eugene O'Neill may have discontinued his unique habit of writing marathon dramas that require the better part of a day and a night for complete enactment, but most decidedly he has not as yet run out of original tricks in his dramaturgy.

The latest O'Neill play to be revealed on Broadway requires two actors to play the hero role. This is "Days Without End," which the Theater Guild has just opened in the Henry Miller Theater, New York.

"Days Without End" is an experimental drama which is said to have provided new vitality to the discussion of its author's standing as a prophet of American playwriting.

Dubbing it a "modern miracle play," O'Neill revived his use of the mask in character portrayal. His protagonist as the "outer man" appeared straight, while his "other self," in a face of sardonic falsity, made possible the demonstration of a mans struggle with his inner and unseen self.

Actors of Dual Role.

The dual character thus strangely synchronized was John Loving, depicted by Earle Larimore as the man known to his friends, and Stanley Ridges as the other part of the Jekyl-Hyde equation. The result was "something different" for Broadway to talk about, an added evidence of O'Neill's heightened stature as he passed from the problem of youth in "Ah, Wilderness!" his other work now running in New York with George M. Cohan, to a more mature study.

Selena Royle, in private life, Mrs. Larimore, was the hero's stage wife. Ilka Chase and Robert Loraine had other outstanding parts.

The more we think about it, the better "Let 'Em Eat Cake," the new political satire currently at the National, gets. Brothers or not, seldom have composer and lyricist so thoroughly and delightfully coordinated their efforts as have George and Ira Gershwin in writing the expressive syncopations and philosophical wordage of the songs and ensembles in this hilariously funny parody of dictatorships, their rise and fall. Here is the piece concerning which we can cut loose with "Of Thee I Sing, Baby" and really mean it! "Let 'Em Eat Cake" is not only worth singing, it is worth shouting about—but that's what our singing amounts to, anyway.

Dispensation!

Peppy Comedienne Goes Nutting!

The lively Miss Dorothy Lee, seen with them in many of their screen absurdities, beginning Friday, will be seen also as heart interest with those two nut comics, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, who will headline the stage bill in person at the Earle. Dynamic Dorothy was last seen on a local screen with Jimmie Dunn and Cliff Edwards in "Take a Chance"—in which she did!

Burton Holmes Begins Series Of New Talks

Interests Large Audience at National in a New Lecture.

"THE CHICAGO WORLD'S FAIR." First of a series of five Tuesday afternoon illustrated traveltalks at the National Theater. Motion pictures by Hereford T. Cowling; colored slides by Grace Nichols. Personal narrative by Burton Holmes.

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Inaugurating his new season of five afternoon traveltalks in the National Theater with a lecture never before delivered in the Capital—as was done last year with his extraordinarily interesting study of "Hollywood"—Burton Holmes yesterday afternoon fascinated an appreciative audience by affording them a comprehensive, if vicarious, trip to the Century of Progress Exposition of last summer in Chicago, which he titled merely, "The Chicago World's Fair."

Having gone this far, Mr. Holmes found himself confronted with an immediate necessity of explaining that last summer's gala event in Chicago was not in any sense a "world's fair" but almost an exclusively American exposition, participated in by no appreciable number of foreign nations.

As a purely domestic frolic, Mr. Holmes demonstrates that the Chicago Fair was a gay and popular success. He divides his contemplation of its many unusual features into a first and second part, separated by a very brief intermission, that are in strong contrast. The first half of the talk is devoted to the serious aspects of the undertaking; the second, to the frivolous.

It is made wholly clear that last summer's exposition, despite its bizarre architecture and daring color schemes, was a creation of solid and substantial beauty and that it actually fulfilled its function of emphasizing a "century of progress." This is stressed by revision to the old days of Fort Dearborn, interpolating glimpses of the World Columbian Exposition of 40 years ago, reproducing bits of the fair's historic pageantry and otherwise tracing the developments of Chicago from 1833 to its present proud position as fourth city of the world and second in America.

Mr. Holmes has the advantage, of course, of being a native Chicagoan and of having been an attendant at the Fair throughout practically its entire length. He thus is able to follow it from opening day to closing without omitting anything of its beauty, its wonder or its distinguished traits as compared with the Chicago Fair of '93, the Paris Exposition of 1900 and the San Francisco Fair of 1915.

With the President's visit, the marching hosts of the American Legion, the elaborate ceremonies of the illumination of the grounds by the light ray from Arcturus and other effective touches of the more serious purposes and accomplishments of the exposition, the first half of the lecture assumes a dignity that the second half entirely lacks.

The closing interval is given over to the Midway and the congress of freaks, of one kind or another, that seemed to play too large a part in a primarily dignified undertaking.

The talk, as it stands, is considerably too long—a defect which Mr. Holmes acknowledges by explaining that he has included everything, and, so far, been unable to make up his mind what might best be sacrificed from a too rich store of material.

The less deletion made, of course, the more perfectly will the lecture suit those who were unable to attend the fair in person last summer. For those who did attend, it may seem a trifle repetitious—although not unpleasantly so, since Mr. Holmes, rather more than unusually, indulges his keen sense of humor in this talk.

Man 'Rolled' After Visit To Roadhouse, He Says

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Police of two States are investigating an attack upon Charles Stine, 21, Chambersburg, Pa., who is in the Chambersburg Hospital with a fractured jaw and other injuries.

He told police he was thrown from an automobile when returning from a roadhouse near Hagerstown. He said his watch and money were missing after the attack.

Dr. Voorhees Writes 158-Year History of Phi Beta Kappa

William and Mary College Records Tell of Famed Society.

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—Dr. Oscar M. Voorhees, for 30 years secretary of the Phi Beta Kappa and now its historian, is writing the story of the Nation's oldest honorary scholastic fraternity, which was founded in William and Mary College here in 1776.

Since his election as historian in 1931, Dr. Voorhees has been at Williamsburg, engaged in searching through the records for facts about the famed society. He has established his headquarters in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

By a coincidence, Phi Beta Kappa although founded at William and Mary College 158 years ago, was inactive at this institution for 115 years of this time.

The fraternity became inactive in 1782 and was not revived until 1851, and then lasted for only ten years. Again in 1892 it was revived through efforts of Col. William Lamb, of the class of 1853. Col. Lamb years later at a convention of the society presented to Dr. Voorhees his Phi Beta Kappa key. Mark Twain received a pin at the same meeting.

Records show that there were five founders—John Heath, Thomas Smith, Richard Booker, Armistead Smith and John Jones—who met on "Thursday, the 6th of December, in the year of our Lord God one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, and the first of the Commonwealth."

During the following month they were associated with Daniel Fitzhugh, John Stuart, Theodoric Fitzhugh and John Stork. The second meeting was held January 5, 1777, when all of them took the "oath of fidelity."

The organization of the fraternity was completed in that month, a Greek and Latin motto adopted, a medal designed, a form of identification selected and provisions for regular literary meetings made. Five more students were initiated in 1777, bringing the total to 14.

In 1778 and 1779, 22 members were added. In 1780, 14 students were taken in, thus bringing the total number to 50 who were considered the fathers of the society.

Of these half-hundred men, Dr. Voorhees said: "I doubt if any 50 men could be picked from any quadrennium of early American college life who did more for the higher welfare of their country than these 50 men whom we are proud to call our Phi Beta Kappa fathers."

Society of Greeks Installs in Virginia

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Officers of the Mary Washington Chapter of Ahepa, an organization of naturalized Greeks, were installed last night in the Princess Anne Hotel here by District Treasurer C. G. Paris, of Quantico.

Officers include: C. A. Abbey, president; Pete Raftelis, vice president; C. J. Pappandreau, secretary; Paul Virvos, treasurer; Tom Vouyoukas, chaplain; Stephen Stephanidis, captain of the guard; Andrew Tavlaris, warden; Tom Katapheyiotis, inner sentinel; Harry Cokinides, outer sentinel. The board of governors include C. A. Doumas, Gus Rangos, Mitchell Angel, Andrew Tavlaris and Pete Pantajevis.

It was announced that Ahepa Bulletin for District 12 will be published for the first time on January 15 in Hopewell. George Eliades, of Hopewell, district governor, will edit the periodical. C. J. Pappandreau has been selected Fredericksburg correspondent.

Virginia Grain And Corn Show Set January 25

Tobacco Entries Will Be Featured at This Year's Event.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Virginia Crop Improvement Association grain and corn show will be held at Lynchburg January 25 and 26, it was announced today.

Farm exhibits from all sections of the State and entries from other States will be shown. Last year corn came from as far West as Montana.

Interstate classes are open to all United States and Canada. Many of the clases, however, are open to Virginia only.

One of the best exhibits is expected to be in the dark-fired tobacco classes. Prizes totaling $100 are offered for dark wrappers, brown wrappers, Austrian shipping and filler types of tobacco.

Spray Equipment Shown.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—A demonstration of modern types of spray equipment, given by Howard Ingerson, of Lansing, Mich., concluded the program for yesterday of a two-day meeting of orchardists of this section, held under the auspices of Growers and Producers Exchange.

Included on the program for today were Prof. C. E. Sites and Dean H. L. Price, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute; M. C. Morton, of Baltimore, originator of the tar-oil emulsion; Herschel H. Jones, of New York City William Hargrove, president of the Planters Manufacturing Co., Portsmouth, Va.; W. E. Ruth, research chemist of the Grasselle Chemical Co.; H. J. Williams, vice president in charge of purchases for the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.; Dr. R. J. Regan, of New York, entomologist, and W. J. Schone, another entomologist, from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Hog Pool Prepared.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Joseph C. Coiner, Augusta County farm demonstration agent, announces that groundwork is being laid for the participation in the corn-hog pool by producers in this county.

If 90 per cent of the Augusta farmers agree to comply with the AAA control plan, Coiner estimates that about $70,000 will be paid corn and hog producers in this county next year.

Sheep Medals Awarded.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Kenneth Renner and Carroll Miller, Boonsboro, Washington County, today received medals for outstanding work in sheep breeding. Medals were presented 33 winners in the Maryland Farm Bureau, Future Farmers of America contest, at the annual Farm Bureau convention in Baltimore.

Girl's Assaulter Spirited Away

Prisoner Admits Attacking Girl and Companion.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—James Green, 24, colored, was being held at an unannounced point in North Carolina today by officers who said he had confessed an attack upon a white man near Greenville Sunday night and a criminal assault on his girl companion.

Arrested by Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst near Greenville yesterday, Green is said to have made a full confession and was spirited away to prevent mob violence. His case will be presented to the Pitt County grand jury the week of January 22.

The 18-year-old victim of the attack is under the care of physicians. Fourteen stitches were required to close the wound on the head of Steve Edwards, 28, her companion on a car ride.

Burns Kill Girl, 5, Who Stoked Stove

Petersburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Betty Jane, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Buckbee, of Maysville Gap, died on the way to the Keyser Hospital after suffering burns.

The child put a stick of pine wood into the grate of the kitchen stove while her mother was out of the house. Her flimsy dress caught fire.

Help of CWA To Untrained Women Near

Provision for This Type Assured as Clark Plans Shifts.

Allen Asks Increase of 5,000 Jobs to Quota for District.

Civil works service jobs will be made available, probably next week, to a group of highly intelligent women now in need of aid, as the result of a survey now under way, Capt. Howard F. Clark, chairman of the District CWA committee, announced yesterday.

Ever since the CWA began operation, Capt. Clark said, this class of women has constituted a problem. Untrained in any of the usual vocations nd too advanced in years to become apprentices, many educated and cultured women nevertheless are applying for jobs.

Miss Elois Topley, of the CWA staff, this week is making a survey of schools, libraries and welfare institutions seeking to create positions for these women.

Some to Be Shifted.

As the District's quota already is filled, Capt. Clark will transfer some of the less efficient women now sewing under Civil Works service to the direct relief rolls to make room for the ultra-white collar workers though not on the sewing tables.

Commissioner George E. Allen announced yesterday he had requested the Civil Works Administration to allot 5,000 more jobs to the District, and he estimated it the request is granted every "deserving" resident of Washington will be given a job.

Earlier he conferred with David Ruml, director of the District employment center, and found reports that District residents are being discriminated against in CWA employments are greatly exaggerated.

The CWA committee yesterday tentatively approved a project to construct a $12,000 building on the workhouse wharf, Ninth and Water streets, to house prisoners while unloading brick. The plan also includes a general improvement in the wharf.

To Finish Library Plans.

Completion of plans for the Georgetown branch library at a cost of $3,300 and the drawing of sketches for a Petworth library, at a cost of $1,500, were approved, on condition that architectural and mechanical draftsmen can be obtained. Five of each are needed. An appropriation of $150,000 for the Georgetown library is included in the supplemental estimates which the Commissioners plan to send to the Budget Bureau.

The committee also agreed to send 36 Civil Works Service employes to Gallinger Hospital and 10 nurses to Freedmen's Hospital and to recondition a warehouse for occupation by transients under the Welfare Board at a cost of $2,800. The warehouse is at Eckington place and Q street northeast.

Annapolis Names 2 More Winners

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Two additional prize winners among midshipmen of the senior class for excellence in professional and scholastic branches were announced today by officials of the Naval Academy.

Clyde R. Nelson, of Peru, Ill., will be awarded the engraved sword offered by the Military Order of Foreign Wars for standing highest in mathematics for the four-year course, while John M. Wilson, of Scottsburg, Ind., will receive a navigating sextant for proficiency in practical and theoretical navigation.

Funds for the latter award were provided by the late Col. Robert M. Thompson, of Bayonne, N. J., class of 1868, one of the academy's greatest benefactors along athletic and other lines. The prizes will be presented in June.

Sanders Assured Pardon by Pollard

Richmond, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—An executive pardon was promised today to George N. Sanders, former treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, serving a 20-year sentence on a guilty plea of embezzling approximately $100,000 in mission board funds.

Sanders is accredited with 11 years of his sentence. Gov. Pollard, announcing the pardon, said ground for the action was the excessive sentence given in comparison to others in recent years for like offenses. Dave E. Satterfield, jr., who prosecuted Sanders, joined the Governor in expressing the opinion the sentence was relatively too heavy.

Sanders has actually served eight years of the sentence, which, together with credit for good conduct, is equivalent to 11. The pardon is one of 15 now pending before the Governor.

Bribe Trial Bares Liquor For Senator

Defense Is They Thought Marked Bill Envelope Held Information.

Admission of a witness that he was a "runner" for an alleged bootlegger and at one time delivered liquor to a Senator's office, was included in sensational testimony before a police trial board yesterday, as two suspended policemen faced charges of conduct prejudicial to the good of the force.

The two policemen, Rudolph Schleichert and Harry G. Bauer, are accused of accepting a $50 bribe and refusing to surrender an envelope containing the money to superior officers. They were acquitted of an extortion charge in District Supreme Court last November.

The first witness for the prosecution was Alfred H. Dudley, admitted bootlegger's messenger. He is alleged to have paid the policemen $50 to quash liquor charges against him. He was arrested last October.

Still a "Liquor Runner."

Dudley said he was employed by Henry R. Hilton. He said that after his arrest he pleaded with Bauer and Schleichert to "go easy" on him because he was an applicant for appointment to the Police Department.

He was later told by his employer, Dudley said, that the policemen "had agreed to accept $50 to quash charges in court." Dudley testified that arrangements were made with Capt. James E. Bobo to pay the officers in marked money.

On the morning of October 30 Dudley said he met the policemen at Eighth and L streets northwest and handed the envelope to Bauer, who in turn, gave it to Scheichert. It was then that police officials, by a prearranged signal, appeared and arrested the two officers, the board was told.

As the hearing opened Dudley admitted he was still employed as a "liquor runner." He said that just before he was arrested he delivered a liquor order to a Senator in the Senate Office Building.

Davis Bars Senator's Name.

Inspector O. T. Davis, chairman of the trikal board, ruled the senator's name should not be admitted to testimony.

Harry T. Whelan and Joseph Kelly, attorneys for the defense, attempted to prove that Dudley was furnishing the policemen with information against bootleggers. They charged the envelope handed to Bauer was enclosed in another. Dudley, however, denied he did this so as to prevent the offices from seeing an amount of money and arrest him for offering a bribe.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal prosecuted. Besides Inspector Davis, hte board includes Inspectors T. R. Bean and J. F. Beckett.

The hearing will continue today.

Refrigerator Officials Find Recovery on Way

American business is headed toward permanent recovery, officials of Barber & Ross, Inc., Kelvinator distributors here, said yesterday on return from Philadelphia, where they attended a special conference.

The Kelvinator Corporation will start an aggressive sales and advertising campaign this year, officials asserted. There was a 50 per cent sales increase last year, records showed.

New Street Funds Urged By District

Hazen to Ask Congress for Unlimited Aid on Projects.

3 Jobs Would Relieve Congestion in Georgetown.

Authorization for three street opening and widening projects designed to alleviate traffic congestion in Georgetown and on upper Thirteenth street will be asked of the present Congress, Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, announced yesterday.

The Commissioners will ask Congress to revert to the former policy of making an unlimited appropriation fo rstreet openings instead of $50,000 now in the 1935 budget.

Hazen, who was for many years District surveyor, has taken a personal interest in the projects and has instructed his successor, E. A. Dent, to prepare estimates at once.

The major project calls for the opening of Prospect street in two directions and the extension of Pennsylvania avenue above M street to connect with the Prospect street extension.

Hazen plans to cut Prospect street through from Thirtieth street to Twenty-eighth street and to carry Pennsylvania avenue diagonally to Twenty-first street where Prospect emerges.

Hazen Sees Value.

Prospect will also be opened from Thirty-seventh street, west to Foxhall road, though perhaps not immediately. Hazen plans to make the Prospect street- Pennsylvania avenue thoroughfare a high-level artery that will take much of the traffic off M street. Should a bridge be built to replace Chain Bridge, the roadway will be invaluable, he pointed out.

A recent traffic count revealed, Hazen said, that Wisconsin avenue and M street is now the most heavily traveled intersection in the city as it bears the brunt of the nearby Virginia traffic.

The second project is to widen Thirteenth street between Park road and Spring road to 40 feet to correspond with the thoroughfare north and south. It is estimated that this job would cost $50,000.

A third project calls for widening Foxhall road, between Conduit road and Reservoir road, to 90 feet, including sidewalks nad parkways. The estimated cost is $100,000.

Would Levy on Landn.

Mr. Haven pointed out the District will be reimbursed for a large portion of the cost of the street openings and widenings through special assessments, which will be levied against adjacent property owners.

The 1934 District appropriations act carried $25,000 for street openings, and the 1935 estimates carry twice the amount. Even that is inadequate, Mr. Hazen said, and the Commissioners believe the former policy of giving the District heads a free hand in opening streets should be restored.

A request for additional appropriations to put through the street projects will mark the second effort of the Commissioners to add to the municipal budget by reducing the estimated surplus of $5,400,000.

Humphreys Project To Give Many Work

Employment for many District workers within a few weeks was seen yesterday in award by the War Department of contract for $272,358 in officer quarters construction at Camp Humphreys, Va.

The contract was awarded to the R. B. McDanel Co., of New Brighton, Pa. It calls for construction of 20 homes for officers and was a part of $600,444.90 in Army housing contracts allocated by the department from its public works allotment. War Department officials estimated that the Fort Humphreys project would employ from 100 to 300 men.

Local NRA Complaints Affect Dyers, Laundries

The 20 NRA complaints now being investigated by Maj. Raymond J. Walters, executive officer of the District Compliance Board, concern valet shops and cleaners and dyers, and not laundries, Walter announced yesterday, after receiving a complaint from the local laundry code authority concerning the published statement that laundries were involved.

The cases come under the cleaners and dyers code and not the laundry code, Maj. Walter explained. The executive officer also said that in referring to increase in business by retail establishments, he meant retail business in general, and not laundries.

Death Strikes Man in Witness Chair Pressing $15,000 Claim

Overwrought by the ordeal of testifying in a damage suit he brought for $15,000, Piney Goldstein, 60, of 5322 Illinois avenue northwest, yesterday suffered a heart attack in District Supreme Court and died within a few minutes.

Goldstein was sitting in the witness chair in Justice Joseph W. Cox's court room when he suddenly slumped and fell to the floor. Immediate steps were taken to revive him and physicians from Emergency Hospital were called. He was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Meantime, Mrs. Rebecca Goldstein, his wife, was overcome by the illness of her husband and she, too, was placed under the care of a physician. She was treated in the matron's room at the courthouse for an hour before she was sent to her home by United States Marshal E. C. Snyder.

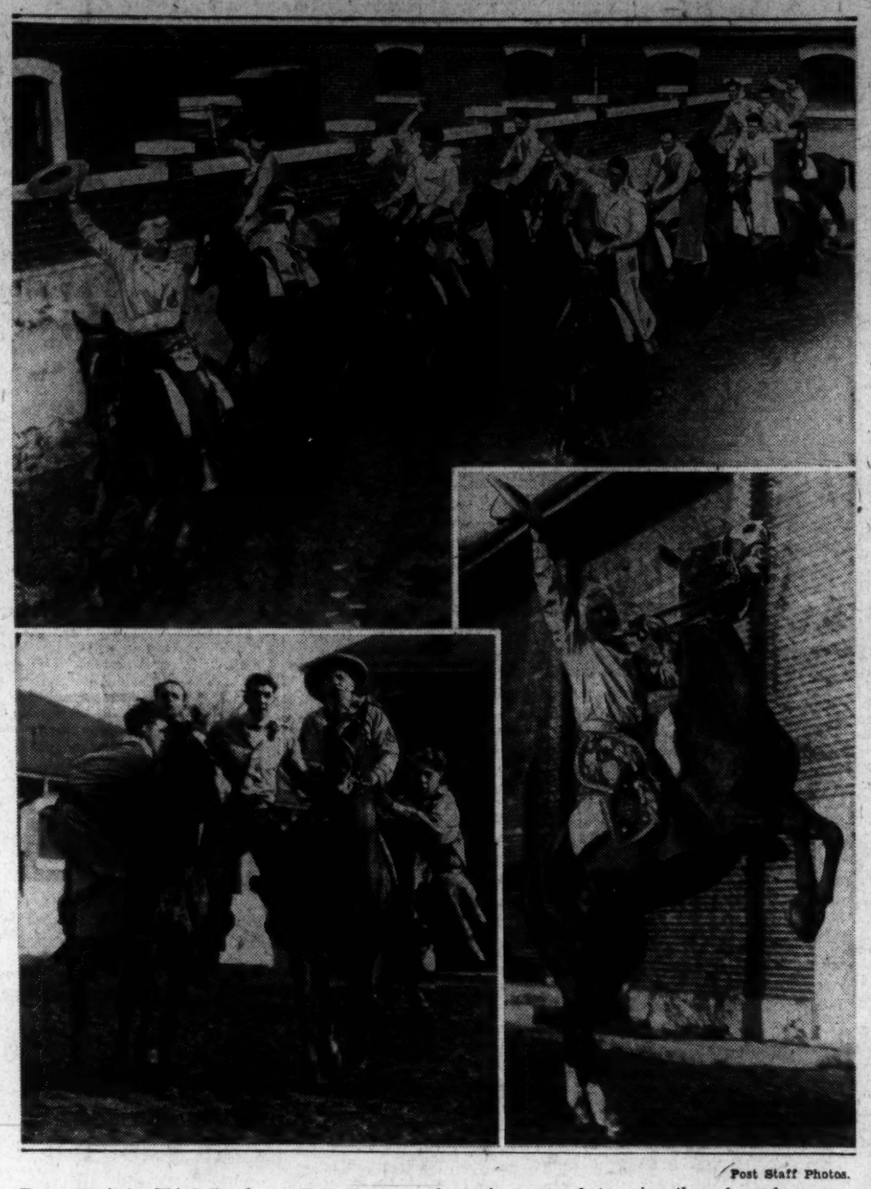

Goldstein brought suit against the F. W. Woolworth company, charging he was injured October 20, 1932, when he fell down a flight of stairs in one of the company's stores. The case went on trial yesterday morning and he was the first witness.

Lawyer Hints At Attachment For Cummings

Attorney General Ignores Summons to Appear at Duke's Trial.

Intimation that he would like to have an attachment issued for Attroney General Homer S. Cummings because of failure to answer a summons, was given in District Supreme Court yesterday by Attorney Jesse C. Duke, o ntrial in disbarment proceedings.

Duke told the court he "would hesitate to ask an attachment," but wanted an xeplanation of Cummings' failure to appear.

Prior to asking that the Attorney General be placed on the stand, Duke and Attorney Denny Hughes had exchanged heated remarks had exchanged heated remarks while Hughes was on the stand.

The witness said he lost respect for Duke when the latter asked him to join an appeal he was noting in a criminal case. Hughes also said he had not spoken to Duke since, addding, "and I don't want to ever speak to you."

Duke is being tried because he accused Mr. Rover and Justice Letts of sending to the Court of Appeals a false and inaccurate bill of exceptions.

Norman T. Whitaker, known as "The Fox" in a scheme by which Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean allegedly was to have been mulcted of $35,000, is Duke's next witness.

Receiver Asked for Cab And Finance Companies

District Supreme Court yesterday was petitioned by Roy Wurdeman, 1239 Sixth street northwest, to appoint a receiver to manage the business of the General Taxicab Co., Inc., and the General Finance, Inc.

Wurdeman informed the court he held a $500 judgment against the cab company, which, he said, in June, 1933, transferred its assets to the finance company in payment of what Wurdeman characterized as a "fictitious debt." He asks also that the assignment be declared void. The law firm of McNeill & McNeill filed the petition.

Hospital Blaze Injures Two

Fire in the noncommissioned officers' quarters at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday resulted in injury to two persons and caused damage estimated at $500.

Fred J. Duncan, 38, an Army sergeant, suffered severe injuries of his spine when he jumped from a second-floor window. E. C. Egloff, chief of the hospital's fire department, was burned on thehands and cut on the face as he fought the blaze.

The flames originatel in a davenport in Duncan's apartment. Firemen from Engine Company No. 22 attributed the fire to a short circuit, while officials at the hospital thought it was due to a smoldering cigarette.

Duncan returned from the linen room to find the fire. The flames spread so rapidly and the smoke wa sso thick, he was forced to leap.

School Lunch "Charity" Idea Being Opposed

Mrs. Roosevelt's Wishes Carried Out; Full Use of Idle Urged.

Prompted by the suggestion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt that children receiving free lunches in District schools be protected from being classified as charity cases, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the Board of Education, asked the committee in charge of the program yesterday to do more in this direction.

Mrs. Roosevelt made the suggestion during a tour of several schools with Mrs. Doyle Tuesday. Mrs. Doyle suggested that other children be asked daily to have lunch with the needy ones and that consideration be given the plan of distributing tickets for lunches to all the children. This plan is now carried out in the junior and senior high schools where there are cafeterias.

Mrs. Doyle also suggested that the free-lunch program be given more consideration as a means for taking care of the unemployed. She suggested that the direction of the program be placed in the hands of unemployed as well as the actual preparation and serving of the food.

George M. Whitwell, board member, asked that Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools, now in charge of the lunch program in the white schools, be relieved of this "arduous task" as soon as possible. The amount of work involved in inaugurating the program on time has resulted in the collapse of Miss Emma S. Jacobs, director of domestic science in the white schools, it was revealed.

Appointment of a director for the program is complicated by the necessity that the supervisor have a complete knowledge of school affairs, it was pointed out. Plans are being perfected for the employment of persons to prepare and serve the lunches from CWA funds. The food now is prepared at a downtown cafeteria and sent to the schools in trucks.

Besides directing the school lunch program, Mr. Haycock has been in charge of the organization of nursery schools.

School Gets Stagger Plan To Ease Jam

Western High Step Goes in Effect February 1, Board Rules.

Budget Fails to Provide for Replacement of Grant.

Increasing congestion at Western High School led the Board of Education yesterday to order a staggered program beginning February 1.

Classes will begin at 9 a. m. and 11 a. m., and the eastern boundary o fthe school will be extended. Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent, said pupils will have the benefit of a more regular schedule under the staggered system. The situation can not be relieved until the new Woodrow Wilson School is built, he added.

At the same meeting, the board instructed its finance committee to study the need of a new school to replace Grant, on G street northwest, after hearing a plea from 26 mothers.

Ballou Stresses Need.

The need for more school buildings was stressed by Superintendent Frank W. Ballou in a report which showed 149 new elementary classrooms are needed; senior high schools are 1,883 pupils over capacity, and junior high schools are 1,828 over capacity.

The report, however, did not refer to the Grant School, and it brought expressions of dismay to the faces of the mothers when he announced no item is included in the budget to replace the Grant.

The superintendent said, "Our chief concern has been for buildings to care for growing enrollment, and this is the only request made in the budget.

"We can't do anything about the Grant School now," he added, "as we are prohibited by law from interfering with the legislation after it is before Congress. The only possible way for the Grant School matter to receive consideration is for citizens to ask to be heard by the committees."

Mrs. Parker Makes Appeal.

Despite this discouragement, Henry Gilligan, board member, succeeded in putting through a motion for consideration of the problem by the finance committee.

Mrs. Belle Cutler Parker, spokesman for the mothers, told the board there is "a crying need for a new school." The standards of the West End Community are in danger, she said, by the threat of citizens to move to other sections.

Criticism was directed in particular at the heating system, which she said, heats only the upper portion of classrooms, leaving the feet and legs of children cold. These conditions have resulted in a poor mentality and health rating, she said, and cited cases in which children have worn three sweaters and two pairs of stockings in classrooms to keep warm, where children have allegedly developed weak hearts because of the need of walking upstairs; and the case of one child whose hands were so blue and cold when he reached home that he could not use them.

Indorsement Declined.

Mrs. Parker asked for an immediate indorsement of her appeal by the board, but it was not given.

Dr. Ballou assured the board the heating plant is being repaired, and that classes will be dismissed any time the temperature falls below 64 degrees.

In his report on the shortage of schoolhouse accommodations, Dr. Ballou revealed that 16 portables are still in use. Twelve are at elementary schools and 4 at the Armstrong High School, colored. One of the portables is at the Fillmore, one at the Ketcham, three at the Garrison and four at the Cleveland, one at Bates road and 2 at the Keene.

Four buildings, recommended in 1908 for early abandonment, are still in use, it was shown. They are the Force, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Webster.

Dempsey Raps Garden, Would Like to Get Fight Privilege Lease

Little Chance, However, He Says

Ex-Champion Believes Carnera Could Beat Max Baer Now.

Adds He Thinks Italian Wouldn't Win if Foe Was in Shape.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight champion who created the million-dollar gate with his pounding fists, announced today that he would like to try to resurrect boxing by leasing the fight privileges at Madison Square Garden.

"Hhowever," he added during an interview at the Hotel St. Moritz, "I don't think there's much chance of getting such a lesae, in spite of the way the Garden seems to be mishandling the business."

Dempsey surprised sports writers by saying that he thought Champion Primo Carnera would beat Maxie Baer if they met in the near future. Thi was unexpected because Baer is under contract to fight for Dempsey, and no one else.

"Bear figures he could knock out Carnera with one punch," Jack explained. "But I told Maxie in Washington that the result might be just the other way. He's been playing around the movies, night clubs and vaudeville without doing any training to keep in shape. He'd be a soft touch for the big Italian right now.

"Before Maxie gets into the ring with Carnera he should have three or four good fights under his belt. These bouts would bring him back to the same peak form he showed when he knocked out Schmeling last summer. When Baer is in good shape, I think he can win the title from Primo."

Dempsey said the boxing game was dead in New York, and that almost everyone connected with the game, who talked to him, criticized the Garden.

Dempsey will leave Saturday to open a refereeing tour of the Southwest at Topeka, Kans., Monday night.

Mutuel Bets Bill Offered in Albany

Second Move Is Taken to Legalize Wagering.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (U.P.).—A bill to amend the State constitution to permit pari-mutuel betting at race tracks throughout New York State was introduced today by Senator George Blumberg, Brooklyn Republican.

It was the second move at the present legislative session to legalize wagering on races. Previously, Assemblymen William Breitenbach and Senator James J. Crawford, both Brooklyn Democrats, offered bills in both houses to remove the teeth from the stringent antibetting law.

Gov. Lehman has indicated he would give close study to any betting bill sent him by the Legislature.

Egan Is G. U. Prep Star As Md. Deaf Five Bows

Joe Egan, star center of the Georgetown Prep team, ran wild against the Maryland School of the Deaf basket ball team yesterday, as the Hoyettes defeated the visitors, 35-18. The game was played at Garrett Park.

Egan, displaying the best brand of basket tossing seen on the Prepper's floor this season, came through with seven sizzling goals that spelled certain defeat for the Marylanders before the first quarter terminated. At the half Georgetown led, 22-4.

In the second half, however, Maryland school began a rally that netted the team 14 points, Everhart shooting in great style.

Beard, Dixie Hurdler, Decides to Quit Game

Auburn, Ala., Jan. 10 (AP).—Percy Beard, one of the best Southern hurdlers, has definitely hung up his spikes.

Beard was recognized as one of the best hurdlers of the world over short distance routes. At his peak a year or so ago, he regarded the 110-meter high hurdle event as his favorite. He was beaten in the National A. A. U. competition in Chicago last summer by Johnny Morriss, of Louisiana, in one of his last major competitions. Morriss, who set a world record of 14.3 seconds for the 110-meter hurdles in defeating Beard, is looked upon as Percy's successor.

Inability to win positions on varsity teams in football, basket ball or baseball turned Beard's attention to track when he was an undergraduate at Alabama Polytechnic Institute here.

The Heavyweight Situation

By Paul Gallico.

DODGE CITY, Kans., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—The heavyweight boxing situation, even way out here in this frontier city that once lived on violence and where arguments were settled not by Marquis of Queensberry rules but the flash and roar of the Old Equalizer, also known as the Persuader, is such a simple one that even I can understand what needs to be done. The heavyweight champion of the world is a large, oafish Eyetalian, a big glandular giant named Primo Carnera. The best heavyweight prize fighter in the country is a divine lunatic, a ruffish song and dance man with the arms and shoulders of a gibbon ape, a concrete chin, and a mule's kick in either hand named Max Baer.

Carnera knocked out the heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, to win his title. Baer performed a much more difficult feat. He knocked out the former heavyweight champion, Max Schmeling. Obviously, the way to determine the best man with his dukes in the world is to put the two of them into a ring and let them fight it out. A hundred thousand people would pay close to $2,000,000 to see them do it. But try and make the match.

In the old days in this historic and romantic town when two guys thought they were very good, the place became suddenly very hot; in fact, too hot to hold them and the boys would go looking for one another. By dint of inquiring discreetly the whereabouts of the other, they eventually found one another, old Roaring Rosie and Smoky Susie would go "pippity, pippity," and then there would be but one. This was always conclusive and indisputable. There was no need to count over the loser, but merely inquire whether he had any relatives.

Politics, grudges, racketeer ownership, promotorial feuds, greed, distrust, one thing and another will keep Signor Carnera and Max Baer from having at one another for many a month, perhaps years, perhaps forever. There is a lot of money to be made from this prize fight. The trouble is that one party wants it all. You know, of course, that Madison Square Garden controls Carnera and Jack Dempsey has the exclusive rights to all assault and battery perpetrated in this country by the Baer.

It was not so in the days of Rickard, the gambler. Old Tex controlled them all, champion, challenger, second rater and preliminary boy who might some day grow to champion's estate. Tex didn't know a left hook from a right uppercut, but he could hear the sound of a body striking the canvas with the well known dull and sickly thud for miles, from Reno to New Orleans, from Atlanta to Seattle, from Frisco to Chicago. His sensitive ear would tell him that another heavyweight had bit the dust. He would inquire—"Who done that? Get the feller that's still on his feet and sign him up. That guy must be able to hit."

Rickard had Schmeling signed to a three-fight contract before he ever raised his dukes in this country. He had Tunney under contract when he was a bores-me preliminary boy. The Garden once had Baer. What did they do with him? Couldn't they see that he was a colorful fellow who was liable to become a great heavyweight? Bernard Gimbel, the department store chief and former amateur boxer and a figure in Garden politics knew it.

He sat next to me the first time Baer fought in New York and was licked—by Loughran, I think. His eyes glittered. He knew what he was looking at. What were the rest of them doing? Why did the Garden let Schmeling get away? Petty feuds, quibbling over a few thousand dollars, private grudges—you can't promote fights that way. You've got to corner the market and keep it cornered.

The Garden now has scheduled a heavyweight elimination tournament to determine the logical challenger to fight Carnera in the summer. Now boys, pulleeeese. You wouldn't kid old Prof. Gallico, would you? Or the dear public? If you are really looking for the logical contender, why just run up to that Casino de Paree, or wherever it is that Maximilian Adalbert Baer is doing his mumming, kidnap or buy the guy from Jack Dempsey, whisk him to a monastery for six months where he can not even get a rotogravure picture of cuties in fleshlings, and you have your most logical challenger, and incidentally, the next million dollar fight.

Oh, my worshiped, stuffy, near-sighted Garden directors. I would pay for my working press ticket just to see Baer hit Da Preem on the chin just once and end gangster control of the heavyweight championship.

But even if all this came to pass, I doubt whether Da Preem would be interested in mingling with Baer outside of a motion picture studio or unless Baer consented to don the bracelets. The Carnera board of management likes them small, washed-up or plain friendly. The 180-pound butterfly-punching Loughran is their idea of an ideal partner. The 208-pound dynamite hitting Baer ain't. Excuse the grammar.

C. U. Arranges Track Meet On Feb. 24

Entry List Is Expected to Exceed Record 300 of Two Years Ago.

AFTER a lapse of a year, Catholic University will present its annual indoor invitational track meet on Saturday, February 24, in the spacious Brookland Gymnasium. University officials approved of the meet yesterday and preparations will be launched immediately to make the affair the biggest and most successful ever held.

Dorsey Griffith, C. U. track coach, who will direct the meet, said yesterday he had received word from Navy, Maryland, Washington and Lee and Virginia that they will be represented. Lehigh, Lafayette, Penn, New York U., Princeton and a host of other schools have been invited to send runners to the games, and indications are that the lists will exceed the 300 mark established two years ago. Griffith also hopes to bring several nationally prominent track stars here for a special race.

Local Schools United.

All local institutions have been invited, and it is possible that Georgetown may enter a squad. The two schools recently played a practice basket ball game, giving rise to rumors that they would resume athletic relations. The District high schools are expected to enter en masse, as they did two years ago, and a host of out-of-town high and prep school teams are expected.

The date of the meet conflicts with the National A. A. U. championships to be held in New York, but this is not expected to affect the Cardinals' games in any way. The intercollegiate championships are scheduled the following week.

Work on the track will be started next week. The oval will have a 50-yard straightaway with 12 laps to the mile.

Hamm Records Tennis Upset At Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP).—In a bitterly contested match, Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis Cup ace, was defeated, 5—7, 6—1, 8—6 today by Hudson Hamm, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for the first upset of the Miami Biltmore championship play.

The young Floridian, battering on Rainville's back hand almost exclusively through the extended sets, finally pounded the Montreal star into submission to finish with a brilliant smash at the net.

Rainville was seeded No. 1 of the foreign players, while Hamm was seeded seventh of the United States contestants.

Carroll Turner, of Miami, seeded eighth, bettered Joe Whalen, of Miami, 6—1, 6—1. Bryan Grant, jr., of Atlanta, defeated Oscar Evans, of Miami, 6—1.

The other foreign star participating in the tournament, Ricardo Morales, Cuban Davic Cup player and seeded two, eliminated Dr. Gene McCauliff, of New York, coholder of the National indoor doubles title and seeded five, 6—3, 4—6, 9—7.

George Lott, of Chicago, seeded fourth, and defending champion, won, 6—1, 6—1, from Ray White, of Tampa, Fla., and Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, seeded two, defeated J. S. McDermott, of New York, 6—3, 6—3.

Terp Quintet Duke's Host Tonight

G. W. Five, in New York, While American U. Opposes Twins.

ANOTHER skeleton will be dragged from the Southern Conference family closet tonight at Ritchie Coliseum, where Duke and Maryland tangle in basket ball at 8 o'clock. The Blue Devils are anxious to avenge a 30 to 28 loss to the Terrapins last season, and also to make amends for a 33 to 31 decision dropped to Catholic U. earlier this winter.

Gaining momentum with each start, the visitors trimmed Army yesterday, 27 to 25, for their fifth victory. The Rotary Club of Richmond, Clemson, Davidson and Baltimore U. are included on the scalp list. Maryland has not been doing very well lately, losing to Indiana and West Virginia, after handing Michigan a setback in the first game of the season.

Invaders' Line-Up.

Herb and Jim Thompson, perennial Duke stars, will start tonight, Herb at guard and Jim at forward. Connie Mack, jr., will attend to the tap-off, and Herman Bell, forward, and Phil Weaver, guard, will round out the starting line-up. Charlie Kunkle, Bill Hulscamp and Bunn Polack comprise the team's reserve strength.

"Spider" Chase and Bob Snyder, forwards; Rufus Vincent, center, and the Buscher boys, Bucky and Bernie, guards; comprise Maryland's starting five. The lads seem to be in top form and ready to give Duke its second defeat of the season. Two successive defeats ruffled the Terps' feelings to such an extent that it seems that only a Duke victory will satisfy them.

Will Play V. P. I.

Maryland will play only one game on its week-end jaunt into Virginia, with V. P. I. at Blacksburg Saturday night. The Washington and Lee game announced for tomorrow will be played at College Park on January 23. V. P. I. also will visit Ritchie Coliseum on January 20, although not originally scheduled to do so. It will be the only game the Terps play during examination week.

George Washington meets Long Island U. tonight in New York, returning immediately after the game. American U. is going to Randolph-Macon for a game with the Twins, and because of its performance against Hampden-Sydney Tuesday night is given more than an outside chance of winning.

Mumps Epidemic Postpones Game

Due to an epidemic of mumps at Charlotte Hall Military Academy, of Maryland, the Charlotte Hall basket ball team was forced to postpone its game scheduled here this afternoon with Woodward School.

The game will be played some time in February, Coach Warren Hayes announced. A game at Charlotte Hall is scheduled for February 23.

Gilbert Elston Wins Jefferson Feature

New Orleans, Jan. 10 (AP).—Coming from off the pace in a stretch drive, Mose Goldblatt's Gilbert Elston today whipped seven other 3-year-old claimers in the 6-furlong top event at Jefferson Park.

At the quarter-mark with Doeskin out in front, Gilbert Elston was not even in the money. By the time Esperanto had reached the half-mile post in front, however, the son of Upset, guided by Jockey Jacobs, was third, only three lengths back of the pacemaker. Esperanto still held command at the head of the stretch, but Gilbert Elston had moved into runner-up position, just a length off the pace.

Well back in the mutuels, the winner paid $6.20 for $2. His time was 1:13 flat.

Jockey Fisher Is Wed.

New Orleans, Jan. 10 (AP).—Jockey Wilma Fisher, 21, of Grove City, Ohio, and Miss Mabel Money, 17, of Evansville, Ind., whose father holds Fisher's riding contract, today were on a "honeymoon of the tracks," following their marriage here yesterday.

Premier Cab Juniors Play.

Notre Dame Cagemen's 21 Victories in Row Make Followers Forget Gridiron Debacle

Tech Dribblers Rally to Beat Gonzaga

Exhibiting erratic court play throughout the first half, Tech, already the surprise team of the interhigh series group, was snowed under a barrage of Purple scores, with the first half ending 16 to 8 in the Catholics' favor. Outstanding in the early game goal fire of the Gonzaga five were Billy Boyle and Tom Folliard, who also played bang-up games at guard.

Tech Five Rallies.

However, the Techmen focused their scoring eyes on the Purples' basket to start the third with Harry Mulitz and Farrell putting their club in the game. The quarter ended with Gonzaga holding a 20-to-13 advantage.

It was at the start of the fourth chapter that Billings, previously silenced by Orrell Mitchell's quintet, started his scoring rampage that left the Purple tied, stunned and thoroughly trounced when Referee Keppel's whistle blew, ending the game.

N. C. State Planning Anderson Welcome

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Hunk Anderson, N. C. State's new head football coach, will arrive on the college campus Saturday morning and will be greeted by Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus.

Gov Ehringhaus accepted the invitation several days ago to greet Anderson. The student body of State, including football players of last fall's varsity and freshman teams and the military department, alumni of the college and many Raleigh citizens also will be on hand to see that Anderson receives a rousing welcome.

Team Stresses Offense, Consistently Runs Up Large Scores.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (AP).—That familiar question, "What's wrong at Notre Dame?" which resounded from one end of the country to the other during the late and somewhat lamented football season, assuredly will not be in order during the current basket ball season.

For Coach George Keogan's basketeers are well on their way to a record that may rank with some of the most glamorous achievemtns of Rambler football teams of other years.

Picking up a winning streak that started midway of last season and reached 11 games before that season ended, the Irish cagers closed out the calendar year with seven straight additional wins and have since won three more for their twenty-first straight. With Northwestern (twice) and Purdue of the Big Ten included in this new string, it is no wonder the critics hereabouts are expecting a banner year.

Team Stressing Offense.

Keogan, who this fall started his second decade as Notre Dame basket ball coach, has been consistently successful here. Two of his best teams, in the 1925-26 and 1926-27 seasons, lost only one game each. Three times, besodes the present occasion, have his teams run up long victory strings, twice reaching 19 and once 17.

Along with the power of the current aggregation has come a dash and fire and emphasis o noffensive play which had not been so noticeable in some previous Keogan teams. One of the coach's favorite tenets used to be that if he could hold the opposition to an average of 19 points per game he would have a winning club. In other words, he stressed defense.

Shift in Emphasis.

This winter his team has not held any of its early foes to less than 22 points, but has gone out and got itself a flock of baskets in every encounter. This same shifting of emphasis from defense to offense was noticeable as the Irish swung into their record string midway of last season.

Two stars of the present Keogan outfit are Ed "Moose" Krause, one of the country's outstanding football tackles and generally regarded as the best college basket-ball center extant, and Leo Crowe, fourth link in one of the most unusuol family athletic dynasties known.

Name Well Known.

The ND monogram Leo will earn this season will keep the Crowe family on the list where it has been without a miss since 1923, when the eldest, Clem, won football and basket-ball letters. Francis and

Double Feature On Mat Card Tonight

Zarnoff-Marvel, E. Dusek-Clinstock Head Show at Auditorium.

BRINGING a flock of grunters and grimacers here each week to fill a five-bout rassle card is quite a proposition, the result being that some of the shows just as well could be missed by even the dyed-in-the-wool cash customers. For tonight's rasslefest at the Auditorium, however, several good bouts appear to be in the offing. Besides a double-header feature, pitting Count George Zarnoff and the so-called Masked Marvel in one and Ernie Dusek and Jim Clinstock in the other, a distinctly local touch has been added by booking Sam Cordovano, former Georgetown University football hero in the main preliminary.

Since leaving the Hoya gridmen, Cordovano has been playing pro football and assisting Coach Lou Little, of the Columbia University Team, which has just returned from licking the Stanford eleven in the New Year's Day Rose Bowl classic. And in order to give this bout a football atmsophere, Cordovano will be matched against another former pigskin-toter, Sid Nabors, from the wilds of Tennessee.

Protege of Rudy Dusek.

Nabors, a protege of Rudy Dusek, is a Dixie pro star whom Rudy spotted strong-arming and manhandling foes during a grid fracas in Memphis. He showed here recently, and at good advantage, although beaten by youthful Vic Christie. He and Cardovano should put up a good match.

Zarnoff, who takes on the Masked Marvel in one of the listed features, made an instant hit while bowing to title claimant Jim Browning here last week. He is one of the plowing-in type of matmen who never gives his foe a rest, while he also is fast and slippery. On what he showed last week he should put a sudden end to the Marvel's local build-up.

The other headliner promises to be a battle royal of the rough type. Clinstock has been disqualified several times for continued kneeing, but this is not worrying Ernie any, as the younger Dusek calls attention to the fact that he has some strongly built knees, too. "Let that Indian get as rough as he pleases," he told Promoter Joe Turner. "I don't want to win out on any foul." And so the word has been passed to Referee Bennah Bortnick to let this pair get away with everything except murder.

Boxing Captain Out.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—Bill Dunaway, captain of this winter's boxing team at North Carolina State College, and winner of the Southern Conference title last year in the 155-pound class, failed to pass enough required work during the fall term to register this winter, and as a result will be lost to the team this year.

Cordovano on WOL.

Sam Cordovano, former Georgetown University football star and more recently line coach of Columbia's Lions, of Rose Bowl fame, tonight will be the guest speaker over the weekly sports broadcast sponsored by Station WOL. Cordovano will discuss Columbia's victory over Stanford and other timely subjects.

Walker New Cubs Head; Sees Flag

Is Elected Unanimously; Has Filled in Since Death of Veeck.

Cites Additional Punch in Klein, New Blood and More Speed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 (AP).—William Murphy Walker, one of the fire brands in the old Federal League baseball war, ascended the Cub baseball throne today.

The third in an unbroken line of Williams to take over the official reins of the team—William Wrigley, jr., and William L. Veeck Precered him—Walker was elevated to the presidency of the club today by unanimous vote of the principal stockholders. His election officially filled the office he has conducted since the sudden death of President Veeck last October 5.

Hopes To Win Flag.

Walker, a heavy set, genial person, who made money in the fish and oyster business and who brought a Federal League team to Chicago's Northside in the big baseball war back in 1914, immediately brandished a warning to the baseball world that the Cubs, reinforced with new strength, were out to wage a relentless campaign to bring not only the National League pennant but the world's championship to Chicago.

"We have been in two world series since 1929 and were more or less duds," he said. "We want another chance and are going after it. The 1934 National League race looks like it is going to be one of the closest in years, but I think that the Cubs are going to win. Yes, I know we'll have to step to beat out contenders like the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves—watch out for that club this year—but we've got the stuf.

Added Punch in Klein.

"First of all, we got a lot of added punch in Chuck Klein, who should give the livelier ball one of its merriest rides. Then, you can look for a vastly improved showing from Babe Herman. I'm convinced that Babe tried too hard last season, but we're forgetting about that. He's set for 1934 and we've forgotten the past.

"Our veteran pitchers, like Charlie Root and Pat Malone, will do better with a faster ball. We've got a lot of new blood, too, and will have more speed. In our drive to produce a winner, we have bought and traded so liberally that only 14 players of our 1933 squad will be with us when we start the training grind at Catalina Island."

The new Cub president was not alone in his prediction of developing a winner for the Cubs. Philip K. Wrigley, principal stockholder and chairman of the board of directors, said that while the 1934 squad had two weak spots that he was confident of a pennant.

Something New! Hunters' Buttons

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.).—When West Virginia hunters go afield this year they will be bearing a new type of license equipment, representing a radical change.

Purchasers of hunting and fishing permits, in addition to the paper licenses, will carry a button to be displayed on hunting jacket or cap. Brightly colored, the button bears the number of the license issued and is hollow-backed, permitting the license itself to fit snugly inside. Various colors are used for various types of license.

County Clerk Paul H. Martin revealed that a total of 69 District licenses, two women's licenses and two State-wide licenses had been issued.

Carnera Off for U. S. To Begin His Training

Genoa, Italy, Jan. 10 (AP).—Primo Carnera, world heavyweight champion, today sailed for the United States to begin training for his title defense against Tommy Loughran at Miami February 22.

He was accompanied by his brother, Severino, his trainer and sparring partners. His co-manager, Louis Soresi, was indisposed and unable to accompany the party. He plans to sail on the Rex January 24.

Ross Back in Chicago, Will Start Training

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Barney Ross, world lightweight champion, returned from Excelsior Springs, Mo., today to start training for his 10-round non-title bout with Billy Petrolle in New York January 24.

Ross has been undergoing treatment for a muscle injury which twice caused postponement of the bout.

$3.80 Victor Ridden Well By Wright

Son of Chatterton Gives Notice He Will Be Hard to Stop.

Sandwrack Takes 4th; Arab, Marge Also Triumphant.

TROPICAL PARK, Jan. 10 (AP). Clarify, 4-year-old son of Chatterton, which races in the white and brown cross sashes of M. L. Schwartz, sped to his second victory in as many local starts in the Sarasota Purse of one mile here this afternoon. The colt served notice that he is going to be a hard nut for any man's hoss to crack around these parts, running the eight furlongs in 1:38 flat, over a dried-out track that still was not lightning fast by any means. Clarify was only galloping while topping Stroll Along by three lengths. Monel was beaten another three lengths for the place.

Wayne D. Wright put up a splendid ride on the winner, which closed at $3.80 for $2 in the betting.

Chatmoss, one that ran War Glory to a nose at Pimlico in November, drew quite a play, but he lacked speed throughout his first local effort. The recent winner, Monel, darted into a daylight lead, with Stroll Along in second position.

Clarify Well Rated.

Clarify, nicely rated within striking distance on the inside until the far turn, was taken around the leaders on the bend and worked his way to the front before straightening out for the short stretch run. Stroll Along was no match for the favorite, but easily beat the wilting Monel when the real issue arrived.

Hal Price Headley's Hilise, the $4.90 favorite, ran like a promising juvenile in the 3-furlong opener, in which 12 maiden fillies performed. The High Cloud filly scored by 5 lengths over Idle Victory. Canobie Lake was a close third. Neon lost her rider, H. Tinker, just after the start, but the jockey escaped with a shaking up. Hilise rushed to the front in a few strides and quickly sewed up the race with a fine display of speed. She ran the distance over a track that was not at its best in 0:35 2-5.

Flying Sailor Surprises.

Flying Sailor foiled the talent by leading virtually the entire 6-furlongs of the second race. Vigorously handled by Pat Remillard, the colt passed the judges with a handy length and a half to spare. Phantom Legion nosed out Fred Almy for the place. Fred Almy might have earned the purse but for being blocked by the winner in the late stretch run, Flying Sailor bearing over from the outside. Phantom Legion made up ground gradually to nip the unfortunate Fred Almy on the wire. The winner returned $14.40.

The "heavy sugar" was all for Quorum in the third contest and the veteran St. James gelding made good handsomely against opposition. Battling Knight trailed the winner by 5 lengths while saving the place from Gallic by 3 spans. Quorum imposed his will on Battling Knight after a close 3 furlongs and was only galloping through the late stages. His backers received $3.80 for $2.

Sandwrack Takes Fourth.

Sandwrack and Earl Porter, a combination that was beaten by bad racing luck last time out, made amends in the fourth event. Favorite at slightly better than even money, Sandwrack broke on top and stayed there for the entire mile and a sixteenth, clear of the interference he met with a few days ago. Momo was beaten a length and a half but always held the place safe. Village Vamp was an easy third.

Marge, showing the benefit of one local outing, carried her high speed all the way to the judges in the sixth event, scoring easily by three lengths at just under 6 to 1. Cabouse closed a big gap to account for second place, two lengths before Croon. Porter never could get Inflate close to the pace. Marge broke with the leaders and, rushing to the front, had no trouble outfooting her field.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Strange as it seems, nothing came last on the scale of Arabic numeral inventions. The numerals were complete from one to nine long before the sign zero for nothing was invented. Zero, or nothing, was perhaps the most important elemental invention in mathematics.

The Arabic numerals—which, incidentally, are not Arabic, but are derived from the Hindus of India—came into use to supplant the cumbersome Roman numeral method of writing figures. The figures one to nine, however, were conceived before the cipher. It was difficult then to express such sums as 407; 60,020, for example. The invention of the zero was a master stroke in further simplifying mathematics—and without it it is impossible to conceive of modern computations.

That Emperor Francis Joseph, ruler of Austria-Hungary, knew nothing of the Hungarian language is a historical fact. A story cited by some historians illustrates into what difficulties among his own subjects this ignorance led him. Upon making a tour of his country he once had occasion to inspect a military school, and later in the day, to visit a hospital. His aids prepared speeches for him to deliver in Hungarian, and the emperor memorized these speeches by sound, knowing nothing of their content.

The fatal slip was made when Francis Joseph got his speeches mixed up—he delivered his hospital oration at the military school, and vice versa.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Tropical Park Race Track, Jan. 10.

I used the mud as an excuse for one winner yesterday. Today I'm blaming the Florida sun for holding me to two winners. Believe me, friend, that Florida sun is all that those midwinter vacation advertisements say for it. Old Sol, as they call him in the schools of journalism, sneaked out this morning, and between him and the harrows, the track was fast by racing time. However, Sandwrack and Arab hustled home for the Bennings interests.

You know, two a day will keep the boss away and will continue the ban on Clocker Mike. He can't be reinstated until I suffer a shutout. Mike is now at New Orleans. I wonder how he and that canary are getting along? BILL.

First race—Baby John failed to win a purse as a 2-year-old and goes here with maidens. Gets in with lightweight and I'm taking him on the strength of his fighting chance to get home ahead of this group. Polisher figures high and will be ready if the top one falters. Reconnoiter has been tipped on occasions and is a money possibility.

Second race—Dulin's Lad breaks from the rail position and seems to have the edge on the speed offered in this sprint. That last was not the real one. Better things tomorrow. Jubilation has worked well and could be second. Hasty Peter in the honey here the other day.

Third race—Suspicious is cheap and all that but comes to me well reccommended. Packs only 102 pounds and I'm informed that a capable apprentice rider will be selected. No standout but one that may bring us a desirable mutuel. Hernando and Energetic Boy to divide the rest.

Fourth race—Rego ran a nice mile the other day and had Barkantine behind him. Goes another sixteenth tomorrow and should improve off that other effort. Rego would have paid a hat full and will be another long price here. Barkantine for the place and Appomattox for the show end.

Fifth race — Crowning Clory shapes up as the logical choice in the feature. Should handle 114 pounds well. Irene's Bob appears the one to cause trouble if such arises. Packs a lot of speed. The sleeper may be Scoutmaster. He was only kidding the other day in back of that field. If the front runners chase each other into the ground, they may have to contest with the closing rush of Scoutmaster.

Sixth race—Stone Martin retains a certain amount of class and is dangerous when right. I am told that the veteran was never better and is dangerous when right. I am told that the veteran was never better and his recent race was encouraging. He will have the lightly-weighted Spartan Lady and Rody Boy as his chief rivals.

Seventh race—I'm going to give Everfair another chance. Ran a neat second for me in that recent test and seems fit to take care of a field of this caliber. Musing and Nutlet for the remainder. The last named is a possible wake-up.

And there are two more Crowes, star prep basketeers, in high school at Lofayette, so that the prospect is for but a year's lapse before the Crowe tradition carries on for another four years!

"Jumpin' Joe" Voegele and Marty Peters, two Peoria, Ill., boys; Eddie Alberts, of Logansport, Ind., and Joe Jordan are other leading members of the team.

Chess Deadline Set.

January 17 has been set as the deadline for accepting entries for the District chess championship which the District of Columbia Chess League will sponsor starting Friday, January 19, at the Capital City Chess Club, 917 Fifteenth street northwest. Entries, with entrance fee of $3, should be sent to A. Y. Hesse, 236 Cromwell Terrace northeast. The fee is payable on the night of the tournament.

Virginia Faces W. & L. Five Tonight

Cavalier Quintet Boasts Three Victories Over State Rivals.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). — Virginia's cagemen have their first Southern Conference game against Washington and Lee in Lynchburg tomorrow night. The game will be played in the municipal armory, sponsored by the city's military organizations.

The Cavalier quint has played three State collegiate rivals, the Medical College of Virginia, Randolph-Macon and William and Mary, defeating all of them. Virginia has scored 137 points to 50 for the combined opposition.

Gus Tebell, head coach of the Virginians, has been warning his charges that they need not expect to do any such free shooting or close guarding when they meet the Generals tomorrow.

Sturm in Lead.

Henry Sturm, of Newport News, Va., is leading the Cavaliers in scoring with 37 points for the three games, an average of more than a dozen for each contest. Orlin Rogers, of Dry Fork, Va., is second among the Virginia forwards with 22 points. Ned Booker, of Louisville, Ky., has scored 21, Lucian Cox of Norfolk, Va., 7, and Stuart Taylor, of Baltimore, Md., 2.

Bob Smith, of Belleville, N. J., leads the centers with 15 points, while John Murphy, of Richmond, Va., has caged 8. Dave Marrett, of Louisville, Ky., tops the guards with 20 points. Bob Nelson, of Winchester, Va., has scored 3 and Julian Gordon, of Newport News, Va., 1.

Martinsville Session To Form New League

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Organization of a Class D baseball league of Virginia and North Carolina cities will be completed at a meeting in Martinsville, Va., on January 16, according to an announcement today by Joe F. Carr, promotional director of minor league baseball.

Cities to be represented at the meeting are Stuart, Fieldale, Martinsville, Danville and Galax, Va.; Leaksville, Riedsville, Mayodan and Mount Airy, N. C.

Yale May Oust Farmer in Schism

Alumni Would Force Him to Accept Suggestion for "Outsider."

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP).—The talk among Yale alumni here today, in connection with the agitation over the football coaching situation, was that Malcolm Farmer, director of athletics, will be asked to resign unless he accepts the recommendation of a graduate advisory committee for the engagement of "outsider" as head coach, preferably Harry G. Kipke, of Michigan.

Publicly, at least, there were no further devolepments or indications of any change in the situation which finds six out of seven members of the advisory committee opposed to Farmer's plan to restore T. A. D. Jones as head coach this year. At the Yale Club, where President James Rowland Angell and Farmer were among the guests at the alumni luncheon, doormen said Farmer instructed them to say he would give "nothing to the press."

Meanwhile, the schism in the ranks of Old Eli became more clearly defined, prompted by the belief that Farmer may delay any definite action on the football coaching situation until it is too late to negotiate this year for the engagement of Kipke or any other prominent outsider suggested. The list of others mentioned has included Bernie Bierman, of Minnesota, and Ossie Solem, of Iowa. So far as known officially, however, no overtures have been made by Yale athletic authorities to any of these men.

From the alumni standpoint, the joker in the situation is that the advisory committee has no authority and that Farmer can accept its advice or leave it alone.

St. Rita's Seek Game.

St. Rita's 145-pound basket ball team is seeking a game for Sunday afternoon with a team having a gym. Call Ray Graumann at Alexandria, 8825 J after 5 p. m.

High School Highlights.

JOE GARDNER, athletic coach of Georgetown Prep, is hot on the trail of Lou Little, former Georgetown University football coach and now head man of football at Columbia University, for the main attraction at the Georgetown Prep football banquet Thursday, February 1. Should Joe land Little, he will be getting the sports dinner headliner of the East today. The Columbia coach, whose team upset the dope by knocking off Stanford in the Tournament of the Roses game, has a full dinner card every day of the week and that will continue until way into the spring. Incidentally, Joe was one of Little's quarterbacks at Georgetown University.

St. John's Prep will play La Salle Institute, of Cumberland, Md., in an added attraction to the basket ball slate. The game is marked for Saturday night, February 17, in the St. John's Gym.

That Riordan High, as marked on the Eastern basket ball schedule, is Riordan School for Boys, of Highland, N. Y. Raymond Riordan, founder and director of the institution, is a Washington product, and taught in the District for a number of years. Mr. Riordan is also coach of the team.

Joe Brennan, star center on the basket ball team at Western High School last season and just as adept at covering center field on the base ball club, will return to the Western floor squad in a day or so. Last July, he was operated on for appendicitis, which has kept him out of practice to date. He will be available for the floor team in the series competition.

Eastern at Georgetown Prep.
G. W. Frosh at Roosevelt.
Emerson at C. U. Frosh.

Hutchinson Navy Captain.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10 (Spl.). Midshipman George Hutchinson, West Newton, Mass., class of 1935, has been elected captain of the Navy cross-country runners for next season, to succeed Edward J. Fahy, New York City, who will be graduated in June.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HILISE, $4.90, $3.10, $2.70; IDLE VICTORY, $21.30, $8.80; *CANOBIE LAKE, $3.80.

HILISE quickly ran into lead, drew away in stretch and won in a gallop. IDLE VICTORY went wide entering stretch and held on well. CANOBIE LAKE closed with a good burst of speed. POLYDENA, well up all the way, ran a good race. ADADOS suffered interference. BROWN LILLY stumbled near the finish and was pulled up. NEON stumbled just after the start and unseated rider.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:31. Off at 2:31½. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING SAILOR, $14.40, $9.80, 7.20; PHANTOM LEGION, $22.60, 7.20; FRED ALMY, $3.60.

FLYING SAILOR broke fast from the outside, raced FRED ALMY into defeat and then swerved over blocking FRED ALMY, drew away and won nicely in hand. PHANTOM LEGION, on the outside, finished fast. FRED ALMY ran a good race and might have won but for the inerference. DORNOCK, well up, had no mishap. BILLIE'S ORPHAN broke slow and lacked speed. ADOBE POST trailed far back for entire trip. STEEL broke good, but was weakly ridden.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:01½. Off at 3:04. Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUORUM, $3.80, $2.70, $2.50; BATTLING KNIGHT, $2.90, $3.80; GALLIC, $4.60.

QUORUM ran as if much the best. He was rated behind the early pace to the turn out of the back stretch, ran into lead, drew away easily in final furlong. BATTLING KNIGHT showed good speed, followed pace and was next best. GALLIC was kept close up in early part. Should improve over this effort. SUNNY TOM was outrun the first half-mile, finished fast. BABOO ran a good race. TEXAS KNIGHT had excuse.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start bad. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:31½. Off at 3:36½. Winner, Haughton, Jones and George's b. g. (5), by Wrack—Sandwich. Trained by E. Haughton. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANDWRACK, $4.20, $2.40, out; MOMO, $3.50, out; VILLAGE VAMP, out.

SANDWRACK broke well in motion was sent to the front with a rush and then taken in restraint. He saved ground all the way and had his field driving hard to keep up. SANDWRACK drew away in final furlong. MOMO broke running, made a bold attempt to race along with the winner, but was no match for him. VILLAGE VAMP slipped through on inside on turn and finished gamely. SURETY made his bid around turn, but faltered badly. FAIR CREST was as good as left and just galloped along back of the field.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800. The Saratoga. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won galloping; place, easily. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:05½. Winner, M. L. Schwartz's br. c. (4), by Chatterton—Maharanee. Trained by W. J. Hirsch. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:38.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLARIFY, $3.80, $2.70, $2.20; STROLL ALONG, $4.20, $2.30; MONEL, $3.20.

CLARIFY much the best of the field. He was kept in third place on the rail in the run down the back stretch, boy took him to the outside around turn, assumed lead entering stretch, drew away and was only galloping at end. STROLL ALONG was kept close to early pace and made a game effort. MONEL displayed keen speed for 6 furlongs, then gave way. SEA FOX was hustled along for entire trip. PREWAR had no mishap. CHATMOSS failed to show any speed and was outrun from the start.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:36½. Off at 4:42½. Winner, W. G. Merion's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARGE, $13.90, $7.90, $5.20; CABOUSE, $8.10, $4.90; CROON, $4.70.

MARGE, under good handling, was rushed into lead, drew away around turn and won nicely in hand. CABOUSE broke a bit slow, but worked his way up and closed with a rush. CROON got away fast, followed pace for 5 furlongs, then tired. CASH SURRENDER came with a rush in last 100 yards and would have been third in another stride. GAY JOE finished well. INFLATE trailed far back and never was a contender. TOYTIME had early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and one furlong. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start bad. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:12. Off at 5:14½. Winner, W. M. Hunt's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARAB, $7.40, $4.50, $3.20; STAR PLAY, $13.90, $7; DRUSUS, $4.30.

ARAB ran much the best. He broke well, but was crowded back going into first turn, he moved up rapidly in run down back stretch, could not get through and boy took him to the outside around turn. He closed gamely and won going away. STAR PLAY moved up gamely and held on well. DRUSUS was probably best, but at the start he broke sideways and he was lengths back of the field, but ran up and into lead. The early effort told and he tired. ELIZABETH FOX had early speed. JUST BUCK stopped to a walk.

Ring Prospects Bright at W. and L.

Tilson, New Coach, Pleased With Talent; Old Liners Are on Schedule.

LEXINGTON, Va., Jan. 10 (AP). With four veterans ready for the ring and well fortified with capable sophomores, Washington and Lee University expects to show Southern Conference rivals a powerful boxing team this season.

When Coach Warren E. "Tex" Tilson took over the direction of the General scrappers after the Christmas holidays, he found the team in remarkably good shape, thanks to two months of training under the supervision of Capt. Ed Mincher.

Mincher, a clever lad who went through a tough schedule last season with the loss of only one bout in dual meet competition, has picked up some weight and may be forced to fight at 155-pounds. He was a 145-pounder last year and the season before.

Martin in Spotlight.

Sharing the spotlight with Mincher will be Lew Martin, hefty 175-pounder, who fought in both the light-heavy and heavyweight classes a year ago with the loss of only one bout. Coach Tilson expects to use him exclusively as a light-heavy in the forthcoming campaign.

George Short, another veteran, will retain his job in the 165-pound class, while Vic Tucker, a member of the 1932 team, will fill in again at 125 pounds after a year's absence from the collegiate ring.

Two other sophomores, Henry Pitcher and Lyle Moore, are the leading candidates for the 115 and 135 pound assignments.

Although there are some glaring holes in the Washington and Lee defense, Coach Tilsbn hopes to show a team as good as the aggregation that lost only to Navy in dual meets last season.

The schedule:

March 3, Navy, Annapolis.

Blacksville Schedule.

Stocks Rally On Capital's Refund Plan

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Stocks reacted favorably to encouraging business statistics and to word from Washington that the Administration favored establishment of sinking funds by railroads and utilities.

Shares, starting slowly, swung into their best rally of the new year, thanks to active buying during the last quarter hour, and closed with many net gains of 1 to 5 points.

View on Rates.

One of Wall street's deductions from the sinking fund views attributed to the President was that regulatory agencies would be encouraged to adopt a rather liberal attitude toward rates, at least to the extent that sufficient returns to allow coverage of interest be assured.

A heavy proportion of the railroad's capital structure is in funded debt, and the difficulty many carriers have had in meeting maturities is familiar.

The business picture was brightened by midweek statistics on electric power output, which had its best comparative gain over a year ago and since September; on steel output, which is being sustained by inventory replenishment, and on freight loadings. The latter are running well above a year ago. The United States Steel Corporation's shipments last year showed an increase of about 45 per cent over 1932, December's volume being 170,281 tons above November, which was contrary to the trend of the last few years. In addition, Wall street noted the increasing activity in dry goods and other merchandise markets, which helped build up sentiment.

Gainers in Stocks.

Leading gainers in stocks included American Telephone, up more than 4 net; Case, up 5; United States Steel preferred, Du Pont, Chrysler Johns-Manville, Harvester, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Western Union, Procter & Gamble, Gulf States Steel and Continental Can, which ranged about 2 to 3 higher at the close.

Case jumped 5. U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Ingersoll Rand, New York Central, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, North American, Westinghouse and American Can improved 1 to nearly 2. Sales totaled 1,431,370 shares, of which about 600,000 changed hands in the last hour.

Iron Age said it was difficult to estimate how much time would be required for the steel trade to digest inventories built up during December, but thought "a marked rise" was assured before the first quarter ended. Its estimate of current production, 31 per cent, was unchanged from a week ago.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics

Business

Action of RFC in Election of Chicago Bank Officers Presages Administration Interference With Management of Over One-third of Our Banks.

By Ralph West Robey.

Announcement that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation quite definitely will take a hand in the management of those banks to which it has subscribed for preferred stock is not surprising. This is true in spite of the fact that there were repeated assurances, during the campaign to get banks to accept Governmental aid that the RFC would follow a hands-off policy. The only question then, and the only question now, is how far this supervision will be extended.

At present, according to Mr. Jesse Jones, it will be the policy of the RFC "to regard as its first duty in all banks where it owns any preferred stock to cooperate with other stockholders in selecting a board of directors." This means that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will take an active hand in the management of the 5,146 banks throughout the country that have sold preferred stock to this Governmental agency. Put in another way, it means that we are to have active Administrative participation in over one-third of all of the commercial banks of this country.

Much To Say for Closer Government Supervision.

There is, it should be noted, much to be said in favor of the Government exercising closer supervision over the management of our banks than has been the case in the past. No one now doubts, I believe, that a substantial cause of the troubles during the past four years was the unwise financial policies which, if not actively sponsored by the banking fraternity, at least were not opposed by it. Further, it is also clear that during the years preceding the crash in 1929 an extraordinary amount of incompetence crept into high places in the banking system—incompetence in the form of individuals who, through a misunderstanding of the nature of economic and financial relationships, led the country into a credit inflation of disastrous magnitude. From a broad social point of view, therefore, one can not help but have sympathy with the attempt of the Administration to put the personnel of our banking system back on a sound basis.

At the same time it is important to recognize that this does not necessarily mean that such an overhauling is the funcition of the RFC. We have in Washington and in each of the States a group of official supervisors of our banking system. They are charged with the responsibility not only of seeing that the banks within their jurisdiction are sound but as well that they are manned by competent personnel. That these supervisory authorities failed dismally in the performance of their functions before 1929 in no degree detracts from the fact that the responsibility for the solvency and soundness of our banking system still rests with them.

R. F. C. Is Not Supposed To Replace Bank Authorities.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, by contrast, is not charged with the duty of supervising the operations and overhauling the personnel of the banking structure. It was created to extend aid to financial institutions that were embarrassed through having assets which, while good, were not eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Bank. At no place in the organic act of the R. F. C. or in the amendments which have been made to that measure was the R. F. C. given authority to supplant the Controller of the currency, the Federal Reserve System and the State Banking Commissioners.

I do not mean by this that in taking a hand in the management of the banks the R. F. C. is exceeding its legal authority. This definitely is not the case because the preferred stock that it has purchased carries voting power. This fact alone, however, does not justify the R. F. C. becoming the overlord of our banking system and replacing the personnel with its own appointees. The result of such action would be not only a confusion of authority but a tieup as well between the financial policy of the Administration and the banking system which, with the present spending program, would be extremely regrettable. Today, of all times, we need a banking system that is free in its appraisal of the credit position of the United States Government.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A cheerful tone was maintained on the stock exchange today. British government issues, rail shares and industrials were the firmest on investment buying and the optimistic business outlook. Transatlantic issues advanced in sympathy with Wall street, while Kaffirs lost part of an early rise. The market closed steady.

Paris—Prices on the bourse registered slight gains and showed a stronger tone throughout the session as the cabinet position appeared safer. Rentes improved. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—Business on the boerse dwindled further today and, with the exception of Reichsbank shares, prices were lower. The tendency at the close was slightly better.

Utilities Lead Curb's Prices In Advance

Other Gains Are Small; Sales Volume Rises to 236,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Active buying in utilities led the curb market to a higher close today. Trading was dull until the last few minutes of the session, when demand broadened sharply.

Public utilities which finished 1 to 2 points higher included Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, American Cyanamid B, American Light & Traction, Commonwealth Edison and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore. Columbia Gas & Electric got up 4.

Advances in other departments ranged from fractions to a point or so although a few of the less active industrials ranged higher. General Tire & Rubber, Pepperell Manufacturing and A. O. Smith rose 3 to 4 points on small transfers. Aluminum Co. of America and Hiram Walker gained 1¾ each and improvement of major fractions to around a point embraced Atlas Corporation, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Humble and Gulf Oils, Newmont, New Jersey Zinc, Pan-American Airways, Parker Rust Proof, Sherwin-Williams and Swift & Co.

Norfolk & Western Road Cuts Fares

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Norfolk & Western Railway yesterday announced a reduction in basic passenger fares for the entire system for an experimental period from February 1 to May 31.

Fares will be 2 cents a mile for coaches and 3 cents for Pullman cars, with no surcharge on Pullman fares. This compares with the present tariff of 3.6 cents a mile in coaches and Pullman cars, plus Pullman fare and surcharge.

Most of the Western and Southern railroads adopted an experimental reduced tariff on fares near the close of 1933, but Eastern roads so far have held to their present standard of charges.

Bonds—Conflicting sentiment ruled in the bond market, but prices climbed four-tenths of a point on good business reports. Sales volume increased to $24,226,000. Treasury bonds declined; some liberties advanced.

Curb—Active buying in utilities sent curb prices to higher ground. Advances of other issues were small. Sales increased in volume to 236,000 shares.

Wheat—Prices advanced on expectation of a big decrease in farm reserve holdings. After trading closed, the Government report showed the loss in holdings was 78,486,000 bushels. May wheat sold at 86½; July, at 85. All grains advanced.

Cotton — Further trade demand sent prices to new high levels. A slight early advance was followed by set backs under realizing and scattered selling, but prices reached the best plane in late trading. March sold at 10.84. The general market advanced 6 to 9 points. January sold at 10.76.

Dollar—The United States dollar sank slightly on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.10¼ to the English pound; 6.13 cents to the French franc, and 37.25 cents to the German mark.

Shipments of Steel Rise 170,281 Tons

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Shipments of finished products by the U. S. Steel Corporation in December increased 170,281 tons to 600,639 tons. The total compared with 430,358 tons in November and 227,576 in December, 1932.

For the year 1933 shipments aggregated 5,760,952 tons, subject to year-end adjustments. This compared with 3,794,062 tons after yearly adjustments in 1932 and 7,676,744 in 1931.

The increase in December was contrary to the trend of the past few years. Steel business expanded last month as consumers hastened to take deliveries on fourth-quarter contracts which otherwise would have expired, under the industry's code, with the year-end.

A. T. & T. Net May Pay $7.30 Per Share

Improvement Board Votes $4,000,000 as Extra Stock Dividend.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP). — Dow, Jones & Co. said today that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. probably will report net income in excess of $136,000,000 for 1933, or between $7.30 and $7.40 a share on the capital stock. The 1932 net income of $145,906,909 was equal to $7.82 a share.

Considering the system as a whole, including another substantial loss by Western Electric Co., and dividends paid, but not fully earned by affiliated telephone operating companies, earnings last year approximated $5.25 a share against $5.96 for 1933, according to the estimate.

Since the low point in the first quarter, said the agency, earnings have shown a moderate but consistent improvement, which has continued in spite of increases in pay roll incident to the adoption of the President's reemployment agreement. This additional expense, estimated at $15,000,000 on an annual basis by Walter S. Gifford, president, is assumed to have come into force during the third and fourth quarters.

Western Electric Co. is estimated to have had a deficit of more than $10,000,000 for the first nine months, of the year, according to the agency.

Net earnings of the First National Bank of New York amounted to $10,795,000 in 1933, equal to $107.95 a share, it was disclosed today upon publication of the balance sheet.

Snowden A. Fahnstock has been elected a director of the bank, succeeding Landon K. Thorne, who recently resigned. Other directors were reelected.

The Northwestern Improvement Co. today declared an extra dividend of $4,000,000. All its stock is owned by the Northern Pacific Railway.

The extra payment is in addition to the $992,000 regular quarterly dividend voted in December and will cancel loans totaling $4,000,000 made by the company to Northern Pacific.

Machinery Trade In Germany Cut

A notable decline occurred in Germany's export trade in machinery during the first half of 1933, according to report to the Commerce Department from Assistant Trade Commissioner Rolland Welch, Berlin.

Statistics compiled by the German Association of Machinery Manufacturers show that shipments listed under 13 different subheadings totaled 156,922 metric tons valued at 281,666,000 reichsmarks in the six months ended June, 1933, compared with 246,940 metric tons valued at 428,739,000 reichsmarks during the corresponding period of 1932. Since exports during 1932 were below those of 1931, it is apparent that the Germany machinery industry is still far from being out of the economic depression.

Imports of the same items for the first half of 1933 totaled 8,767 metric tons valued at 21,749,000 reichsmarks, compared with 8,771 metric tons valued at 23,999,000 reichsmarks during the corresponding period of 1932.

Interest Rates Of Panama Banks Reduced

The reduction of interest rates on secured bank loans which has just taken effect in Panama is expected to exert a favorable influence on business and industry in that Republic, according to Acting Commercial Attache A. Cyril Crillery in a report to the Commerce Department.

The new rate of 6 per cent has been agreed to by Panama's national bank, the Banca National, and the foreign branch banks operating in the country. The former bank rate on these loans was from 8 to 9 per cent, depending on the transactions involved.

It is estimated that local banks have approximately $6,000,000 invested in loans to firms and individuals established in Panama. Considerable sums of money believed to have been leaving the country in payment of interest on loans, will remain in the country under the new rate, according to local opinion.

Deposits Total $21,311,751.

St. Louis, Jan. 10. (AP).—The Boatmen's National Bank's annual statement showed a gain in total deposits of slightly more than 20 per cent over a year ago. Deposits as of December 30 totaled $21,311,751, against $15,876,533 a year ago.

Bonds Driven Higher in Big Sales Record

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Conflicting sentiment ruled in the bond market today as various corporation maturities were pushed up at a rapid rate, along with stocks, and U. S. Government securities were again in supply at lower levels.

Sales totaled $24,226,000, par value, of which some $8,000,000 was accounted for by the Federals.

The aggregate was the largest since July 7, last. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced four-tenths of a point.

Better Business Aids.

The renewed strength of many utilities, rails and industrials was attributed to the continued improvement of business. Steel production, electric power output, car loadings and electric power output pointed upward.

The President's message to Congress recommending legislation guaranteeing both the principal and interest of $2,000,000,000 farm credit administration bonds was read carefully.

Some quarters felt that, under Presidential proposal, the farm loans would have the essential characteristics of a Federal obligation and, consequently, would come into direct competition with existing Government issues.

Treasury Bonds Lose.

While Liberty 3½s emerged with a gain of one-thirty-second of a point, and the other Liberty loans were only slightly lower, Treasury bonds were turned over in comparatively large volume at losses ranging from four-thirty-seconds to twenty-six-thirty-seconds of a point.

Secondary bonds were the principal beneficiaries of the upturn in the corporate section.

Rail gainers of 1 to 2 or more points included some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Central of Georgia, Central Pacific, St. Paul, Erie, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Seaboard Air Line, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash.

Utilities and Industrials.

The more active utilities and industrials with advances of 1 to more than 2, included loans of American & Foreign Power, American Waterworks, Bethlehem Steel, Chile Copper, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Goodrich, International Paper, International Telephone, Milwaukee Electric, North American, Pennsylvania Power, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, Phillips Petroleum, Postal Telegraph, Utilities Power & Light, Western Union and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

There was another sharp rally in German bonds. The Reich government 7s jumped 3⅞, but the 5s were up only fractionally. Some German corporation issues advanced 1 to around 4.

Other gains of 1 to 2 or more recorded by loans of Argentina, Australia, New South Wales, Norway, Finland, Austria, Copenhagen and Denmark.

Chrysler Motor Corp. Output Increases in '33

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Chrysler Motor Corporation in 1933 produced 448,697 units, passing its 1929 production peak, says a preliminary report on last year's activity.

Total output was 448,697 units, compared with 448,255 in 1929, the previous high. Volume last year was more than double that of 1932.

Cotton Rises To New Highs In Late Buying

January Closes at 10.76 as General Market Gains 6 to 9 Points.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Further trade demand sent cotton prices to new high levels today. A slight early advance was followed by setbacks under realizing or scattered selling, but prices reached the best plane in the late trading and March contracts, after selling off from 10.82 to 10.75, closed at 10.84. The general market ended firm at net gains of 6 to 9 points.

Early advances of 4 to 6 points met considerable realizing, while there was also some further selling here rumored to be against option contract cotton. Whatever the actual source of the offerings, they were readily taken on reaction to about yesterday's closing quotations, however, and the market soon firmed up again on a persistent demand from the trade, accompanied by talk of a better spot demand from both domestic and export sources. January advanced to 10.78 in the late trading, while May sold up to 11.02, and closing quotations were at or within a point or two of the best.

New Orleans was among the buyers here during the afternoon, supposedly on the narrower differences. The firmer tone of the wheat and stock market helped the late afternoon market.

The advance, however, was attributed largely to comparatively small offerings from the South and the better trade reports. Advices from textile quarters said that while somewhat less active than earlier in the week, there was a continued good demand for cotton goods.

Exports today, 21,872, making 4,480,907 so far this season. Port receipts, 18,386. United States port stocks, 3,950,047.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady today on covering and commission house buying, promoted by the steadiness of cotton and lard, firmness of crude oil and sharp advance in grain and stocks. Closing prices were generally 2 points higher. Sales 16 contracts, bleachable spot nominal; January closed 4.50; March, 4.70; May, 4.89; July, 5.09.

Trade Activity During Week Cut 4.7 Points

New York, Jan. 10.—The Business Activity Barometer, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., showed a sharp drop for the first week of 1934. This was due chiefly to the let-down in steel mill activity, which for the past few weeks has been showing contraseasonal advances. A sharp rise in steel operations usually takes place in the first week of the year. The business activity index for the week of January 3 declined to 61.1 from 65.3 the week before, a drop of 4.7 points, but compares with 51.2 for the corresponding week of last year, a gain of almost 10 points.

Carloadings for the latest week reported likewise showed a more than seasonal decrease, but electric power output, bank clearings and the price index showed moderate increases.

Following will be found the Dun & Bradstreet Business Activity Barometer and its components for recent weeks. (1928-1930 equals 100):

Chicago Bank Votes Increase In Capital Stock

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Stockholders of the First National Bank of Chicago yesterday voted to increase capital stock of the institution by $25,000,000 in 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock and authorized the sale of such stock "insofar as not subscribed and paid for by the shareholders" to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The board of directors, in compliance with the 1933 banking act, reduced its membership to 25, the maximum allowed under the law.

A woman stockholder objected to the sale on the ground that it might give the Government powerful influence.

Melvin A. Traylor, president, replied that banks were already firmly under the control of the Comptroller and the Federal Reserve Board.

Mr. Traylor also remarked that no bank engaged in broad activities could stay out of the reserve system, a statement taken as an answer to the warning of other bankers that the deposit insurance plan, if made permanent, might drive some banks out.

The action gives the bank $50,000,000 in capital and a surplus of $10,000,000, with a contingent reserve of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000, Mr. Traylor said.

Wheat Climbs On Expected Reserves Cut

Farm Holdings Decrease 78,486,000 Bushels; All Grains Up.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Wheat rose almost 2 cents a bushel today, largely because of belief official figures on domestic farm reserve holdings would soon show a big decrease.

A Government report, issued after the day's trading was over, said the decrease compared with a year ago amounted to 78,486,000 bushels.

Popular guesses in advance were that the falling-off would be around 100,000,000.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm, slightly under the day's top, 1⅜ to 1⅝ above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅜ to ⅝ up; oats, ½ to ¾ advanced, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Broadened speculative buying was a conspicuous feature of wheat trading, going hand in hand with reports of mills coming to terminal markets for supplies.

Dearth of moisture relief for domestic winter wheat territory southwest and west attracted persistent notice, emphasized by a Washington summary which said: "In the great plains, there is a widespread area from western South Dakota and Wyoming southward, including the western part of Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma, that is seriously in need of moisture. Winter grains in those sections are mostly poor with further deterioration reported in places."

Primary Receipts Small.

Adding to the upward momentum of wheat values was the fact that primary receipts today were again meager, only 233,000 bushels, and that Kansas City reported premiums for immediate deliveries were the best this season.

Evidence of a better transatlantic demand for wheat, with 750,000 bushels taken today from Canada for shipment overseas, was coupled with fears that a second cold wave in Europe would catch crops with a minimum of snow protection. President Roosevelt's message asking Congress to guarantee the principal and interest of about $2,000,000,000 farm credit bonds was regarded as likely to be a factor in the grain markets ultimately, but had no apparent immediate influence on prices.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength and responded to scantiness of arrivals of corn. Much notice was taken of announcement of a new process for production of corn sugar.

Wheat Stocks Cut in Bushels To194,136,000

(Associated Press.)

Farm stocks of wheat on January 1 were reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture at 194,136,000 bushels, the smallest amount since 1927, when it began collecting such data.

The January 1 total compares with 272,622,000 bushels on January 1, 1933, and the five-year average of 235,188,000 bushels.

Disappearance of wheat during the quarter, October 1 to January 1, was 115,515,000 bushels compared with 142,444,000 bushels in the corresponding quarter of 1932, and the five-year average of 153,258,000 bushels.

Stocks of corn for grain on January 1 were 1,422,556,000 bushels compared with 1,807,338,000 bushels in 1933 and the five-year average of 1,369,887,000 bushels. This estimate included corn intended for feeding on the farms where grown as well as corn held for sale.

Disappearance of corn during the quarter was indicated to have been 918,567,000 bushels compared with 950,943,000 bushels in 1932 and the four-year average of 902,232,000 bushels.

Oats stocks were 450,448,000 bushels, also the smallest on record. They compared with 763,263,000 bushels in 1933 and the five-year average of 693,208,000 bushels.

Disappearance during the quarter was set at 150,181,000 bushels compared with 210,799,000 bushels in 1932 and the five-year average of 221,688,000 bushels.

Shoe Buying Is Heavy.

St. Louis, Jan. 10 (AP).—The heaviest advance buying of spring shoes in years was reported as the annual convention of the National Shoe Retailers' Association opened here. Buyers from Southern States were said to have placed especially large orders.

Stock Exchange Seat.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a stock exchange seat for $126,000, a decrease of $9,000 from the last sale.

West Virginia Moves Record Coal Loadings

112 Cars Handled in Elkins in One Day; Shortage of Miners.

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Spl.). The largest shipment of coal ever moved in one day off the coal and iron branch of the Western Maryland Railroad passed through Elkins Friday.

One hundred and twelve cars of coal were brought into the Elkins yards during the day. More cars were ready for use but the available motive power was not sufficient to handle them.

This is more than 5,500 tons of the high-quality Sewell coal, which is mined on the C. & I., indicating the increasing demand for this coal.

A large part of the tonnage is going for by-products uses, bearing out the statements made for several years that the Sewell coal in this section is adapted to coking.

Development is progressing very rapidly in increased tonnage, but there is said to be a shortage of skilled miners.

The new operation at Hickory Lick is progressing rapidly and the tipple will soon be completed. This will add materially to the production of the field.

This field has been developed during the past four years and during the depression and is gaining every week.

There are several operators looking over the field for new operations, and there should be additional mines opened this year. At the present rate of production there should be mined more than 1,000,000 tons of Sewell coal this year.

Road's Business Improves.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad reported today's business was approximately 25 per cent larger than the best day's business in 1933. Five trains operated in 15 sections brought into New York about 1,800 long-distance passengers.

Bank Institute Is Conducting Examinations

Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, is concluding its educational work for the first semester and examinations are being given this week in five subjects, according to Walton L. Sanderson, Hamilton National Bank, chairman of the educational committee.

Class enrollments for the fall term totaled 230. Mr. Sanderson stated that of the 196 enrollments in the classes being completed this week, 180 qualified for final examinations in the subjects of bank organizations and operation, negotiable instruments, economics, credit management and bank management.

It is anticipated that with such a large percentage of those enrolled being qualified for examination, the class mortality will be exceptionally low for the term. Chapter officials consider this a fine record on the part of the student body, particularly in view of the extra volume of work which all banking institutions have had throughout the school term.

Mr. Sanderson stated that the course in income tax law and procedure being conducted by Howe P. Cochran would be completed in about two weeks. The public speaking class under Dr. George Farnham will continue its sessions until April.

Following the last examinations to be held this evening, plans will be made for the spring term classes which begin January 22. The mid-year meeting of chapter officers, governors, committee chairmen and consuls will be held in the interim at which meeting the program for the final semester of the banking school will be announced.

Home Owners Bonds Rally $1 in New York

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The 4 per cent bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation again rallied on the New York Real Estate Exchange today, closing at $92.62 per $100 par value, a rise of nearly $1.

President Roosevelt's special message to Congress did not ask that the Government assume a guarantee of principal on these bonds, but it was said such action was still contemplated.

Equitable Life Insurance.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 10 (AP).—The best showing of any month since March, 1932, was reported for December by the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa. Cash business totaled $5,657,971, a gain of $1,163,979 over December, 1932.

Japan Facing Changes in Finance Plans

Note Issues and Banking System May Be Improved, Report Indicates.

Various changes in Japanese banking and finance are indicated in reports reaching the finance and investment division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, according to the latest issue of Far Eastern Financial Notes just released.

These changes affect note issue of Japanese banks, bank dividends, branch banking, and the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

According to one report from Kobe, Japanese bank notes may be entirely withdrawn from Manchuria. The Japanese department of finance, says the report, is expected to draw up a plan for the control of currencies in both Japan and Manchuria.

Money Now Circulating.

In the latter area there are at present in circulation Yokohama Specie Bank notes and Bank of China notes. These notes have played an important part in the recent financial history of the "Three Eastern Provinces," but their withdrawal is suggested for the sake of unifying the currency of Manchuria.

With reference to the withdrawal of these notes the Japan Weekly Chronicle states: "It is necessary to solve the question before it becomes difficult to convert gold and silver currency through increased circulation of Manchurian currency."

Almost coincident with the appearance of the above news item was the report that an agreement had been reached legalizing the notes of the Central Bank of Manchukuo in the Kwantung Leased Territory. In that territory it is reported to have been agreed that the Central Bank of Manchukuo will indemnify the Yokohama Specie Bank for the suspension of the circulation of its notes.

Reorganization of Banks.

In Japan the department of finance is reported facing a difficult situation with relation to its banking reorganization program. In connection with its desire to put all provincial banks on a sound basis through amalgamations and reduction of capital, various banks may find themselves without the minimum capital specified in the banking law which became effective last year.

Reorganization of the Tokyo Stock Exchange is also reported in prospect. According to reports it is rumored that the leading directors of the exchange may resign. One feature of the suggested reform plan entails the establishment of a 3,000,000 yen company to take over loans previously made by the exchange to authorized brokers.

Upon completion of "readjustment" of those loans, the proposed company would be taken over by the exchange. Decision on the plan rests with the ministry of commerce and nidustries.

Week's Output Averages 2,165,950 Units; Imports Cut.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 26,100 barrels in the week ended January 6, totaling 2,165,950 barrels, the American Petroleum's Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California increased 10,900 barrels to 17,704,350 barrels.

Refineries representing 92.4 per cent of the estimated total capacity operated at 59.0 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 1,973,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 92.4 per cent of total, operated at 63.8 per cent of capacity, was 2,134,000 barrels.

Motor fuel stocks totaled 50,606,000 barrels against 50,452,000 barrels.

Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.1 per cent of total charging capacity was 416,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.1 per cent of total was 413,000 barrels.

Income of United States Jumps $62,110,181 in Past Fiscal Year

(Associated Press.)

The Nation's income jumped upward some $62,110,181 during the 1933 fiscal year—and what's more it cost the Government less to collect it.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, also disclosed yesterday in his annual report to Secretary Morgenthau that although 3.2 beer and wine were legal only for a small part of the 1933 fiscal year, the former brought in $35,149,492 and the latter $80,948.

With income taxes carrying the bulk of the load, Helvering estimated total revenue for the 1933 fiscal year at $1,619,839,224 as compared with $1,557,729,042 the year before.

Further it cost the Government $1.85 to collect each $100 of revenue during the year. That was 32 cents less per $100 than it cost the previous year. All in all it cost $30,031,722 to collect the revenues of the Government for the year as compared with $33,870,903 the previous year.

Income Tax Total.

Individual and corporation income taxes brought in a total of $746,791,404, Helvering reported, a decrease of $309,965,293 or 29 per cent. However, there was a sharp increase in miscellaneous internal revenue, which includes tobacco manufacturers, liquors, admissions, communications and checks. These totaled $435,412,325 an increase of $381,042,254.

Tobacco taxes alone during the year, he pointed out, brought in $402,739,059, of which cigarettes contributed more than three quarters.

New York's 10.22 per cent of the population paid $376,346,672 or 23.23 per cent of the country's internal revenue taxes during the fiscal year 1933.

North Carolina Next.

North Carolina was next, her 2.57 per cent of the population paying 13.18 per cent of the collections.

Of New York's aggregate payments, the largest portion—$240,001,792—was from individual and corporation income taxes. But in North Carolina's case, income taxes accounted for only $12,760,720 of the total of $213,487,759. Huge tobacco plants paid most of the remainder.

Pennsylvania came third in the internal revenue percentage list with $114,254,000 for 7.05 per cent. Illinois was fourth with $106,114,000 or 6.55 per cent and Virginia, another big tobacco State, fifth with $103,798,000 or 6.41 per cent.

Three states—North Dakota, New Mexico and Wyoming—paid only 0.03 per cent of the Nation's internal revenue total.

They were the smallest contributors. South Dakota and Idaho ranked next with 0.4 per cent and Arizona next with 0.5 per cent.

Home Loan Bond Sale To Await U. S. Action

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Field, Glore & Co. manager of the National Distributing Group for the 4 per cent bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, announced yesterday that "uncertainty surrounding possible Congressional action guaranteeing principal as well as interest" on the bonds made it advisable to postpone further offering of the securties "pending clarification of the outlook."

The bonds, traded on the New York Real Estate Exchange, have advanced sharply in price since late last week when the possibility of principal guarantee by the Treasury became known.

New York Produce.

New York, Jan. 10 (A.P.).—EGGS—Receipts, 19,034; firm. Mixed colors, mediums, 39 lbs., 19@19½; refrigerators; special packs, 19½; standards, 19; firsts, 18 @18½; seconds, 16@17½; mediums and dirties, 16@17; checks, 14½@15; other mixed colors unchanged.

White eggs, selection and premium marks, 25½@26½; nearby and Midwestern hennery, exchange specials, 23½@24½; nearby and Midwestern exchange standards, 23; marked mediums, 20@21½; refrigerators, Pacific Coast, large, 19@22; Midwestern average test, 18@19; other whites, unchanged; browns, refrigerator fancy, 19@20; other browns unchanged.

POULTRY—Live, easier and unchanged. Dressed poultry, quiet and unchanged.

BUTTER—Receipts, 13,714; very firm. Creamery, higher than extra, 19½@20¼; extra (92 score), 19¼; first (87-91 scores), 18@19; seconds, 16½@17½; centralized (90 score), 19. Packing stock unquoted.

CHEESE—Receipts, 279,125; firm; prices unchanged.

SUGAR—Raw was unchanged at 3.20. In refined a moderate inquiry was reported, but only for nearby requirements. Prices were unchanged at 4.30 for fine granulated.

COFFEE—Spot, active and higher; Santos 4s, 10; Rio 7s, 9. Cost and freight offers included Bourbon 3s and 5s at 9.45 @9.95.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, Jan. 10—WHEAT—Shipments from elevators, 5,412 bushels. Stock in elevators, 1,258,876 bushels. Opening prices were: No. 2, red, winter, garlicky, spot, domestic, 90; January delivery, domestic, 90½; February delivery, domestic, 92. Receipts of wheat running light and demand is fairly good here for No. 2, red, winter, garlicky. Off grades hard to dispose of.

CORN—Receipts, 4,066 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 107 bushels. Stock in elevators, 18,020 bushels. Receipts of corn from the nearby territory are running light and trading is moderate. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand.

COB CORN—Quoted at 3.00@3.25 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings not burdensome. No. 2, yellow corn (old) arriving here by car quoted at 65@66 per bushel with transit billing.

OATS—Receipts, 217 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 2,870 bushels. Stock in elevators, 43,794 bushels. Receipts of oats show considerable variation in weight, being mostly light. Demand fair in a jobbing way. Good, heavyweight oats are relatively scarce and such command a good premium. No. 2, white oats, 48@52 per bushel, as to weight and position.

Note—On all sales of oats to the local trade excepting those on track, there is an additional charge of 1¼ cents per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

RYE—Shipments from elevators, 1,894 bushels. Stock in elevators, 74,748 bushels.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. No surplus of good timothy. Prices range from 12.00@14.00 per ton as to grade and kind. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy.

Cotton Crop In Greece Is Doubled in '33

Greece's 1933 domestic cotton crop is expected to provide more than half of local requirements during the current year, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache K. L. Rankin, Athens.

This is the first time such development has occurred since cotton spinning became an important industry in Greece, it is pointed out.

The 1933 cotton crop, estimated at 60,000,000 pounds of unginned or about 18,000,000 pounds of ginned cotton, represented more than twice the 1932 production.

Imports of ginned cotton into Greece during the nine months ended September, 1933, totaled 13,225,000 pounds, compared with 12,402,000 pounds for the corresponding period of 1932. The United States supplied 6,907,357 pounds, a figure slightly larger than that for the 1932 period, while shipments from Turkey showed a marked decline.

Cotton shipments from Egypt also increased. An important feature was the large importation of Soviet cotton as a result of efforts inaugurated by Russia early in 1933. Considerably larger quantities of Indian cotton also were imported because of low prices.

The record domestic cotton crop and protective measures adopted by Greece undoubtedly will reduce cotton imports during 1934, the report declares, despite the acknowledged inferiority of the local product and the rapidly increasing consumption by Greek cotton mills.

Virginia Reaps Billion Income From Minerals

Richmond, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—Arthur Bevan, State geologist, writing in the bulletin of the Virginia section of the American Chemical Society, said today that the value of minerals produced in Virginia since the reestablishment of the geological survey in 1907 is more than $1,000,000,000.

The maximum value for any single year was in 1920 when ore worth $85,444,569 was produced. Production for 1929 was $41,841,076, and for 1930 it decreased to $35,349,451.

The leading minerals produced in the State, he said, have been cement, clay, coal, feldspar, granite, gypsum, iron, lime and limestone, manganese, mineral waters, pyrite, salt, sand and gravel, slate, talc, soapstone and zinc.

145 Kinds of Minerals.

He quoted Dr. A. A. Pegau, survey mineralogist, as saying that 145 minerals have been identified from the rocks of Virginia, comprising six native elements, 18 sulphides, 2 haloids, 31 oxides, 11 carbonates, 5 sulphates, 9 phosphates, 52 silicates and 11 others.

"Our mineral resources have had an important part in the creation of available State wealth and doubtless will be of much greater importance to chemical industries and to the State in the future developments of this age to applied science," Mr. Bevan said.

"Only a small part of our mineral resources have been thoroughly investigated, and many of them have been only slightly utilized."

Largest Soapstone Bed.

Coal, an important mineral resource of the State, occurs in Buchanan, Dickenson, Lee, Russell, Scott, Tazewell and Wise Counties, with smaller deposits in other counties.

What appears to be the largest developed body of soapstone in the world is found in a belt of basic crystalline rocks in the western part of the Piedmont section. Most of the operations are in Albemarle and Nelson Counties.

The bulletin notes that gold has been mined extensively in the State, but that silver deposits are few.

Jacob Scharf Promoted by Capital Bank

Jacob Scharf, a vice president of Second National Bank, was elected executive vice president of that institution at the organization meeting of its directorate yesterday.

Directors reelected all other officers. They are Victor B. Deyber, president; William M. Hannay, vice president; Edward F. Colladay, trust officer and counsel; William B. Wolf, assistant trust officer; George M. Emmerich, secretary of the board; W. W. Marlow, cashier; J. K. Seyboth, Fred S. Beyer, Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, Gerald E. Keene, Steuart S. Ogilvie, assistant cashiers.

Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Directors reelected all officers as follows: John Joy Edson, chairman of the board; Harry G. Meem, president; Arthur Peter, first vice president and general counsel; Charles H. Doing, second vice president in charge of West End office; Charles R. Grant, third vice president and treasurer; William H. Baden, fourth vice president and trust officer; Alfred H. Lawson, fifth vice president, real estate officer and secretary; George M. Fisher, assistant treasurer and assistant secretary; James M. Mason, Ralph Endicott, Norman E. Towson, George O. Schweinhaut, assistant treasurers; Herbert W. Primm, Edward L. Brady, assistant real estate officers; Leonard Marbury, Harry W. Gauss, Bernard L. Amiss, assistant trust officers.

The board declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent to stockholders of record January 24, payable February 1.

National Metropolitan Bank.

All officers were reelected. They are the following: George W. White, president: O. H. P. Johnson, vice president; A. A. Hoehling, vice president, trust officer and general counsel; C. F. Jacobsen, cashier; R. P. Hollingsworth, S. W. Burwell, H. A. Kertz, assistant trust officers; C. E. Bright, A. H. Bedford, C. L. Eckloff, R. E. Briggs, F. E. Hildebrand, assistant cashiers; F. V. N. Cook, auditor.

Bank of Bethesda.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Bethesda, Md., held this week, the following directors were elected:

L. B. Bell, S. Walter Bogley, Donal L. Chamberlin, E. Taylor Chewning, George E. Hamilton, Robert D. Hagner, Thomas Hampton, G. Wady Imirie, Lewis Keiser, Ralph S. Morrison, Brainard W. Parker, Benjamin C. Perry, Walter E. Perry, George P. Sacks, Francis C. Wallace, Frank S. Ward, Washington Waters, J. Harry Welch, Frank Wilson, Turner Wilson.

Home Building Association.

Fred L. Vogt, president; R. L. Quigley and C. Edward Beckett, vice presidents; William K. Reeve, treasurer; James M. Woodward, secretary; Otto Hermann, assistant secretary; Alfred B. Baker, Charles G. Flemming, Luther W. Linkins, A. Lynn McDowell, George B. Roth Parker H. Sweet 3d., directors.

The Home Building Association has just closed its fiftieth year of successful operation. Its first meeting was held in Wilson's Hall, Nineteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, January 8, 1884. Its conservative management and carefully selected loans and the friendly spirit toward the shareholders has enabled it to avoid foreclosures and it owns no real estate except the building at 2006 Pennsylvania avenue northwest which has just been acquired for its home. With better facilities for service the officers are looking for an increase in business in 1934.

Progressive Building & Loan Association.

Henry M. Eaton was elected president of the Progressive Building & Loan Association this week. Other officers elected are Albert E. Conradis, vice president and counselor and Edward Holmes, secretary.

Members of the board of trustees are: Gordon Cooper, Mr. Conradis, Mr. Eaton, Mr. Holmes, Allen C. Minnix, Alonzo T. Morgan, James L. Parsons, Edward R. Pierce, Charles A. Stott, George S. Watson and Henry A. Willard.

Belgian Congo May Limit Tin Production

Negotiations are under way between the International Tin Cartel and tin producers of the Belgian Congo, with a view to having the latter agree to a limitation of production, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Trade Commissioner Thomas Cutts, Brussels.

The position of the Congo, it is pointed out, is quite different from that of other producers, inasmuch as the exploitation of its important cassiterite beds is only beginning. Therefore, there can be no question of reducing the present output, but rather of limiting the extraction tonnage for two or three years.

At present a complete agreement has not yet been reached between all the Congo producers as between themselves. It appears obvious that they have a major interest in joining the Cartel as a means of maintaining prices at a remunerative level. The Congo cassiterite beds are very large and rich and production there will shortly reach 10 per cent of the world production, according to Mr. Cutts.

The Congo producers requested at first a tonnage of 15,000 to 16,000 tons to be spread over a two-year period, but the International Cartel found these figures too high, and a smaller quantity spread over a different period will be the object of further negotiations, according to the report.

Spanish Turn To U.S. Blend Of Cigarettes

The Spanish tobacco monopoly has begun the manufacture of cigarettes of American style and blend, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Acting Commercial Attache J. C. Greenup, Madrid. It is expected that these domestic cigarettes will be on sale throughout the country within a few weeks.

The Spanish agent for one well-known American cigarette has been notified that his contract will end when present stocks in shops are exhausted, and another has been informed that a large shipment now in port will not be admitted. Contracts for other American brands are subject to cancellation whenever the monopoly can manufacture in quantity sufficient to supply the market.

It is said that only the American type of cigarette is included in the monopoly's present program.

During the last three years, Greenup states, American cigarettes have become very popular among smokers able to pay the relatively high prices prevailing in Spain. Approximately 4,000,000 cigarettes of two leading American brands were sold in 1933 through the monopoly.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Men's clothing—It is reported that some of the larger manufacturers have booked spring orders in excess of a year ago. Cotton and mixed fabrics for men's summer wear have been selling well for the past month or more.

Copper—The market has an easier tone, due in the opinion of some trade interests to the recent sag in prices abroad. Custom smelter offerings have appeared in some quarters at 8 cents a pound, comparing with official price of 8¼ cents.

Floor coverings—Stocks in dealers, hands are said to be undergoing a considerable reduction as a result of favorable consumer response to January clearance sales of rugs and carpets.

Scrap steel—The trade hears that a leading independent steel company has purchased a supply of heavy melting steel in the Chicago market at $10.50 a ton. This is said to be the first sale to a mill at that price. The market is showing signs of strengthening.

Paint—November sales of paint, varnish and lacquer products as reported by 586 establishments amounted to $16,234,234 against $12,492,818 in the same month in 1932, according to the Department of Commerce.

Australia Plant Will Assemble Typewriters

Arrangements have just been completed to assemble American typewriters in Australia, Assistant Trade Commissioner W. C. Flake advises the Commerce Department. A local company, he reports, which has hitherto been importing typewriters from the United States, or from the Canadian assembly plant of the same manufacturers, is now obtaining parts from the United States for assembly in Australia.

Imports of typewriters into the Commonwealth have decreased to a marked extent since 1929, the report points out. In that year total receipts were valued at approximately £200,000, of which £166,000 represented imports from the United States. In 1932 total imports had dropped to a value of £35,375 of which £23,435 represented American typewriters.

The above figures do not give an exact picture of typewriter sales in Australia, however, according to Flake. Some distributors because of high exchange rates curtailed imports and purchased used machines, reselling them after making the necessary repairs. This business in used machines reached considerable importance a year or two ago, but the supply has now been so depleted that distributors are finding it advantageous to increase their imports of new machines.

In order to receive the advantage of the trade treaty between Canada and Australia, which gives Canadian-assembled typewriters an advantage over typewriters assembled in the United States, some distributors are now drawing their supplies of American typewriters from assembly plants in Canada.

It is believed that figures for the fiscal year 1933 will show an increase in the total number of typewriters imported into Australia, but it is likely that Canada will be credited with a greater proportion, although typewriters from that source are manufactured by American companies.

Three Railways Report Improvement in '33

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Freight traffic reports of several large railroads for last week, available today, showed general improvement over both a year ago and the preceding week.

Norfolk & Western Railway reported a total of 16,915 cars, against 14,772 in the last week of December and 16,102 a year ago.

Coffee Imports Boosted 820,893 Bags in 1933

New York, Jan. 10.—Coffee imports into the United States increased 820,893 bags, or 7.5 per cent in 1933, according to arrival statistics of the N. Y. Coffee & Sugar Exchange. Total arrivals amounted to 11,734,769 bags in 1933 against 10,913,876 in 1932. Arrivals from Brazil were 8,058,447 bags in 1933, an increase of 17 per cent over the 6,898,792 bags 1932 total.

Arrivals from other countries, however, showed a decrease of 8.4 per cent for the year, 1933 arrivals being 3,676,322 bags against 4,015,084 in 1932.

Business Increases.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Increases in business for December over the corresponding period in 1932 were reported by S. H. Kress & Co., Safeway Stores, Peoples Drug Stores and the Western Auto Supply Co. The increases were 22.7 per cent, 8.9 per cent, 2.4 per cent and 23.1 per cent, respectively.

Bank Clearings During Week Drop Slightly

New York, Jan. 10.—Bank clearings again make a rather unsatisfactory showing, and the report continues somewhat mixed. The total for the five days of this week for all leading cities in the United States, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,793,150,000, a slight increase, compared with the record for the same week a year ago. New York City clearings were larger, amounting to $3,394,524,000, the increase being 2.9 per cent, while the total for all centers outside of New York of $1,398,626,000 was 6.3 per cent lower.

The week this year includes two days of the heavy bank settlements incident to the opening of the new year, whereas a year ago there were three days. This would affect the report unfavorably to some extent, at most centers. Quite an increase, however, continues to be shown at some cities in the South and the West, notably Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. On the other hand, bank clearings for the five days this week exceed those for the five days of last week by $1,265,820,000, while a year ago the increase was $1,353,694,000 for the same comparison. The difference clearly reflects the change in January settlements, both this year and last, and the reduced amount this year undoubtedly measures the restriction to only two days this week.

Figures for leading centers, compared with those of last year, are printed herewith; also, daily bank clearings for the year to date:

Weekly Food Prices Gain In Past Week

New York, Jan. 10.—Continuing the sharp forward movement of the previous week, the Weekly Food Index, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., made a further slight gain for the first week of the new year. The index for January 2 stands at $1.93, 1 cent above the preceding week's figure, which in turn showed a rise of 5 cents, bringing the current index to the same level of three weeks ago. The index for the comparative week of 1933 when wholesale prices were nearing the low point of the depression was $1.63, or 18.4 per cent below the latest figure.

Declines in corn, barley, butter, eggs, and hogs were more than offset by advances in flour, wheat, rye, oats, hams, bellies, lard, coffee, potatoes, cattle, sheep and lambs.

The Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Food Index of wholesale prices (the sum-total of the price per pound of 31 articles in common use) compared with preceding weeks and years is given herewith:

$10,000,000 Five-Year Note.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—C. E. Calder, president of American & Foreign Power Co., stated that provision has been made for the $10,000,000 five-year note of the South American Power Co. This note was given to British interests in 1929 in connection with purchase of certain operating properties in Chile and Mexico.

Panama Canal Traffic

"Traffic December, 496 commercial vessels tolls, $2,204,134.64; also 10 launches tolls $108.15."

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Retail failures in the United States for the five days ended January 4 numbered 261, as compared with 229 in the five business days of the previous week, Dun & Bradstreet reports. A year ago the total was 596.

Wall street estimates place New York Central's deficit for 1933 at about $5,000,000 after charges. This would compare with a loss of around $18,000,000 in 1932. Plans for meeting the road's $48,000,000 bond maturities this year are still under consideration.

The Kalamazoo Stove Co., of Chicago, has resumed common dividend payments with the declaration of a 25-cent quarterly disbursement and an extra of similar amount, both payable February 1 to stock of record January 20. The last previous dividend was 50 cents on April 15 last.

Raw sugar exports to the United States from the Philippines from November 1 to December 1 amounted to 185,215 tons, compared with 194,525 tons exported in the same period in 1932. Refined shipments in the same period amounted to 10,245 tons, against 11,191 in 1932.

Directors of Sharp & Dohme declared a dividend of $1.12½ on the cumulative convertible preference stock. Included in the amount of 87½ cents on the stock for the quarter and 25 cents to clear up the balance of accumulations. The payment will be made on February 1 to stock of record January 22.

Dun & Bradstreet report 39 advances and 24 declines in commodity prices for the week ended January 10, compared with 31 advances and 7 declines in the preceding week, and 31 and 23, respectively for the same week in 1932. The foodstuff division maintained the firm trend of the week before with 18 advances and 10 declines, contrasted with 21 advances and 3 declines the preceding week.

S. H. Kress & Co. reports December sales volume at $11,440,676, compared with $9,327,444 a year ago, an increase of 22.7 per cent.

Sales of Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. for the four weeks ended December 30 totaled $16,919,801, an increase of 4.8 per cent over the 1932 period.

Sixty-four favorable dividend changes in the past week exactly equalled the total for the entire month of January, 1933, Standard Statistics Co. reports. There were 12 increased payments, 18 resumptions, 23 extras and 11 initial dividends. Unfavorable changes numbered 10. The week ended December 29 saw 25 favorable revisions.

Stocks of lead in the United States on December 1 totaled 284,654 short tons against 275,233 on November 1 and 259,972 on December 1, 1933, says the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

New Haven Railroad Co. car loadings in the first week of January were 23 per cent ahead of a year ago, according to J. J. Pelley, president. He also asserted that passenger revenues were running ahead of the like 1933 period.

Directors of the American Iron & Steel Institute have appointed Alexander Baxter and George Satterthwaite as special investigators as part of the program of the code authority for enforcement of the provisions of the steel code. The former is an accountant while Satterthwaite previously served as an executive of an independent steel company.

Rayon consumption, exclusive of acetate yarn, established in 1933 a high record for all time and was 31 per cent above the 1932 figure and 22 per cent above 1931, according to the "Textile Organ," published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation. Wool consumption, said this authority, was approximately 120 per cent above that of 1932. Silk consumption of 62,500,000 pounds was the lowest since 1904, the paper said.

Common stock holders of National Dairy Corporation at the end of 1933 totaled 68,890, the company reported today.

Directors of the Rubber Manufacturers Association have elected A. L. Viles president and general manager, and W. H. Lalley, of the Kelly Springfield Tire Co., chairman of the board. Viles has been acting as general manager of the association. J. Penfield Siberling was elected a director, succeeding W. S. Wolfe.

Gold production of Dome Mines, Ltd., in December was valued at $357,584 against $322,284 in December, 1932. Output for 1933 had a value of $4,469,293 against $4,130,318 in 1932. Production is figured on the basis of gold at $20.67 an ounce.

Public offering of a $28,000,000 issue of new Federal Intermediate Credit Banks 2½ per cent collateral trust debentures, dated January 15 and due in six months, is announced by Charles R. Dunn, fiscal agent.

Passenger Traffic Rises.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—A sharp increase in passenger traffic for December, the first month that reduced rates were in effect, was reported by Western railroads. The gain, however, was not sufficient to bring an increase in revenue.

U. S. Expert Fears Pitfalls In Sterilization

Doctor Heading Wisconsin Operations Opposes Enlarged Plan.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Immorality and demoralization will follow any wholesale plan of human sterilization, according to Dr. Frank C. Richmond, director of the Wisconsin psychiatric field service.

Dr. Richmond is one of the foremost physicians interested in sterilization in this country. He has been asked to prepare articles for a German medical magazine as a result of his experience, and is in charge of the administration of Wisconsin's sterlization law.

"Compulsory surgical human sterilization without limit or discrimination has been exploited as an eugenical panacea or cure-all for prevention of the procreation of the mentally unfit," Richmond said. "No sweeping program has been considered desirable, necesary or practical in Wisconsin."

Richmond revealed only 533 women and 55 men have been ordered sterilized in Wisconsin since 1915, under terms of a 1913 statute authorizing this treatment of criminal insane, feeble-minded and epileptic inmates.

"Use of sterilization in State prisons would make hell-holes of them," Dr. Richmond said. "Criminal tendencies are not hereditary. I also fear that many of the more desirable class of people who now use birth control to shirk parenthood would accept sterilization and

Tax on Whisky Unpaid, Woman Pays $25 Fine

Charged with possession of whisky on which no tax had been paid, Edna Potts, Hyattsville, was fined $25 and costs yesterday in Hyattsville police court. The case was one of the first of its kind to be tried in a Prince Georges County court.

Carlton Smith, of Brentwood, Md., was fined $25 and costs for disorderly conduct. Both arrests were made by Constable Warren E. Peake.

$500,010 Already Paid Maryland Wheat Men

The first wheat-adjustment payments in Maryland have amounted to $500,010, it was announced yesterday at the University of Maryland. This includes payments through January 6.

Under contracts signed by State farmers the Agricultural Adjustment Administration agreed to pay the farmers for crop reduction.

Jury Chosen to Try 3 Ohio Bank Officers

Cleveland, Jan. 10 (AP).—The trial of three former officials of the Standard Trust Bank—C. Sterling Smith, Alvanley Johnston and James H. Cassell—on charges of misapplying funds and making false entries was delayed today by the illness of William E. Minshall, defense attorney.

P. B. Carey Again Elected.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Peter B. Carey was elected to serve his third successive term as president of the Chicago Board of Trade. For the first time in the exchange's history the election was unanimous. Barnett Faroll headed a list of eight directors chosen to serve three years.

Optimistic Spirit.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—T. J. Reed, general manager of the Home Furnishings Market now in progress at the Merchandise Mart, said today the spirit of buyers and manufacturers was the most optimistic in several years. He reported a satisfactory amount of early buying was being done.

New Worlds

Algiers Report 2 Planets But Harvard Doubts.

Algiers, Algeria, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Algiers observatory has announced the discovery of two previously unreported small planets in a group of asteroids circulating between Mars and Jupiter.

The announcement said the observatory located the planets last November but withheld announcement until the discovery was checked with information from other observatories.

The planets have been marked on the star chart as 19123 "WB" and "WE."

Astronomers at Harvard Observatory said they had not received reports of any new planets. They suggested the discoveries announced in Algiers might be in the asteroid classification.

PWA Approves $3,500,000 Railway Loans

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday approved Public Works Administration loans to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. and to the Wabash Railway Co. for improvement and maintenance of equipment.

The New Haven had applied for permission to borrow $3,500,000 to repair equipment, air condition 142 passenger cars to be used between New York and Boston and Springfield and overhaul and recondition more than 1,200 freight and passenger cars.

At the same time the commission refused the Boston & Maine Railroad Co. application for release by the Reconstruction Corporation of $1,250,000 of bonds which had been pledged to secure a loan of $7,569,437. The railroad claimed the loan was over-collateralized and wanted to use the $1,250,000 of bonds to borrow $1,100,00 from the Public Works Administration for repairs and improvements to its equipment.

S. M. D. Clapper Elected.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—S. M. D. Clapper, formerly chairman of General Refractories Co., has been elected president, succeeding John R. Sproul, who resigned. Sproul was named assistant to the president, the office of chairman having been abolished.

NEVERSUCH REDUCTIONS AGAIN

The world's largest piano manufacturers, with factory facilities for employing 2,500 expert workmen, are determined upon operating their plant on a 100% production basis and returning to work hundreds of skilled piano mechanics.

To stimulate this onward march of progress, and for a limited time only, the outright sharing of factory profits with each and every purchaser of a genuine Kimball-made piano is speeding up employment and accomplishing the desired and noteworthy results.

The immediate response to this generous and most unusual offer by strict economists, and particularly musicians who have for years been familiar with the superior qualities of the Kimball, gives this celebrated maker the fullest assurance of a record-breaking wholesale piano distribution.

Here you may select your bargain piano, not from one, but from among many new and beautiful marvelously voiced Kimballs, the quality piano of the ages, right at the manufacturer's own store. Every instrument in this special factory offer, both grands and uprights, are brand-new and without a blemish of any kind—instruments which have never been loaned, rented or used in other homes or places of questionable custodianship. The kind of pianos that instill a pride of ownership.

WORK—EARN MONEY
Doubting Thomases pass on. Seventeen years of successful training and in placing its graduates in select positions is REAL PROOF that the best training PAYS in the end. It is NOT how long you attend school, but what you actually learn and can demonstrate. Usually the dumbest are in school the longest.
EVERY STUDENT at Boyd's is treated as an individual and is advanced on merit. ACTUAL RECORDS: A student in school 23 days, without previous training in stenography, placed $25 week. Another, 5 months night school, placed $1,500 year. Another, 2 months, without previous training, placed $22.50 week. Scores of similar records. These are exceptions, yet actual records, and are matchless in this city. New and Review Courses 2-9 months. Position guaranteed graduates. New classes now starting.

Pieces of Eight — Bait for Pirates — By Charles B. Driscoll

When Blackbeard had tossed away a whole hatful of gold coins aboard his ship, Queen Anne's Revenge, he spoke to his crew: "Ahoy, ye dogs!" (The men didn't mind being called dogs in Teach's playful manner.) "Do ye want more gold?"

There was great uproar. "Aye, captain! More gold! Good old Blackbeard! Give us gold, captain!" The fierce-looking Capt. Teach stood with arms folded, saying nothing, until the noise subsided. Then he drew his cutlass.

Pointing with his weapon toward the ship Eagle, sailing not more than half a mile away, Blackbeard shouted to his men: "I brought you these samples from yon ship that's captained by a schoolboy and manned by a crew of silly sea-lawyers."

The men shouted, and their chief continued: "I saw nine big boxes of treasure in yon ship. No Sunday school crowd that sails the sea with a shipload of women has any right to such gold. Shall we take it from 'em?" "Aye, captain!"

Robespierre,

The tyrant of the Reign of Terror believed all others were in error, and he alone was pure and saintly. He gave expression, rather quaintly, to this faith in and out of season; the other fellows reeked of treason, and France would have unpleasant sledding unless they went right on beheading all kinds of plain and fancy traitors, including auctioneers and waiters. He saw the country's doom was coming unless the guillotine kept humming. And yet this man, who kept on screaming for blood with blood already streaming was in his youth so inoffensive his reputation was extensive. "He wouldn't kill a fly," men muttered, when such a bird around him fluttered. 'Twould make his pulses throb and quicken if he were asked to kill a chicken. A timid lad, of hermit leanings, life had for him no brutal meanings. And yet somehow he got the habit—perhaps he chanced to kill a rabbit—of finding pleasure thus in knowing that others' tears and blood were flowing. The timid lad of rural rambles was born to make his land a shambles, and all the time he talked of virtue; to find the moral will not hurt you. Perhaps you know some other hero who talks like saints and acts like Nero.

Language Teachers Put More Stress on Reading

More emphasis is being placed on reading of foreign languages in American high schools than on writing and speaking them, as in the past, according to the findings of the National Survey of Secondary Education.

It was found that 83 per cent of the students of foreign language drop the courses ofter two years, and only 57 per cent continue through the second year.
